POETRY.
The excellent moral of the following verses, amply compensate for any want of poetical merit.

THE WAY TO BE HAPPY.
SOME think it a hardship to work for their bread,
Although for our good it was meant,
But those who don't work have no right to be fed,
And the idle are never content.
An honest employment brings pleasure and gain,
And makes us our troubles forget,
For those who work hard have no time to complain,
And it's better to labor than fret.
And if they had riches they could not procure,
A happy and peaceable mind;
Rich people have trouble as well as the poor
Although of a different kind.
It signifies not what our stations have been,
Nor whether we're little or grate,
For happiness lies in the temper within
And not in the outward estate.
We only need labour as hard as we can,
For all that our bodies may need;
Still doing our duty to God and to man,
And we shall be happy indeed.

VARIETY.
NEW COLONY.
It has long been known that the mutineers of the Bounty settled in Pitcairn's Island, 25 degrees, S. lat. and 180 W. long. and their progeny was lately visited by an American and British vessel. A son of Christian's was the first born on the island, and is now about 25 years of age, (named Thursday Oct. Christian;) the elder Christian fell a sacrifice to the jealousy of an Otaheitan man, within three or four years after their arrival on the island. They were accompanied by six Otaheitan men and twelve women; the former were all swept away by desperate contentions, between them & the Englishmen, & five of the latter have died at different periods, leaving at present only one man & several women of the original settlers. It contains abundance of yams, plants, hogs, goats and fowls; but affords no shelter for a ship or vessel of any description; neither could a ship water there without great difficulty, as the island is completely surrounded with rocky shores. Being assured that the visit was of a peaceable nature, it is impossible to describe the joy these poor people manifested on seeing those they were pleased to consider as their countrymen. This interesting new colony consisted of forty six persons, mostly grown up young people, besides a number of infants. The young men born on the island, are very athletic, and of the finest forms, their countenances open and pleasing; but the young women were peculiar objects of admiration; tall, robust and beautifully formed, their faces bearing with smiles and untroubled good humor. The clothing of the young females consisted of a piece of linen, reaching from the waist to the knees, and generally a sort of mantle thrown loosely over the shoulders, and hanging as low as the ankles. They sometimes wreath caps or bonnets for the head to protect the face from the rays of the sun. Their private modesty, assisted by a proper sense of religion and morality instilled into their youthful minds by John Adams, the last survivor, has hitherto preserved these interesting people perfectly chaste, and free from all kinds of debauchery. Their habitations are extremely neat. The little village of Pitcairn forms a pretty square, the houses at the upper end of which are occupied by the patriarch, John Adams and his family, consisting of his old blind wife and three daughters, from 15 to 16 years of age, and a boy of 11; a daughter of his wife by a former husband, and a son in law. On the opposite side is the dwelling of Thursday October Christian; and in the centre is a smooth verdant lawn, on which the poultry are let loose, fenced in so as to prevent the intrusion of the domestic quadrupeds. All that was done, was obviously undertaken on a settled plan, unlike to any to be met with in the other islands. In their houses, too, they had a good deal of decent furniture, consisting of beds laid upon bedsteads, with neat covering; they had also tables and large chests to contain their valuables and clothing, which is made from the bark of a certain tree, prepared chiefly by the elder Otaheitan females. Adams's house consisted of two rooms, and the windows had shutters to pull to at night. The younger part of the sex are, as before stated, employed with their brothers, under the direction of their common father, Adams, in the culture of the ground, which produced cocoa nuts, bananas, the bread fruit tree, yams, sweet potatoes and turnips. They have also a plenty of hogs and goats; the woods abound with a species of wild hog, and the coasts of the island with several kinds of good fish. Their agricultural implements are made by themselves from the iron supplied by the Bounty, which, with great labor, they beat out into spades, hatchets, &c.

PAVILLION AMUSEMENT.
“A gallant Admiral, residing at the Pavillion, was a few days since, presented by a certain great personage, with a beautiful milk-white mare, which it was stated, had just arrived from Hanover—Nothing was talked of but this fine creature; and every one seemed anxious to have her merits put to the test—The Admiral mounted, tried her in all her paces, and though he could but approve, yet he pronounced her to be greatly inferior to a favorite black mare of his own. The present, however, coming from to high a quarter, was of course received with every expression of duty and thankfulness. The long switching tail of the animal, not exactly suiting the Admiral's taste, he sent her to a farrier to have it cropped—when lo! he speedily received intelligence that it was a false tail, and that, beneath it, appeared a short black one.—This curious fact led to a minute inspection, when it was at length discovered, that this beautiful white Hanoverian horse, was no other than the good humoured Admiral's own black mare, which had been painted in a manner to elude his detection.

Life lengthened by improvement of Time.
Dr. Doddridge who lived so much longer, that is to say to so much better purpose in fifty years than most men do in a much greater space of time, mentions his practice of rising early as the means by which he was enabled to produce his Family Expositor and other publications—In a note on Rom. xiii. 13 he says;—“I will here record the observation which I have found of greater use to myself, and to which I may say, that the production of this work and most of my other writings is owing, viz. That the difference between rising at five and at seven of the clock in the morning, for the space of forty years supposing a man to go to bed at the same hour at night is nearly equivalent to the addition of ten years to a man's life, of which, (supposing the two hours in question to be spent eight hours every day should be employed in study and devotion.”

Waterloo Bravery.—Among the recent Gazette appointments is that of Sergeant Ewart to an ensigncy in the 3d royal veteran battalion, for his gallant conduct at the battle of Waterloo. In the afternoon of that eventful day, the 92d regiment reduced to 200, charged a column of the enemy, from 2000 to 3000 strong; they broke into the centre of the column, and the moment they pierced it the Scotch Greys dashed into their support, when both these gallant corps cheered and huzzaed, “Scotland forever!” The enemy to a man were put to flight. The Greys afterwards charged the second line, which amounted to nearly 5000 men. It was in the first that Sergeant Ewart captured a French eagle; the affair is thus modestly detailed by himself:—“I had a hard contest for it: the officer who carried it thrust for my groin; I parried it off and cut him through the head; after which I was attacked by one of the lancers, who threw his lance at me; but missed the mark by my throwing it off with my sword by my right side: then I cut him from the chin upwards, which went through his teeth.—Next I was attacked by a foot soldier, who, after firing charged me with the bayonet, but I parried it off, and afterwards cut him through the head; so that finished the contest for the eagle.”

QUEBEC, JUNE 21. CAUTION.
On Saturday last the 15th instant, two men returning from Montreal, as they were passing along the river near St. Sulpice, eat some hemlock which they mistook for another plant usually eaten in this country. In an hour and a half after, they were both dead. One of them belongs to Berthier, District of Montreal; his name is Baptiste Lavalliere: he has left a wife and eight young children. He was about 36 years of age and a man of very good character. The other is from St. Cuthbert, and was married about a month before the accident. Gazette.

Six spots are at present visible on the sun's disk.—One of them is of considerable magnitude, and resembles a cluster of islands, situated very near to each other. Its breadth is at least equal to the diameter of the earth. Another of them is very dark, and surrounded by an umbra, or fainter shade.—London pap.

A new publication, with the following title, is advertised in the latest London papers viz: POMES ON HIS OWN DOMESTIC CIRCUMSTANCES, in which are added five others. By the Rt. Hon. Lord Eyrno.
