The Beachers' last two trips the Canadian championship series failed, but they went down fighting, and on Saturday they start Bud their third successive search for the Dominion honors, meeting Ottawa, the Big Four winners, in the Capital City. There is a different feeling in the Beach camp to-day than was evident before the East Enders' C.R.U. games in the last two years. Last season and the year before the Beachers went into the C.R.U. with only hopes of giving the opposition a good fight, but this year they expect to win, and many of the players are so confident that they are discussing the next C.R.U. series with the Intercollegiate champions. There is no doubt that in Balmy Beach the Senators will meet one of the greatest fighting organizations n senior football, with every player ready to give his last ounce for the honor of the Eastside Tricolor. The spirit that prevails among the players is remarkable for a city team, the second string men boosting the regulars and helping them, and there is the very best of harmony, although the reserve men are fighting hard to make the starting team. Added to the club spirit is plenty of individual ability moulded into a fast, clever team by Coach Bobby Polsen.

Senators Have Experience. The Senators will be outweighed by the Beach husky East End line. being one of the biggest in senior rugby, while it also has plenty of speed. On the half line and ends Ottawa has the experience with veteran performers, but the Beachers are confident that their youthful collection of backfield stars and great tacklers will more than make and Germany. One thing is sure, Ottawa will not be able to field its best team with Joe Tubman on the injured list. Tubman has a bad knee Young Montreal Has Serious and even if he plays he will not be at his best. With Tubman off, the Senator backfield is wrecked, as he has been the deciding factor in all the games that the Canadian champlone have won.

Balmy Beach will depend a lot on Its line strength, and the battering thrusts of Yip Foster and Young, Starr and Emmerson, the three of the Capital City star tacklers will have a mighty busy afternoon trying to hold the young giant. Ross Robertson, Foster's backfield partner, is a player of the opposite style,

Globe-Queen's University authorities are not as mercenary as some people seem to imagine. Argonauts challenged the Tricolor seniors to meet them in an exhibition game here next Saturday, but Queen's decided that they would not accept, claiming that they were tired, and did not wish to risk injuries at this stage of the race. Last fall Argos also challenged the Tricolor, but were sidetracked in favor of the colorless Montreal Winged Wheelers. Evidently Queen's do not wish to mingle with the Double Blue. When it was first suggested that the game be arranged it is alleged that the remark was made at Kingston that perhaps the Argos would attempt to injure Harry Batstone because that player left them in the Jurch at the start of the present season. There is not a man on the Argonaut team who would think of attacking Batstone, and such reports are too ridiculous for words. In the form Argos showed against Ottawa here last Saturday. however, it is more than likely that the locals would vanquish the Tricolor. Argonaut players were prepared to practice faithfully for this
