FROM THE UNITED STATES ADDRESS

Of the House of Representatives to the People of Massachusetts.

Fellow Citizens,

The House of Representatives of Massachusetts, having nearly completed the ordinary duties of the session, upon the eve of an adjournment, are induced to delay their departure for their homes, by the intelligence just received, of War declared by the U. States against G. Britain. Though the recent course of public affairs has led some of us to anticipate this event, as the natural and inevitable consequence of the infatuation which has presided in the national councils, and of the fatal desertion of your interest by some of your own Representatives in Congress; yet we are sensible that this calamity will fall upon most of you as a sudden and unexpected visitation; and be regarded by you as an instance of inconceivable folly and desperation. We also know, that it will be natural for you to look towards your State Legislature, for the suggestion of some means of relief, from a condition so repugnant to your wishes and interests. Most gladly would we devote our time and exertions to any means of repairing the mischief already begun, or of averting the ruinous consequences which await our country. But our disposition unless seconded by the active energies of the people, can be of no avail. The system deliberately adopted at a former Session for securing permanent power to a majority of the Senate, in defiance of the voice of the people, impedes and defeats the expression of the public will.

The approbation of War measures by a minority in this branch, and by certain members of Congress from this state, exhibits you as a divided people to those who triumph in your divisions, as a source of their own power; and the National Government has been induced to believe that your fears and dissensions combined with your siber habits, and natural aversion from the appearance of opposition to the laws, are sufficient pledges of your tame acquiescence in the abandonment of your local interests, and for your supporting at the expense of your blood and treasure, a war, unnecessary, unjustifiable & impolitic; which under the pretence of vindicating the independence of our country against a nation which does not threaten it, must too probably consign your liberties to the care of a tyrant who has blotted every vestige of independence from the continent of Europe.

Having presented a temperate and respectful memorial to Congress, praying them to avert the evils of war without effect; it no longer becomes us to conceal our sentiments upon the causes and tendency of the present war. The time perhaps approaches, when like other minions of French power and influence, we shall be expected to observe a timid and profound silence upon the measures of
