Three of the many new turban variations: Left to right, black velvet with Chinese note, bottle green velvet with fascinating high lights, and chic Rebox medal, reminiscent of the beret.

DUCK AN EGG, MUD—OR WHAT HAVE YOU?

When the students at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, foregather for their annual battle in the university quad, anything goes for missiles. Here they are hard at it. Divots fly through the air; so do stale fish, eggs, tomatoes, even bananas. Some of the combatants in the foreground are stooping to replenish their ammunition with whatever lies closest at hand.

MARYLAND TWISTER TAKES THIRTEEN YOUNG LIVES

Death came upon eleven children at their desks in this La Plata, Md., school house as it was crushed like cardboard in the vortex of a whirlwind which cut a swath of destruction across the countryside. More than twenty other pupils were injured and a negro couple living nearby also lost their lives.

ASTRID WEDS LEOPOLD AT STOCKHOLM

THE OTHER CHARLIE CHAPLIN

Slapstick comedy and his yearned-for tragedy are the things of which most folk think when Charlie Chaplin's name is mentioned. But there is still another Charlie—the plain dad! Here he is in that role, telling Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin and Charles Spencer Chaplin, Jr., good-bye as they sail from Los Angeles for a visit to Honolulu. It's the first time the three ever have been photographed together.
