

596 CORRECTIONS IN VOTERS' LISTS

Teen's Students Composed the Majority of Those Who Registered.

Almost six hundred corrections were made to the voters' list, to be used at the coming election, during the four days on which Judge H. A. Lavell, the revising officer, held sittings. Of the 596 corrections all but a very few were additions of names and the bulk of the work had to be done on the last day. The names added to the lists on Thursday totalled 386 with four other corrections and in addition many people applied to find out if their names were already on the lists and a percentage of those who applied to have their names added were refused.

Students composed the bulk of the people registering, and the revising officer made every effort to grant them a vote in cases where they could comply with the Election Act.

An innovation at this provincial election is that in all municipalities, other than cities, a person whose name is not on the voters' list may vote if he takes the oath that he is qualified and one other voter vouches for him under oath. This applies in Portsmouth and all the townships, villages and towns.

Liberals Will Not Put Candidate in the Field

While no official announcement has been made, The British Whig understands that the Liberals of Kingston will not put a candidate in the field in the present provincial election. A meeting of the executive was held on Tuesday evening, and the matter discussed, and it is understood that this decision was arrived at.

The Whig is informed that the Liberals will, for the most part, remain strictly neutral in the present campaign. As an organized body they will take no action, although it is understood that some individual Liberals will take an active part in the campaign.

Service in Memory of The Late Dean Starr

A service was held in St. George's Cathedral on Friday morning in memory of the late dean and rector, Rev. G. Lothrop Starr, whose death occurred a year ago, on Nov. 19th. The Holy Communion was celebrated by Rev. W. W. Craig, Dean of Ontario, assisted by Rev. C. Gray Eakin. Mr. R. R. F. Harvey was at the organ and two of the late rector's favorite hymns, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" and "Immortal Love," were sung. Red and white flowers, the gift of the members of the congregation, were above the altar.

HE MAY HAVE DIED AS RESULT OF SHOCK

Thought That Henry MacRow Was Not Drowned at Glenora.

Some uncertainty has been aroused as to the cause of the death of Henry MacRow of Jackson's Mills, who met death when his truck plunged over the ferry at Glenora Wednesday afternoon. The men who brought his body from the water attempted artificial respiration but found that there was no water in his lungs. They then assumed that he died as he entered the water.

It was fully thirty minutes before a doctor arrived at the scene of the accident to examine the body. Dr. Wainley of Picton pronounced death due to drowning. Dr. C. A. Whitman, the coroner of Picton, examined the body while it was in the undertaking parlors in Picton, and he decided from the accounts of witnesses that death was purely accidental. He did not definitely say, however, that death was caused by drowning or by other means. The only other possibility is that the deceased was stricken with heart failure during the shock of having stepped on the "gas" instead of the brake, and that being dead before the car plunged over the ferry, no water entered his lungs.

PROTESTS WERE MADE BY THE DISTILLERS

Against Order That Liquor Must Not Be Shipped With Bags.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Liquor and narcotic drug smuggling were subjects before the customs commission this morning. G. W. Taylor, acting deputy minister of customs, after telling the commissioners that the placing of liquor in flour or sugar bags facilitated its being smuggled, stated that some Canadian distilleries were now permitted to ship liquor in cases "in bond" with bags. Mr. Taylor said that in June of this year, he had become aware of the fact that Canadian distillers were shipping liquor in cases with bags. He had ordered practice stopped, either on instructions of Hon. H. H. Stevens, or Hon. J. D. Chaplin.

This order was the signal for protests from the distillers, who said the regulation was injuring their business. Finally on instructions of Mr. Chaplin, the practice of packing liquor in cases with bags was permitted in the case of shipments in bond where a genuine, landing certificate was obtained.

TEA AND SALE

Held by the Order of Eastern Star.

Frontenac Chapter No. 90, O.E.S., held a successful tea and sale in the Y.M.C.A. building on Thursday afternoon. The tea table was covered with yellow mums and was presided over by Miss Kennedy. The home cooking was under the direction of Mrs. Hembrey and the aprons were worn by Mrs. Peters. The handkerchief table was under the supervision of Mrs. J. Angrove and Mrs. George Nobes looked after the pretty fancy work. A "touch-and-take" table was in charge of Mrs. C. Taylor and Mrs. F. Harper sold the pretty boxes of sweets. The sum of $200 was taken in during the afternoon by these ladies and their efficient assistants.

Kingston Boy Honored.

The fact that Kenneth Kleinsteuber has been elected by acclamation, as member for the Older Boys' Parliament, has been received among the local Taxis Squares and other boys' organizations with great interest. Kenneth Kleinsteuber has been connected with this work for some time, and will very ably represent the Kingston boys. This is the first time a representative has been elected by acclamation.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS by Olive Roberts Barto

Mischief in the Kitchen. "Oh, dear!" said Nancy. "I don't suppose we will ever catch Snitcher Snatch now. And what will the Fairy Queen think of us?"

She picked up the white shawl where the goblin had thrown it when he dashed up the chimney, and Nick picked up the wig and spectacles he had dropped.

"I kind of thought that was a queer old lady," he laughed. "I didn't think anyone else could have such a long nose."

"That long nose of his gets into enough mischief to keep a whole police force busy," said Johnny Sweep merrily. "But don't worry, we'll catch him all right. Come on. We'll go up the chimney after him, and as it's been snowing, it won't be hard to follow his tracks to the next place."

Sure enough, when they got to the roof, there were Snitcher Snatch's tiny footprints in the snow.

They went to the edge of the roof and then along the ground to a wall, and over the wall and along the ground again to a fence, and over the fence till they came to the house where the Morris' lived.

There was a big thick vine that went clear up to the roof so the Twins and Johnny Sweep climbed up like monkeys. And just as they expected, there were footprints leading across the roof to the chimney.

"Oh, ho!" said Johnny Sweep as he peeped down. "I'll bet you anything he's up to some of his tricks down there, Snitcher Snatch is. It never takes more than about three seconds for him to get into trouble."

So he called down, "Did a bad little goblin go down here just now?"

A little black Sootie stuck out his head. "Yes, he did," he said, "and he nearly took me with him. I'm still shaking."

"Come on, Twins!" said Johnny. "He's here. We'll go down and get him."

So down they all went. But when they got as far as the playroom fireplace and peeped in there was no sign of Snitcher Snatch anywhere. Only Billy and Bobby Morris playing train, as nice as pie.

"He can't be here!" whispered Nick. "No, he doesn't stay around where people can see him," said Johnny. "We'll go on down to the kitchen." So they crept down the big dark chimney to the kitchen, and look carefully around.

Cook had gone out and left everything in fine shape.

At first the adventurers thought nobody was there. And then they heard a lid drop.

Suddenly they spied the little goblin on the shelf where the cans were kept.

And he was as busy as a bee in a buckwheat field. Into the can marked sugar, he was pouring salt, and putting the sugar into the salt can. He was mixing the tea and coffee and shaking mustard into all the spices.

But the worst thing of all was the flour bin. The goblin dumped a whole pound can of baking powder into it before anyone could stop him.

"Oh, catch him! Catch him!" Nancy. "He's ruining everything."

Of course Snitcher Snatch heard her. And the next thing they knew, the kitchen door slammed and he was gone!

"Dear, dear!" said Johnny Sweep. "We'll never get him at this rate."

OBITUARY

John Tierney.

Following an extended illness, the death occurred on Tuesday morning at Seely's Bay, of Mr. John Tierney, a life-long resident of that place, aged seventy-six years. Born at Seely's Bay, deceased had always made his home there, and he was held in warm esteem by his wide circle of friends. He was engaged in farming. He is survived by his wife, four daughters and three sons, Sister Tierney, of the Hotel Dieu, Misses May, Ellen and Catherine, at home, Michael and John at home, and Paul on a farm near the homestead.

The funeral took place on Thursday morning, at St. Barnaby's church, Brewer's Mills, where a requiem mass was sung by Rev. Father Crowley. The funeral was very largely attended. The pallbearers were Peter Milne, William Murphy, James Webb, John Scott, Peter Malen and Michael Kelly. Interment was made in St. Barnaby's cemetery.

STEAMER A TOTAL LOSS

Anxiety Over Safety of Crew of the Cottonwood.

Sault Ste Marie, Nov. 19.—According to information brought back to its Michigan Soo last night by the tug Alabama, of the Great Lakes Towing and Wrecking Company, the steamer Cottonwood, owned by J. Davidson, of Bay City, which went ashore mile north of Copper Mine Point in gale Wednesday night, has been abandoned and is total loss. Some anxiety is now felt for the safety of the crew which was missing from the vessel. There is a persistent report that the crew is safe at Batchewana some fifteen miles south of the point where the disaster occurred, but this could not be verified.
