HEALED HIS RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of recovery was an operation. Trosses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely healed my rupture. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may have a complete recovery without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 74 N. Marcellus Avenue, Mansquan, N. J. Better out on this notice and show it to any other who are ruptured — you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Malcolm Boyd. The Alexandria News gives the following account of the death of the mother of Rev. John D. Boyd, of this city:

In the death on Tuesday, Oct. 19th, of Mrs. Annie Boyd, at the venerable age of ninety years, widow of the late Malcolm Boyd, Alexandria loses one of its oldest residents, it being upwards of forty years since that estimable lady took up residence here.

The late Mrs. Boyd was born at Dalkeith, on 24th May, 1836, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacGillivray. After her marriage to Mr. Boyd they resided for some years in the first of Lochiel.

The late Mrs. Boyd possessed the best of womanly qualities and was admired for her lovable disposition and genial personality. She had hosts of friends, young and old, who lightened the burden of the years, so that to the very last, her smile and joke were a pleasure to the many who visited her bedside.

As a member of the United Church she was devoted to its work, while appreciative of every other good cause that worked in the community. She was the last surviving member of a long-lived family of twelve and will be affectionately remembered not merely by her relatives but by a wide circle of Glasgow friends.

Surviving are one son and two daughters, Rev. John D. Boyd, B.A., Kingston, Mrs. S. A. Kinsella, Toronto, and Mrs. Christina McCuaig who resided with her mother.

The funeral of the United Church and cemetery was held Thursday, Oct. 21st, Rev. D. M. Macleod officiating. As might be expected the cortege proved a large and representative one.

WORK STARTED ON MEMORIAL WINDOWS

Are Being Placed in Memorial Hall at the Douglas Library.

Work has been commenced on the two windows in Memorial Hall, Douglas Library, Queen's University. Robert McCausland Ltd., Toronto, has charge of the placing of the windows in position, and it is expected to have them in place for the reunion at Queen's next week.

In the east window, a student is shown in conventional design, hearing the call to arms, and in the west window is shown a soldier drawing a sword. Both are large figures. Under the student is the following inscription, "We Live in deeds, not years," and under the soldier, "Freedom is the sure possession of those alone who have courage to defend it."

The side openings are filled in with coats of arms of Great Britain, Canada, Ontario and Queen's University. Badges of various universities active service units are shown. The names of the Canadian battles are also included in the designs.

A NOVEL OPENING

Is Promised in "Minstrel Chuckles" at the Grand.

Unlike any opening ever seen on a local stage, that's what is said of the prologue to "Minstrel Chuckles," the show being offered by the Rotary Club at the Grand Opera House, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Matinee Monday afternoon. Sale of tickets at box office opera house Friday morning.

Realizing that most everyone likes a change, the Rotarians have booked a minstrel this year that is decidedly different from anything previously offered, in a prologue that moves with the speed of lightning, a 'flash' from every act is presented, presaging the good things to follow. To disclose more of the detail, which would require explaining lighting effects, scenery, costumes and music, would be futile. The cast and committee are unstinted in their laudatory remarks about it. Director Hall is even more enthusiastic about it, having seen the effect from actual performance. That all connected with the production are enthused augurs well for lively evenings on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee Monday afternoon.

Gaffney vs. C. P. R.

At the Belleville Assizes the action brought by the administrator of the estate of the late Michael Gaffney, who came to his death at a level crossing in the township of Tyendinaga, while driving in his buggy from his home to Lonsdale, was called. The plaintiff alleged negligence against the railway, which the railway deny. An adjournment was agreed to.

To Have Thank Offering.

In place of the annual tea usually held at Moscow the United Church has this year arranged for a special thank offering to be placed on the plate at the Sunday anniversary services held on Sunday, Nov. 7.

It is proposed to erect a large newspaper mill on the Fraser property between Deschambes and Aymer, Que. The mill will cost between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Mrs. Dennis Ervine of Hungerford, who underwent a serious operation in Kingston recently, is recovering nicely and may be able to go home at the end of the week.

Justice Mowat was entertained by the legal profession of Belleville at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday night. It was an evening full of pleasure. Belleville Board of Education is calling for tenders for the erection of a new Collegiate Institute. Mr. E. S. Alger of Oshawa was a caller at The British Whig office today.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS by Olive Roberts Barto

Snitcher Snatch and the Butterfly Net. Johnny Sweep and the Twins flew along on Johnny Sweep's broom, carrying Ted's note to the North Pole.

"Let's read it," said Johnny Sweep suddenly. Nancy was so shocked at his manners that she nearly fell off the broom. "Why, Johnny Sweep!" she said. "That's not nice! Weren't you ever brought up?"

"Sure!" said Johnny. "But this is different. I was just supposing." "Supposing what?" said Nick. "I was just supposing that what if something would happen. Then what? Santa Claus would never know what Ted wants for Christmas. But if we read the note, we'll have it in our heads and then—"

"That's different," said Nancy. "Let's stop right away and see what it says."

So Johnny Sweep stopped his broom in a pine-tree and they all got off and sat in a row on a green branch and read Ted's letter. It said:

"Dear Santa Claus: Please bring me a live bull pup, and ten crossword puzzle books, and a sweater with trees and people on it, and an ice-hockey stick and about two bushels of candy."

"Your friend. "Ted."

"That's not hard to remember," said Johnny Sweep. "Come on, we'll get all the notes we can and then we'll be off to the North Pole."

So they jumped on his broom again and rode away.

Every chimney they passed had a crowd of Sooties coming out of the top and hurrying away toward the North.

"My goodness!" said Johnny Sweep. "Santa Claus is going to get so many notes this year I'm afraid he'll run out of toys and—Oh, my eye! Just look!"

Johnny said "my eye" which showed that although he said he had been brought up, he hadn't been — only partly. But then, I suppose a sweep has to say "my eye". It's about all there is of him to see being all black everywhere else. Besides what he saw sort of gave him a shock. And it was his eyes that got the shock.

For there was Snitcher Snatch, the goblin, hanging onto the church steeple with one hand and one foot, and with the other hand he was catching Sooties in a butterfly net. He was so excited that his long limber nose kept wagging like a dog's tail.

"Ha, ha!" he cried. "I got a whole hatful that time. This is more fun than a barrel of monkeys."

"Oh, dear! He'll steal all the notes," cried Nancy. "We'll have to catch him."

But Snitcher Snatch had seen them, and he skeddaddled down that church steeple like hot butter running down a muffin. And he hid in an old barrel, butterfly net, Sooties, Christmas notes and all."

Johnny Sweep guided his broom down to the ground and he and the Twins started to hunt.

They spied the goblin because the point on his cap was sticking up and it gave him away.

"Give us those Christmas notes, and let the Sooties loose," said Johnny Sweep sternly.

"Yes, sir!" said Snitcher Snatch meekly, handing them right over. (To Be Continued)
