

entire stranger to selfishness he studied only how to contribute to the happiness of others. He was extremely affable, vivacious and interesting in his conversation; and in his manners were united such modesty, dignity, delicacy and elegance, as are rarely found.— They were in the highest degree captivating, and showed the sweetness of his temper and the refinement of his education. To persons of every description he displayed the utmost complaisance, and absolutely stole the affections of all who knew him. Six months we had the pleasure of his society, and he has left so many agreeable impressions, and has done here so many acts of kindness, that his name will very long and very dearly be remembered amongst us.— Here he was well received; here every rice of hospitality was shown to him, and every exertion made to beguile him into an oblivion of his misfortunes. Delightful indeed is the recollection of those services, especially when it is considered that they were paid to one, on whose grateful heart no generosity was lost; and that they had the happy effect of soothing the last days of an unfortunate stranger and captive, an upright man, a kind and faithful friend, a most affectionate relation, and a BELOVED PHYSICIAN.

He left Portsmouth on the first of May, to join the fleet at Quebec, and on Sunday the eleventh as he was descending Lake Champlain, from Burlington to St. John's, the Packet Hdry, in which he had taken passage, was overtaken by a sudden squall, and immediately sunk. By the most mysterious and afflictive act of Providence, out of nineteen passengers nine were drowned; and among them was the amiable, the noble hearted, the excellent DUN. We forbear to moralize on their awful calamity. It preaches a more eloquent and solemn lesson, than we can find words to express. The deceased was extensively known and most dearly loved. Many hearts here most bitterly mourn his loss. We can sincerely sympathize with his friends in Scotland, and may this just, though feeble, tribute to the memory of so much departed worth, have a tendency to alleviate the distress, which they must suffer at the intelligence of his death.

Erie, Pa. June 7.

A channel has been formed by the rise of the lake across the upper end of the Peninsula. There is little doubt but in a short time it will be of sufficient depth to admit of large vessels passing through.

There has been various causes assigned for the extraordinary rise of the lake; none of them satisfactory. Without venturing to give an opinion, we will state a few facts that may be relied on, and may assist others in their researches. The lake every year rises from about the middle of April until the middle of July, with some variation, and falls in autumn. From 1795, until 1801, it remained about statu quo, excepting the annual rise and fall just mentioned. From 1801 until 1811, it fell about a foot; it was then lower than it had ever been known, by the oldest settlers. Since then it has risen about four feet. There are no visible marks of its ever having been higher than at present.

KINGSTON, JULY 18, 1815.

HORRID MURDER!!—Last evening, about sunset, a ship Carpenter at Point Frederick, by the name of Beaver, put an end to the life of his half sister, by shooting her through the left breast, while she was ironing at the table. We are told they had lived together, for some time in intimacy, by whom she had three children, and was about being married to another person; that he had been determined on taking her life, for which purpose, by his own confession, he loaded his pistol at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and waited till the shades of night should in some measure hide the horrid transaction above described. He is now in custody.

CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC
FORGERY of the above ten Dollar Bills having been discovered.

ed the same will be detected by comparing the genuine Bill with the forged note. On the forged Bill, in the word Exchange the letter G is placed before the N and after the word Forces, there is a Comma (thus,) instead of a full Stop (thus.) In the word Exchange at the top of the Margin the letter x is rounded (thus x) instead of (thus x) in the true Bill.

JAMES GREEN, Director.

We have seen a counterfeit Ten Dollar army Bill dated January 1815. It has been traced to Cornwall, in Upper Canada. Persons receiving Army Bills along the lines either in Upper or Lower Canada, or Bills coming from thence, cannot be too cautious in examining them. All the counterfeits that we have seen of any denomination of Army Bills, may be readily detected by comparing them with a true bill.
