LETTERS

To The Editor Of The Whig

Supporter of the O. T. A.

Sir: The liquor question is the important one in the coming provincial election. Why have we not heard more about it in the columns of the Whig? Has no one written you a letter on either side of the question, "wet" or "dry"? Has no one anything to say, out loud, and all are silent? I hesitate to break this silence but am induced to do so by the conviction that the proposed changes in the law will not be in the best interests of the people as a whole in the province, and I will vote as I have always voted, if I get the chance, for the greatest measure of prohibition we can get. The O. T. A. is that measure up to date; and I say, "What we have we will hold." We all know the act is not perfect, and it has been abused, but it can be improved, and then better enforced. Some of its provisions I consider too severe and some not severe enough. A more evenly balanced act is not impossible, and the penalties attached more in keeping with the crimes committed against it.

I think it is absolutely absurd to try to improve conditions by allowing greater freedom to purchase intoxicating liquors by the "permit" system. The bootlegger cannot be stopped that way. The person of "reputation" who abuses his permit would have to lose it (his reputation as well as his permit) and then he would become a subject for the bootlegger to supply. Alcohol drinking is an acquired habit if liquor is made more easily obtainable by the permit system than more people, especially the young, will acquire the habit and the clientele of the bootlegger will be increased instead of lessened, as claimed by the Hon. Howard Ferguson, who, we have no right to say is not very solicitous for the welfare of the young men and women of the province, but with whom we differ in his method of improving conditions most decidedly.

The premier speaks of a mother coming to him asking what she will do with her boy who is drinking. Did he tell her, "I will give him a permit to buy more whiskey to sober up on?" Of course he did, for that's his method of saving the young men. Will he succeed that way. We think not. The only logical solution of the liquor question is out and out prohibition, both of its sale and manufacturing. We are a long way from that ideal solution yet, but we are on the road, and let us not turn back the hands of the clock twenty or thirty years of hard going. Very few have the hardihood to deny that the measure of prohibition we have attained in this province, has not been a very great gain both economical and social. Statistics, business, social relations, and the welfare of thousands of poor families, prove this overwhelmingly.

Many object to prohibition on principle. It interferes with "personal liberty," they say. But many do not stop to consider that without prohibitions of many kinds we would have no personal liberties at all. Liberty is a relative principle. It cannot be absolute. In Rousseau's philosophy, liberty is conceived of as lawlessness. Prohibition commenced in the Garden of Eden and has been in the world ever since and will continue to be until the Kingdom of Heaven is brought down to earth. It seems to be absolutely necessary while man is in the flesh, and capable of injuring his fellow man.

Prohibition, like liberty, is not absolute. It does not apply to everything, but society has the right to say to what it shall apply. If alcohol is found to be not in the best interests of society as a whole, then society has the right to prohibit its use. It has been found injurious to society, and various restrictions placed upon its sale and use. Will the anti-prohibitionists and personal liberty contenders say, remove all these restrictions and let everyone do as he pleases in the matter. This is the only logical position for them to take. Some who think they are philosophical, would take it, irrespective of the consequences to their fellow beings. They believe in the dictum of the early evolutionists, "the survival of the fittest." But there is a deeper law than this which applies to human beings, and which I would like to discuss in another letter.

S. A. AYKROYD.

Kingston, Nov. 17.

P.S.—Since writing this letter I am pleased to see that the Hon. W. F. Nickle is an O. T. A. candidate in Kingston. Let all who believe in "holding what we have" in prohibition in this province, vote for him, irrespective of party politics.

Death of A. McClatchie, Belleville.

Alfred McClatchie, aged ninety years, a life long resident of Belleville and vicinity, passed away Tuesday night. In early life he was a teacher, graduating from Victoria University in 1883. For many years he was principal at Pembroke High School, and also taught at Brighton and Newburgh. After teaching, Mr. McClatchie went into fruit farming in Sidney. Deceased was a life-long Methodist, and always took an active part in church work, acting on numerous occasions as a lay preacher. He had been ill for about three weeks. A son and daughter survive.

Mrs. Harvey Grimmon, Buras avenue entertained a company of the younger set at her home on Friday evening in honor of the birthday of her younger daughter Enid. About twenty-five were in attendance and a jolly evening was spent with games, music and contests. A most delectable luncheon was served and sincere felicitations extended to the young hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Way and family and Mr. Albert Way of Ottawa, motored to Kingston on Saturday for the rugby game and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Root of that city.

William Douglas, Rosedale, Toronto, came down and spent over the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sneyd.

Mrs. R. Davidson was hostess at a charmingly arranged bridge at her home Paul street, on Friday last. Four tables were at play in the pretty parlors made more attractive by the generous supply of 'mums. Mrs. W. A. Wright and Mrs. C. A. Wright were the lucky winners.

At the meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church a resolution was endorsed by which the society placed itself on record as being behind the O. T. A. and asked for a better enforcement, coupled with more helpful cooperation from our Federal Government.
