FOR THE KINGSTON GAZETTE.

Mr. GOURLAY's Letter continued from our last. You would see from the News-papers, how well every thing went on in the Midland District; so I need say nothing of my second visit to Ernest Town. In the Johnstown & Eastern Districts, there was still something to be done, and nine days remained free for exertion. I knew the people were for us: I knew that several meetings had been held and business done in some of them; but, from novelty and ignorance, it was also evident that the Devil, the Priest of Augusta, and the Lawyers, would be too much for the people unassisted. I therefore fixed upon measures for the occasion, and succeeded beyond my utmost expectation. I got under weigh with a plentiful supply of Printer's ammunition, on the afternoon of the 18th ult. having along with me a truly veteran, who had volunteered his services. Our ammunition consisted of 700 large placards, bearing the record of transactions in the Midland District, together with a short address, which I conceived warrantable by the damageable outrages at Cornwall, and elsewhere. Besides these I had as many small hand bills of invitation to inhabitants of Townships, with blank spaces for the insertion of places, and times of meeting. We reached the centre of Elizabethtown, by the 20th, and having reconnoitred on both sides, by the way, and collected some auxiliaries; the plans of operation were quickly formed, — the blanks filled up, and every man's destiny decreed. My veteran was despatched as far as Glengary, and being matter of the Dutch language, found that Cryser and Van Koughnet, did not lead their countrymen by the nose so purely as I had imagined: he also found that my Countrymen in Lancaster and Charlottenburgh, were getting wide awake; and, that even in Cornwall, the enemy was weak and losing ground daily. While the Hand-bills were circulating, I made an excursion to the new Perth settlement, which I had most minutely examined twelve months ago—a settlement on which government has expended a vast deal of money, with little consideration, either for the true happiness of the people, or the ultimate object in view. On the 22d, I met the people of Kitley: on the 23d, those of Balfour, and the rear of Leeds & Lands-down: on the 24th those of Youngs, front and rear; and on the morning of the 25th was with my friends of Augusta. Here I found the following printed bill stuck up. MR. JONES, MEMBER FOR THE COUNTY OF GRENVILLE. Requests the good and loyal inhabitants of the Township of Augusta, to meet him at Mr. Isaac Hard's Inn, in Augusta, at NINE o'clock, in the morning of THURSDAY next, at which time and place he pledges himself to offer good reasons for not signing the proposed Petition of Mr. GOURLAY, to the PRINCE REGENT. Augusta, June 23, 1818. The people here listened to me for nearly three hours, with such attention, and I had the satisfaction to think that the great majority of them were well satisfied. Mr. Jones followed me in speaking and reading a Petition to the Assembly of Upper Canada; but I heard no good reasons given against ours. You must remember how much I pressed every one to join me in petitioning the Assembly while it was sitting; but now we know not when it is to sit. I told the people of Augusta that they might fairly sign both Petitions;—that ours might have a reply from England in 4 or 5 months; while that from Mr. Jones was not likely to be heard even in Upper Canada, for twice that period. My time being expired, I had to hurry off for Johnston, having a promise from some of the people that they would go on with our business. The Lawyer and Priest however occupied the people's attention with signing the Petition to the Assembly, &c. till the meeting gradually dispersed without taking measures according to our recommendations; and I was told that many who were most zealous in getting signatures to Mr. Jones's petition, stuffed with grievances, were those who had most loudly vociferated against that to the Prince Regent, on the plea that there were no grievances to redress. At Johnston a new scene was exhibited. I had just entered the Inn Yard, and was watering my horse with a bucket by the well, when a person assailed me from behind, and pushing forward one of the large placards, asked me if I was the author of it, which I immediately acknowledged. Before I could get rid of the bucket, several blows were made at me with a stick, and, on turning round, I found myself in the midst of about half a dozen people struggling on all sides. Getting out of the riot as quickly as possible, and, strange to say, without hurt, I called upon those who might know the characters engaged (for, totally ignorant of all present, I could not distinguish friends from foes) to endeavor to keep the peace, but in vain. The fighting party tumbled about, got into the House, continued some time in the hall, and finally in one of the rooms. I was informed that the person who had first struck me was Duncan Fraser, Justice of the Peace; and I was most happy to observe that though he, and those in his party, were totally insensible of the outrage against the law and decency, that the mass of the people could behave like men, and breathe true British sentiments. "If there is any thing wrong," said they, "I have not we the law to decide?"—"Come let the man speak for himself"—"Let us hear what he has to say", and so forth; in compliance with which we got into a high place, and I began, as usual, to
