

ment must necessarily have produced a salutary effect on the higher ranks of society. Her example must have corrected the vices of the day. As a Princess, she was dignified, but affable; as a wife, affectionate and exemplary. She was kind to the poor. She was a strict attendant on public worship, and her Sundays, after the hours of church, were passed in reading the best English sermons. A few hours before her death, she had every prospect of giving birth to a future sovereign of these realms. That hope was blasted by the death of the infant—her constitution gave way—she resigned herself to God and expired.

AMELIA ISLAND.

A Message, accompanied by sundry documents, was received from the President of the United States, communicating to Congress the fact of the United States' Forces having taken possession of Amelia Island.

A letter dated at St. Mary's on the 27th ult. notices the arrival of General Gaines at Fernandina, & adds, "Last evening a quarrel occurred there, between one of our officers and some of the Patriot officers, and this day, at 10 o'clock, martial law was proclaimed."

Death of the new Dey of Algiers.

In one of our late London papers, we find an article under the Leghorn date of Oct. 6, stating that Sir Robert Gemin, Commander of the E. corvette Myrmidon, who had arrived there from Mahon, had brought the following news:—"The English Consul at Mahon, has received from the Consul of the same nation at Algiers official news of the death of the Dey on the 18th Sept. This event resulted from the entrance of a Hamburg prize into the port. The English Consul demanded that it should be restored, but the Dey having refused, all the Consuls draw up an energetic protest, threatening to depart. This gave rise to a popular commotion. The Dey retired to the Palace, but was attacked by the people, and itangled. The new Dey was formerly a shoemaker. He shews a pacific disposition and has already offered to put the town of Bonaparte into the hands of the English. It is not known whether this offer will be accepted. The town is quiet, and the Consuls are respected."

Affecting Anecdote.

A young lady, named d'Aumont, was executed in the city of Lyons, for the supposed murder of her uncle, the Chevalier de la Poulouze, with whom she lived in the most affectionate harmony from her infant years. Having conceived a passion for a deservng young officer, who was quartered in the town, and between whom and the young lady a mutual passion subsisted, she came to a determination of eloping with him unknown to her uncle, and only admitted one female servant to her chamber. It unfortunately happened that this woman was leagued with a private soldier, who meditated the plan of murdering the chevalier, with a view of plundering the house on the night the intended elopement should take place, in order that the unhappy niece should be judged the perpetrator of the horrid deed, which was accordingly effected with every species of barbarity. The young lady and the officer were immediately pursued, taken, and committed to prison. The former was tried and executed under the false evidence of the female servant; and the latter was cashiered and condemned to the galleys for life.

Some time after, the servant being taken ill, threatened to divulge the whole matter before a magistrate; to prevent which, the soldier who had married her, put an end to his wife's existence; but at length feeling sincere remorse for these repeated murders, he voluntarily surrendered himself up to justice, confessed the whole affair, and was publicly executed, amidst the execrations of the enraged multitude.

What adds to the dreadful recital is, that the young lady was not less remarkable for her beauty, than her unblemished piety and sweet simplicity of manners. A broken heart soon terminated the miserable existence of the wretched officer, who died in six weeks after the execution of the most amiable soldier, in the most excruciating tortures. KINGSTON: TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1818.

From the Montreal Herald, Communication.

Mr Editor, Sir, That the generosity and benevolent disposition of all the old and young wealthy settlers, and all other well disposed people in Canada, are well known, by many benevolent acts of charity in both provinces: a number of societies have been established for the relief of the poor, the destitute, and the afflicted stranger. But seldom, I hope, have they ever met with such an object of charity, as James Anderson, a native of Breadalbane, North Britain. He was amongst the emigrants of last year, and in search of a lot of land he proposed to settle on, at the time of the first fall of snow, which happened rather early last year, he separated himself from his companions, lost his way in the wild forest, and from Saturday about noon, until the Thursday following, he wandered in the woods, destitute of victuals, and unsheltered from the cold and snow, until at length he found his way to a house, where he arrived without shoes or stockings, and all his clothes torn, his hands and feet frozen, and nearly deprived of his earthly existence. This unfortunate person is of sober, sensible, and industrious habits, was a mason by trade in principle, and excellent in his craft; and came to Canada with the intention of proving to be a true British subject, and a useful member of society. But, behold, not long since, both his legs had to be cut off near the knee. His poor wife, an excellent woman and four young children very much deplore the helpless state of their protector, and to add to the misfortune, he spent his all in coming to Canada, and has nothing wherewith to maintain his family: although, by the kind exertions of a good Doctor, he is recovering his health. This poor man and his destitute family deserve the notice of a generous public; and who at present reside at Williamstown, county of Glengary, U. C. where himself, the Town Warden, or any other person there, will receive with thankfulness any thing the charitably disposed may send for his use. Jan. 1, 1818. A North Briton.

Accounts from England are not of a latter date than when we published last week.

We find that the medical Gentlemen who attended the much lamented Princess Charlotte at her accouchement, are much blamed; it is alleged, that, if the life of the infant in the womb had not been spared so long, that of the mother might have been saved; the Queen too is blamed for not being present on this occasion.—A number of married Ladies to whom the circumstances of this most critical case had been explained, declared, it is said, that if some of them had been there, the business would have been finished less tragically. Montreal Gaz.

When it was known at Cuba, that the Government of the U. States had taken possession of Amelia Island, it is reported, that from one to two hundred American vessels were stopped there, and some of them immediately dispatched from the Havana, to demand of the commanding officer, whether he intended to occupy the Island as friends or foes. An officer also from St. Augustine had arrived on the same errand; it is not said what answer was returned. If this be true, and nothing can be more propable, it is easy to see the seeds of a rupture between the U. States and Spain. ib.

Afflictive Mortality.—It is stated in the Delaware Gazette, that the ship April, Capt. —, which lately arrived at New Castle, shipped at Amterdam, Eleven hundred Dutch Passengers; and this, on her arrival in the Delaware, she had lost five hundred by disease. Among the survivors are many of poor Orphans, who have lost both parents on the voyage, and who are left in the most destitute and miserable situation. One family of orphans is particularly mentioned, consisting of five children, the youngest of whom is not three years old.

Southern Rumour.—"We stop the press," says the Savannah Republican of the 6th instant "to announce, that news has just reached town, that Amelia Id. has been given up, by the United States, to the Patriots. We give the report as we received it."

This rumour is undoubtedly incorrect. The President has just announced to Congress the surrender of that Island to the United States troops under the direction of Government.

He has given no intimation of any intention to restore the Island to the Patriots; and surely the commanding officer there would not adopt such a measure without the authority of the Executive.

NEW-YORK, JANUARY 19. Latest from Amelia Island.

By the arrival, last evening, of the sch. Revenge, capt. Aikins, in 7 days from St. Mary's, we learn that Commodore Aary, with part of his forces, had left the Island in one of the prize vessels. It was reported that he was fitting out an expedition, consisting of the brig Mexican Congress, Republican, (formerly the Margiana) America Free, and four schooners, with all his patriotic troops; their destination unknown.

Spontaneous Reward.—"An article in the Newspapers of the day," says the National Intelligencer, "states that JOSEPH BONAPARTE has offered Two Millions of Dollars for the liberation of his brother from St. Helena."

From the Philadelphia Gazette. The Power of Habit.

Mr Paulson—Observing in a late Newspaper, an article under that head, stating the circumstance of the Mail stage Horses at New-York, brought to my mind a circumstance equally forcible, of the power of habit.—An elderly gentleman in New-England, accustomed to attend meetings, had a horse on which he had rode, (perhaps every sabbath) from a colt. In the spring of the year when the horse had been laboriously employed in ploughing, his owner thought he would give him a day of rest, and walked to the meeting, about one mile and a half, leaving the horse in the pasture.—When the horses of the neighbour, with whom he was accustomed to go to meeting, came by, he jumped out of his pasture, came to his post at the meeting-house door, and there stood from 10 A. M. until 3 P. M. without moving a step—when his owner took him, and having procured bridle and saddle, rode him home. Perhaps were children like this horse, accustomed from their youth, every sabbath, to attend public worship of some kind, they would not, when older, suffer trivial occurrences to keep them at home. The writer of this saw the horse when he passed to the meeting, and all the time he was there, and lent his owner the saddle and bridle with which he rode home.

Beware of Mad Dogs.—Two persons have been bitten by two different Mad Dogs in this city the past week.

Successful and novel speculation.—We have it from good authority, that a gentleman in New-York shipped 15,000 bbls. of apples to Europe last fall; and that they sold at Liverpool at an average price of three guineas per bbl.

The National Intelligencer positively contradicts the rumour, that the British minister has remonstrated against the transfer of East Florida to the United States.

The population of St. Petersburg is stated at 285,500. The site of this Town was an uninhabited morass in 1703. N. York Courant.

APHORISMS.

Avoid the eye that discovers the bad and is slow to see the good. He must be a man of worth who is not forsaken by the good, when the mean and malicious unite to oppress him. He who becomes every day more sagacious in observing his own faults, and the perfections of another, without even envying him or despairing of himself, is ready to mount the ladder on which angels ascend and descend.

Number among the worst enemies, the hawk of malicious rumours and unexplored anecdotes.

An artful woman may be able to govern a weak and narrow minded husband; but she will never be able to procure the esteem and attachment of a man of sense.

True happiness is of a retired nature and an enemy to pomp.

There is generally no creature more impudent than a coward.

The province of wisdom is not to lament over our wrongs. It is to find out their remedy. Querulous complaint is worthy only of the infancy of understanding.

DIED.

On the evening of the 23d Dec. last, at Cincinnati, Miss Elvira Cooper, the daughter of Wm. Lemon, Esq. of that town. The time and manner of this young lady's decease, were peculiarly awful and afflicting. It was to have been her wedding night; she had retired to her room to dress, apparently in perfect health, and in less than fifteen minutes she was discovered to be corpse by her sister, who entered the room to assist her in dressing. By this time the friends had begun to assemble to witness the nuptial ceremony; but, alas! how changed the scene. She was a woman of delicate frame, and it is supposed her sudden death was occasioned by fainting in a cold room; that her blood chilled and stagnated before any relief could be afforded. It is probable that if any person had been in the room with her, she might have been revived.

The London Traveller of the 7th (late) with deep regret, that the fever still continues to spread its ravages in Ireland. From Cork and Derry, the reports are particularly alarming. The Hospitals are crowded and the exterior patients numerous in all ranks, the most respectable not excepted.
