Mrs. Ernest Hall, Cardinal, Ont., writes: "Last winter I got my feet wet and I caught a terrible cold. I took different kinds of medicine, but none did me any good and I seemed to be getting worse all the time."

One day I was reading about what your medicine had done for others, so I thought I would get a bottle. After I had taken a few doses I found it was helping me, so I took a few bottles and was completely restored to health. I cannot praise

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 7: "The Fall of Jericho."—Joshua 8:12-20.

By William E. Gilroy, D.D., Editor of The Congregationalist.

There are two ways of dealing with the story of the fall of Jericho, as with most incidents in Biblical history. These stories relate to a far-off time and their interest as history is entirely dominated for us by their religious value.

There are prosaic minds who read these ancient stories merely as matters of fact. Such people would readily admit that there is a traditional and legendary element in the histories of all peoples and nations, but they attach such almost superstitious reverence to the Bible that they consider it dishonoring to that book and inimical to the Gospel of Christ to suggest that there is anything traditional or legendary in stories concerning the early and far remote history of Israel.

As a matter of fact, the Gospel of Christ should not be inextricably bound up with these questions of history. It is entirely possible that a man may believe in the redemptive love of God and experience salvation through Jesus Christ who believes that such a story as this in our lessons may have been compiled by a sacred writer who gathered up the stories current in Israel concerning events that even then were in a distant past.

However, the important point is that the religious teaching of a lesson like this is the main interest and not the mere matter of what happened historically.

Spirited Significance. Both literalists and men who follow more liberal and modern methods of interpretation alike may find in this story of the fall of Jericho much that is spiritually significant. Probably we should find that the legendary element in the history of all people is based upon a background of very definite fact.

It seems incredible that the walls of a great city should fall before a great display of determination, vigorously expressed in noise and shouting. But, when we come to think of it, that is almost exactly the way in which the strongholds and citadels of evil do actually succumb to the determined assaults of righteous and determined men.

Suppose that in relation to any strongly-entrenched evil in our modern life the determined, organized will of a powerful and representative group of righteous and God-fearing men throughout the country became expressed in pulpit, press and legislative hall with the same persistent organized power that these forces displayed in, under the command of Joshua, they encircled Jericho day after day.

Suppose that it became manifest that these forces of righteousness were not only unified and courageous but that they were upheld by a sense of the divine presence.

Would these forces of evil in our land wait for a blow to be struck? They would exemplify the truth of the ancient seer, "the wicked flee when no man pursueth." It is true, of course, as some one has said, that they go faster when a righteous man does actually pursue.

But history reveals nothing more truly than that the prayers of the righteous avail much, that the persistent, determined advocacy of right, the willingness to strike heavy blows, the readiness to sacrifice all for a great cause, in themselves establish an irresistible spiritual power. Whatever be the actual historicity of this story of the fall of Jericho, its spiritual suggestion is unquestionable.

Power of Righteous.

The reason why righteousness and righteous people are not more powerful and effective, the reason why the forces of progress do not prevail more truly against the strongholds of ignorance, selfishness and prejudice, is because the forces of righteousness and progress are often too much isolated and disorganized. There is a great mass of good intention and good-will but it lacks definiteness of aim and organized purpose.

The genius of a man like Joshua, sincere, consecrated, with great capacity for rallying men to his own ideals, with equal capacity for effecting, and directing their organization cannot accomplish much.

The Bible is rich in its insistence upon the fact that God is not upon the side of the great battalions, but that great battalions and seemingly powerful citadels are as nothing before the power of the Almighty when that power becomes expressed in men who have given themselves over wholly and irrevocably to the power of God.

AN EVENT AT BATTERSEA.

A Church Event was Featured in Loughboro View Hotel. Battersea, Nov. 1.—The Halloween party in the Orange Temple, Saturday evening, proved a success. The youngsters, also many of the older people, were there in their Halloween costumes and enjoyed an evening of fun.

The annual supper under the auspices of the W.M.S. was held last Friday evening at the Loughboro View Hotel. The tables were very prettily decorated in orange and black crepe paper with orange candles and French marigolds. The living-room, in which the guests gathered, looked very cozy with its bright glowing fire-place. It also was decorated with French marigolds. The programme consisted of missionary songs and addresses which were thoroughly enjoyed.

The Institute supper which was held in the Orange Temple on Oct. 19th, was successful. George Kirkpatrick is moving into his new home purchased from Leonard VanLaven, Arthur Hogan is moving into the one which Mr. Kirkpatrick is vacating.

The sale of Mrs. Susan Ducette was held on Monday, Nov. 1st. Meetings are being held in the Pentecostal church. The Battersea Dramatic Club intends putting on a play at Sunbury.
