—000000—

Peterburgh, June 20, 1812.

His Majesty the Emperor has ordered the following Proclamation to be published:

PROCLAMATION

Of the Emperor of Russia to his Subjects.

“The French Troops have passed the borders of our Empire; a complete treacherous attack is the reward for the observance of our alliance. For the preservation of peace I have exhausted every possible means, consistently with the honor of my Throne and the advantage of my people. All my endeavors have been in vain. The Emperor Napoleon has been resolved in his own mind to ruin Russia.—The most moderate proposals on our part have remained without answer. This sudden surprise has shewn, in an unequivocal manner, the groundlessness of his pacific promises, which he lately repeated. There remain, therefore, no further steps for me to take, but to have recourse to arms, and to employ all the means that have been granted me by Providence to use force against force. I place full confidence in the zeal of my people and the bravery of my Troops. As they are threatened in the midst of their families, they will defend them with their national bravery and energy. Providence will crown with success our just cause. The defence of our native country, the maintenance of our independence and national honor, have compelled us to have recourse to arms. I will not sheath my sword so long as there is a single enemy within my Imperial borders.

(Signed) ALEXANDER.”

Russian Grand Army Bulletin.

No. I.

H. Q. June 19. (July 1) 1812.

The French army appears to have divided itself into two corps, the one following our movements, and the other endeavoring to out-flank us on the right. The first corps of our army proceeds on its march according to the plan adopted, and has already effected its junction with various divisions. The enemy in reconnoitering us, has made attacks on several points, but has always been repulsed with loss. In one of these skirmishes, Count Delow Denizen, General-Adjutant to his Imperial Majesty, took several prisoners, among whom is Count Octavius Segar.

On the 18th the corps of Count Wittgenstein was between Wilkomic and Holtmeny. The corps of Lieutenant-General Tuttkow and Count Scherwaloff are approaching Swenzenny. General Platow has left Blalostock, and is drawing towards Wilcoka. Prince Bagration continues to approach the first corps.
