FOR THE KINGSTON GAZETTE.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE PRO- VINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

The British Constitution, which is epitomised in that of this Province, permits a private subject to propose to the Legislature any measure of Legislation which he thinks conducive to the public good, and to offer his reasons in support of his proposition. This he may do by way of Petition, or through the medium of a public Gazette. I shall make no apology for exercising this constitutional privilege in the latter form.

The laws of England respecting property and civil rights generally were adopted by an early Statute of the Province. But some parts of the English laws are not, and cannot, at present, be executed here, for want of the proper organs for their execution. Our Provincial code is, therefore, defective in several very important respects. A Court of Chancery, for instance, is an essential branch of the system of the mother country. But no Chancery is yet established in this Province. Here is a great defect. Mortgages fall within the jurisdiction of Chancery. At law a mortgage can, immediately after the execution of the mortgage, sustain an ejectment for the mortgaged premises, unless prevented by a restrictive clause in the deed; and, upon the breach of the condition, by the non-payment of the money, or the non-performance of the act conditioned for, the estate becomes absolute in the mortgagee. The mortgagor's right to redeem is only an equitable right, cognizable in Chancery. And the foreclosure of this equitable right of redemption is effected by a decree in Chancery. For want of a Court of Chancery, therefore, the due administration of mortgages is not provided for in this Province. As there seems to be no probability of the introduction of a Chancery very soon among us, I take the liberty to recommend to your consideration, whether it is not expedient to give the Court of King's Bench jurisdiction of mortgages, by authorising it to sus-tain a special action of ejectment on mortgage, and to render a conditional judgment, that the mortgagor pay the sum ascertained by the Court to be equitably due, within sixty days, or some other limited time, and that, in default of such payment, the Plaintiff, the mortgagee, be entitled to his writ of seizure or possession, as the mortgage may happen to be of a fee or a term of years; by virtue of which writ the Sheriff shall put him into possession of the mortgaged premises; still reserving to the mortgagor a right to redeem and recover both the premises by paying the debt within one, two or three years, or any other suitable term of limitation; and enacting, that the actual posses-ion of the mortgaged premises for that term, either under a judgment of the Court, or by voluntary surrender of the mortgagor, shall operate as a bar to the right of redemption, and a satisfaction of the debt. If deemed more equitable, the Court might be authorised, at the request of either party, to order that the mortgaged premises be sold at public auction, and that if the proceeds of the sale should fall short of the debt, they should be a satisfaction for so much only as their amount; and if they should exceed the debt, the surplus should be paid over to the mortgagor. It is submitted to your candid consideration, whether this, or some similar provision, might not be a safe and simple substitute for the jurisdiction of a Court of Chancery, so far as relates to the subject of mortgages.

The guardianship of minors is in some measure under the direction of the Court of Chancery. While a father lives, he is the natural guardian of his children. By a British Statute, in force in this Province, he may in his will appoint a guardian for them after his death, during their minority. But a person under the age of twenty one years, without either father or testamentary guardian, in this country is destitute of such legal protection, as his age and state seem to require. Incapable of forming contracts, except for necessities, he is disqualified by law for the management of his own estate and concerns. And he is not provided with any certain, responsible guardian, to act in his behalf. As a remedy for this evil, to which a valuable portion of the inhabitants of the Province are subject, why might not the Judges of the Surrogate Courts, in their respective Districts, be authorised to appoint guardians for infants under the age of fourteen years, and to allow guardians elected by minors of fourteen years, giving them when thus appointed or elected and allowed, the care of the persons, contracts and estates of their wards, and requiring them before acting in that capacity, to become bound, with sufficient sureties, at the discretion of the Surrogates, for the faithful execution of their trust, and for accounting with their wards at the expiration of their terms of guardianship?

The Judges of the existing Surrogate Courts, having cognizance already of the Probate of Wills, and the administration of intestate estates, seem to be the most proper organs of government to be charged with the appointment of guardians. Their powers and duties, when so appointed, ought to be defined in the Statute; but the superintendance of their conduct, and the settlement of their accounts should be left to the Surrogate Judges.

These hints are respectfully submitted to the candor of those, to whom they are addressed. CAMDEN.

On Monday last Maj. General Wilson minutely inspected the 70th Regt. commanded by Lieut. Colonel Evans, on the common near the town.

From the long residence of this corps in Kingston, and the friendly intimacy which has subsisted between the civilians and officers belonging to it, added to the orderly and respectable department of the non-commissioned officers and privates, occasioned us to feel the highest gratification on observing the strong impression which their soldierlike appearance and masterly movements, made on the numerous spectators, and which we have no doubt has been expressed in a manner more gratifying to them as soldiers, by the superior officers of their own profession

The paragraph published in our last week's Gazette, under the head of "Massacre in Ireland," is contradicted in a late New-York paper; and there is every reason to suppose, that no such massacre ever took place.

His Excellency Lieutenant Governor FRANCIS GORE, arrived in town this day at half past one o'clock, from his tour to the Lower Province.

LITERARY NOTICE.

WEBSTERS AND SKINNERS, of Albany, are about issuing proposals for printing by subscription, a new work, entitled

Sketches of Upper Canada, with a Map of the Province; and a topographical and historical description of the battles fought during the late war, within and near its limits. This work will contain about 300 pages Octavo; and will be handsomely printed, bound and lettered. Price to subcribers two dollars and fifty cents.

These Sketches were prepared for the press in 1811; but the publication being delayed until the commencement of hostilities between Great Britain and the United States, was suspended during the war. Since the return of peace, they have been revised, and brought down to the present time.

The following extract of a letter, from a gentleman of learning and respectability, who has perused the work, will give the reader a very correct outline of its contents.

"I have attentively perused the manuscript. It consists of 33 sketches or chapters. The first contains a history of the province; which is neither so prolix as to be tedious, nor so compendious as to be obscure; but takes a comprehensive view of the most important revolutions and public occurrences, from the settlement of Canada, down to the administration of the present lieutenant governor. The battles and military operations of the late war, are concisely and impartially related, not in the order of their time, but in connection with the various places within and near the limits of the province, where they respectively occurred. This topographical manner of representation has some advantages over a chronological narration, especially in a work comprising other objects than mere history.
The third points out the natural divisions.
The fourth describes the lakes, rivers, ca-taraets, bays and harbors. The description of the river and falls of Niagara, and the battles of Lake Erie, Fort Erie, Chippewa, Lundy's Lane, Queenston, Fort George, Niagara, &c. is highly interesting. The fifth sketch contains the civil divisions of the province into districts, counties, towns and townships, concessions and lots. In the sixth, the actual settlements are described. The seventh contains an estimate of the population.
The eighth is on the climate, winds, &c.
The ninth shows the state of the water.
The tenth treats of the soil, stones, minerals, &c. The eleventh states the productions, natural and cultivated. The twelfth gives a list and description of the domestic animals. The thirteenth, the fourteenth, the fifteenth, the sixteenth, the seventeenth, the eighteenth, the nineteenth,
