

are coming hither.

Lord Wellington found Ypres in the best state of defence. The grand head-quarters are expected to be fixed at Ath.

The work of Antwerp are prosecuted with great activity; 6000 laborers are employed in raising entrenchments before Courmayeur, 5000 before Mons, 3000 before Charleroi, and 3000 before Ypres.

Lord Wellington will have a meeting with Marshal Blucher, to arrange the grand military operations, between the Moselle and the North sea.

A new reinforcement of 10,000 men is arrived at Luxemburg. These troops will be cantoned opposite Longwy and Thionville.

DECLARATION OF LOUIS XVIII, KING OF FRANCE. Frankfort, (Germany) April 16.

Yesterday the King of France issued the following important DECLARATION:—

LOUIS, by the Grace of God, King of France and Navarre, to those of our dear children to whom these shall come

GREETING—

He who has deceived you for the last ten years is now come to deceive you again. Fifteen days have almost passed away since he seated himself by treachery on that throne to which your wishes always called me. Already does Europe know this, and already does she advance to dethrone him.

She advances Frenchmen! Her innumerable phalanxes will soon pass your frontiers;—but Europe is no longer your enemy; I have reconciled you to her. Henceforth you will behold in these strangers, otherwise formidable, no other than generous allies, who come to help you to throw off the yoke of oppression. All the soldiers of Europe march under the same banner, and is that of the lily. Broken down by age and by the misfortunes of the last twenty-five years, I cannot say to them, as my grandfather did, Rally under my white plume; but I shall follow them closely to the field of honor.

Frenchmen! It is the vain illusion of glory amongst you, which has led you astray. My arms are open to you—come and throw yourselves into them, and I shall forget that you ever quitted them. Frenchmen! who amongst you would wish to bear arms against me? I am not your enemy: I am your King; I am the brother of Louis XVI. I am come as Henry IV to attack and vanquish a new faction. I am come a second time to bring you peace and happiness. (Signed) LOUIS

Frankfort, April 15, 1815. And underneath—The Duke de FALBRE, Minister of War.

BRITISH DECLARATION.

The following declaration is attached to the ratification of the treaty of Vienna, of the 23rd of March 1815, by the British Prince Regent:—

Foreign Office, April 23.

The treaty of which the substance is above given has been ordered to be ratified, and it has been notified on the part of the Prince Regent to the high contracting parties, that it is His Royal Highness' determination acting in the name and on the behalf of his Majesty, to direct the said ratifications to be exchanged in due course, against similar acts on the part of the respective powers under an explanatory declaration of the following tenor, as to article 8th of the said Treaty:

DECLARATION.

The undersigned, on the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of the 22d of March last, on the part of his court is hereby commanded to declare that the 8th article of the treaty, wherein his most Christian Majesty is invited to accede under certain stipulations, it is to be understood as binding the contracting parties upon principles of mutual security to a common effort against the power of Napoleon Bonaparte in pursuance of the third article of the said treaty; but is not to be understood as binding his Britannic Majesty to prosecute the war, with a view of imposing on France any particular government.

However solicitous the Prince Regent may be to see his most Christian Majesty restored to the throne, and however anxious he is to contribute in conjunction with his allies, to so auspicious an event he nevertheless deems himself called to make this declaration, on the exchange of the ratifications, as well in consideration of what is due to his most Christian Majesty's interests in France as in conformity to the principles upon which the British government has invariably regulated its conduct.

The treaty was received in London on the 5th instant; the answer thereto was despatched to Vienna on the 8th. Authority and instructions have also been given to the Earl of Clancarty to sign a subsidiary engagement consequent upon the said treaty.

The King of Prussia has issued a second Proclamation, in the same determined and noble style as his first. It is as follows:—

Frederick William &c.—We think proper, under the present circumstances, to order as follow:

Treason and perjury have broken the last treaties which we had generously concluded after our glorious advantage; and the hope of a durable peace, has succeeded, by a strange perfidy, the necessity of an immediate contest.

Penetrated with gratitude for what my people did in the last struggle for its independence, for the cause of all Europe, I had proposed to exert all my efforts to preserve it as long as possible from a new war, even though I should have had to make the greatest sacrifices to attain this end.

This object has ceased to direct my conduct since it has become again a question to know whether such a baseless perfidy shall be followed by new conquests. The necessity of an arduous struggle becomes a new rallying point for all princes and nations. Those important considerations alone have made me resolve to order the military measures that are necessary, to act with the greatest vigor, and the application of which has been once already crowned, with the happiest success.

Here follows a decree in sixteen articles relative to the volunteers.

KINGSTON, JUNE 30, 1815.

COMMUNICATION.

The Inhabitants of Chippawa, deeming the Conduct of the Sixth Regiment of foot, as highly meritorious, whilst stationed here, proffer to the Regiment their sincere thanks, as an inadequate tribute due to so noble a Corps.

Chippawa, 19th June, 1815.

DIED, At Kingston, on the morning of the 27th of June, 1815, aged 33 years, Mrs. Mary Stuart, wife of Charles Stuart, Esq. Sheriff of the Midland District.

In the death of Mrs. Stuart, her family sustain the loss of an affectionate mother, and her husband survives to deplore the absence of a faithful and tender wife, who endured the languishing pains of a consumption with uncommon fortitude. The disease that terminated her existence, in the salient that it produced on her constitution, was in its progress slow, but in its nature obstinate and unyielding. Neither the aid of medicine nor the change of climate could be of any avail, and she fell a victim to a distemper that has slain an innumerable multitude. Possessed of the divine and comfortable hope inspired by Religion, she now inherits the reward of her virtues.—Communicated.
