KINGSTON

CHRONICLE.

NEC REGE, NEC POPULO, SED UTROQUE.

VOL X.

SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1829.

ENGLAND

HOUSE OF LORDS. CATHOLIC RELIEF BILL.

The Duke of Weilington moved the order of the day for the second reading of the Bill to relieve Roman Catholics from certain civil disabilities.

The Order having been read, my duty to move your Lordships to read this Bill a second time, and to explain to your Lordships the grounds on which I recombe under the necessity of requesting a lar-not venture to recommend to him to incur we must have looked—these are the means are not in the Act of William III.—they are people? or by a disunited Government, a did, would not the Church of England rise in order to enable the Government to meet the risks of an election in another part of the to which we must have applied, in order to in the Act of 30th Charles II. During the disunited Parliament, or a disunited people against such an attempt on the part of his the danger; and I am confident, my Lords, country, and the risks which might have at- have put an end to this state of things, if we reign of Charles II. there were certain oaths ple? (Hear, hear.) country, and the clearly and the lit shall meet your Lordships support and tended any accident at the election, which had not made the option of bringing forward tended any accident at the election, which had not made the option of bringing forward to some security at that on such an occasion, as well as on this, the security at the country at the c tended any accident at the election, which I say I am responsi might have occasioned the shedding of blood.

Such a disaster must have been productive of

was no resistance to the law. The magis- (Hear, hear, My Lords, I am sure there is trates were terrified, and did nothing; the not a man who hears me, whose blood would troops did not happen immediately to be up- not shudder at such a proposition if it were on the spot, and there was no resistance .- | made to him; and yet that is the resource to The Duke of Wellington said-It it is now There were no troops except in the case of which we should be pushed at last, by conthe procession that went to the North of Ire- tinuing the course we have been adoptland. I believe there was no instance of any | ing for the last few years. However, I opposition to the King's troops, and there was entreat your Lordships not to look at it mend this measure to your attention.- I may no instance in which the law could be carried in this view, but let us revert a little to into execution. When we hear Noble Lords | what passed on a former similar occasion .ger portion of your time and attention upon reproaching the Government for not carrying My Lords, I am old enough to remember Lords, this is the state of society to which I the country to which I was attached, I would is to be taken by a Member of Parliament. England; and the Protestants of both counwished to draw your attention, and for which sacrifice my life in order to do it.—(Cheers.) I beg your Lordships will observe that, al-

not only was that the case, my Lords, but I by resistance to the Government-if it is so confess that I had the strongest objection to | bad in the case I have stated, and so much to cher triumph to the Roman Catholic be avoided-how much more is it to be aassociation. Then we are told, why don't | voided when we are to arm the people in oryou carry the law into execution? Why, my | der that we may conquer one part of them Lords, in all that I have stated hitherto there by exciting the other part against them?-

an immediate civil war in the country; but If civil war is so bad, when it is occasioned 25th Charles II. At trust, will tend so much to the peace and to this country, I must say that, on the point the period of he revolution, when King tranquility of the country. Having thus, also, there are great objections. I do not William came, he thought proper to extend my Lords, shown the necessity for some see how it wou'd be possible, nor do I think the basis of his Government, and he repealed | change in the system of Government, I shall | it necessary to make the attempt at present the oaths affecting the Dissenters from the | tow proceed briefly to state the general pro- to watch over all such correspondence. It Church of England, imposed by the 13th visions of the Bill. The Bill in itself is ve- turns, no doubt, solely on spiritual affairs. and 14th Charles II., and likewise that per- ry specific and comprehensive. It concedes But if the Pope's autho ity is recognized in manent part of the oath of supremacy, which to the Roman Catholics every office of the any way, and particularly as to making laws Dissenters from the Church of England State unconnected with the administration for the Church of Ireland, then that security could not take- That is the history of the of the affairs of the Church. (Hear, hear, goes again. It would be found quite imposalteration of these oaths by William III., hear.) It also concedes to them seats in Par- sible to prevent it, and by making the atfrom the time of Charles II. But, my Lords, liament, and many other offices and situa- tempt I am convinced that we should be dothe remainder of the oath could be taken by liens from which they had formerly been de- ing more harm to the constitution and the Dissenters, but could not be taken by Rom- barred. This measure is much more liberal established church than by allowing the an Catholics. The danger, with respect to and complete than any which has yet been Catholics to carry on their correspondence Roman Catholics, had originated in the time proposed; and I will tell your Lordships why as they had hitherto done. That corresponof Charles II., and these oaths still existed I have now recommenced such concessions. dence is avowed by them as relating to reliin the time of William III., but the oath was On considering the subject maturely, I could | gious matters; but if this indulgence is abusthis occasion than I have hitherto been in into execution the law in Ireland, as it was the rebellion in 1798. I was not employed altered because one of the great principles not fail seeing the consequences resulting ed, and the conduct of any of the parties the habit of doing; but I assure you, my carried into execution in England, the ob- in Ireland at the time-I was employed in of the revolution was to limit the exclusion from the imperfect Acts of 1782 and 1793, should render the interference of govern-Lords, that it is not my intention to take up servation shows that they don't understand nother part of the constitution as far as for the relief of the Catholics. I have seen ment necessary, I shall come down to the an instant of your time with respect to my- the state of things in Ireland. The truth of Lords, if I am not mistaken, the Parliament it was possible.—Therefore we have the prin- that, when there was any restrictions in the house, and claim additional power to ensure self, or my own conduct in this transaction, the matter is, that in England, when the law of Ireland at that time walked up to my ciple of the revolution, as well as the princiany further than to express my regret that I was carried into execution in the year 1819, Lord Lieutenant with a unanimous Address, ple I before stated, which consisted of the courage them to rise in their demands, and to satisfactory to the house and the country should differ in opinion in this subject from a large body of persons assembled for an ilie- beseeching his Excellency to take every bill of rights and, liberties of the subject .- arm them with fresh power to enforce these Hear). Another part of the bill relates to so many of those for whom I entertain the gal purpose; they resisted the order of the means to put down that unnatural rebellion, Now the noble lords state that what they demands. I have, therefore thought it my the Jesuits. An act was passed against that highest respect and regard. However, my Magistrates to disperse, and having resisted and promising their full support in order to call the principles of 1688, that is to say, duty to make the concession as large as any body in 1791, and which was probably Lords, I must say that I have considered the that order, the Magistrates ordered the troops carry that measure into execution.—The these oaths excluding Roman Catholics—are reasonable man could expect—to leave noth- thought at the time as secure as any law part which I have taken upon this subject as to disperse them; but in this case there were Lord Lieutenant did take those measures, equally permanent with the bill of rights, ing behind which could form a pretence for could be on the subject. I do not mean to the performance of a public duty absolutely no circumstances of the same kind, no order and did succeed in putting down that rebel- by which the Protestantism of the crown is fresh demands, or for disturbing the peace impute any blame to the noble Lord who incumbent upon me; and I must say that no was given to disperse; no order could be giv- lion. Well, my Lord, what happened in secured. If they will do me the favor to or tranquility of the country. The conced- framed that bill, but every one knows that private regard, no respect for the opinion of en to disperse, because no Magistrates were the very next Session? The government look at the words of the act, they will see ing to them the right of sitting in Parliament it has been with at effect, and that not only any Noble Lord, would have induced me to present; and if they had been present, there proposed to put an end to the Parliament, and that the difference be- I do not conceive can be objected to on any in Ireland, but in this country, large estabdepart from the course which I have conside were no troops to disperse. The truth is, to form a Legislative Union between the tween that which is permanent and that good grounds of policy or reason. It cannot lishments have spring up, notwithstanding ered it my duty to adopt. I must say like the state of society was such as rendered these wise this, that, comparing my own opinion with that of others, upon this subject, I have, possible the magistrates could be at every in point of fact, the very first measure that during the period I have been in office, had spot, and at all times, to put an end to these was proposed after this Legislative Union, ever; but as for these oaths, they are enact- lected that when the Act of the 30th of pressing hard on any individual. No one, opportunities of forming a judgment upon this outrages, which really are a disgrace to the after those successful endeavours to put ed in exclusive words, and there is not one Charles II., and the other Act at the period my lords, would more reluctantly than mysubject which others have not had; and they country in which they exist. But, my Lords, down this rebellion was the very me sure word of a contrary import. Well, then, my of the Revolution, were passed, they were self impose any hardships on any individuwill admit that I should not have given the neither the form nor the means in the posses- with which I am now about to trouble your lords, what follows? The next ect we have not enacted for the security of the Church. als; but I have not the smallest doubt that, if opinion I have given if I was not intimately sion of government enabled government to Lordships.—Is it possible Noble Lords can is the act of union with Scotland; and what It was not the Church but the State which this clause in the bill is not carried, we shall and firmly persuaded that that opinion was put an end to these things. It was necessary, that, supposing there was such a contest as does that act say?—Why, that the maths to was in danger. For what were these laws soon see this country and Ireland inundated a just one. My Lords, the point which I therefore, to come to parliament. Now let | that which I have anticipated, is it possible | be taken by the members of parliament are enacted? Was it not because the Sovereign | by Jesnits, sent from all the other paris of shall first bring under your consideration is us see what chance there was for providing Noble Lords can believe that such a contest to be laid down by the 1st William and Ma- was a concealed Papist, and his successor an Europe, and establishing themselves in the the state of Ireland. I know that, by some, a remedy for this state of things by coming could be carried on, much less insisted on, ry till parliament shall otherwise direct.— avowed one? and because, on that account, British deminions.—I admit that Noble it has been considered that the state of Ire- to parliament. My Lords, we all recollect by one House of Parliament, if not both? I This is what is called a permanent act of the safety of the State was threatened? But, Lords, when I propose this measure, have land has nothing to do with this question perfectly well that the opinion of the majori- am certain, my Lords, that, when you look parliament provision, for all besides this, danger was to be apprehended the right to ask what reason I have for bethatit is a subject which ought to be left en- ty in another place is, that the remedy for at the division of opinion which prevails in future periods, to exclude Catholics from then, not from the Catholics, but the Dis- lieving it good, I answer, that not only the tirely out of our consideration. My Lords, this state of things in Ireland is a repeal of both Houses of Parliament. My lords, I beg to ob- senters. Any one who has attended to the example of other States of Europe, and the they tell us that Ireland has been disturbed the disibilaties affecting his M jesty's Ro- at the division which prevails in every fam- serve, that if the act which excludes Roman history of those times must see that it was result of the measures they have adopted, for the last 30 years—that it is a disturbance man Catholic subjects,—'Cheers.)—We liv of this kingdom and of Ireland—in eve- Catholics from seats in parliament is perma- not the Catholics, but the Dissenters, that but even the state of Great Britain itself, we have been accustomed to—and that it does | might have gone and asked parliament to | ry family, I say, from the most eminent in | near, there is another clause 'I believe the | were dreaded, and that the privileges grant- | warrants me in urging the expediency of the not at all alter the circumstances of the case, enable us to put down the Roman Catholic station down to the lowest in this country 10th of cap. 8, William and Mary) which ed to the Dissen ers contributed to the Rev- measure. If I am not mistaken, the differentiate the circumstances of the case, enable us to put down to the lowest in this country 10th of cap. 8, William and Mary) which ed to the Dissen ers contributed to the Revas they have hitherto appeared to the House. Association; but what chance had we of pre- -when you look at the division of opinion requires officers of the army and navy to take olution. I hardly think it can be necessary ces between the Episcopal Church of Eng-My Lords, it is perfectly true that Ireland vailing upon parliament to pass such a bill, that prevails among the Plotestants of Ire- these very oaths previous to their acceptance for me to show that no danger can be appre- land and the Kirk of Scotland, at a former has been disturbed during the long period I without being prepared to come forward and land on this subject-I am convinced you of their commissions. Now if the act made hended from admitting Catholics to sents in period, were as injurious to the well-being have stated; but, within the last year or two, state that we were ready to consider the will see that there would be a vast differ- in the first year of Willi mand Mary which Parliament. In the time of Charles II. they and security of the Constitution as the prespolitical circumstances have, in no small de whole condition of Ireland?—(Hear, hear,) ence is a contest carried on now and that excludes Roman Catholics from parli ment, had seats in both Houses. By the proposed sent state of Ireland. Abroad we know gree, occasioned that agitation. Besides that, with a view to apply a remedy to that which was carried on on former occasions. is permanent, I should like to ask noble law they are not required to take the oath of there are no such distinctions and districtions and districtions. my Lords, I must say, although I have no parliament had stated to be the cause of the My Lords, I beg you will recollect that, up- lords why the clause in that act is not equal- supremacy; but an oath of allegiance has lities—the civil privileges of Protestants and my Lords, I must say, attracted part of the Catholics are the same in the best-regulated positive legal proof of the fact, that I have disease. Suppose that parliament had given on a recent occasion, there was a Protestant ly permanent?—One of these acts was mere- been framed, in which a great part of the Catholics are the same in the best-regulated every reason to believe that there has been a us the bill to put down the Roman Catholic declaration of the sentiments of Ireland. As | Iv temporary, and the other, as appeared by oath of supremacy has been retained, and Catholic countries, and I am not aware that considerable organization of the people for Association, would such a law as that which I said before, the Parliament of Ireland, in the change which had taken place, was not which will answer sufficiently that particularly any danger has arisen from such a state of the purposes of mischief. (Hear, hear.) My has passed this year be a remedy for the state | the year 1798, with the exception of one or | permanent. Neither Act, therefore, was | lar purpose. So far, then, this Act is much | things. In order to show the effect of such Lords, this organization is, it appears to me, of things which have already described to two Gentlemen, were unanimous; and on a binding at the present day. The Parliament better than that of Charles II. Besides this, a divided interest in this country in former to be proved, not only by the declarations of your lordships as existing in Ireland? Would recent occasion, there were seven Marquises, of Queen Anne, at the time of the Union, for the last 40 years the House of Stuart has times, it is only necessary to refer to the those who formed and who arranged it, but it do any one thing towards putting an end 27 Earls, a vast number of Peers of other recognized the right of presbyteria s to seats been considered extinct; and, in the opinion state of society in Scotland previous to the likewise by the effects which it has produced to the organization which I have stated to ranks, and not less than 2,000 Protestant in Parliament and consequently the Act of a great number—and that opinion had for Union; and I cannot give your Lordships a in the election of Churchwardens throughout your lordships exists; towards putting down Gentlemen of property in the country, who passed in the reign of William and Mary a long time been gaining ground—the time better idea of it, than by reading a petition the country; in the circumstances attending the mischiefs which are the consequences of signed the Declaration, stating the absolute was not permanent; and I will appeal to the for the repeal of the law had at last arrived. Which has this day been put into my hands, the election for the County of Clare; in the that organization; towards giving you the necessity of making these concessions.—Un- Noble Lords whether the act passed in 1817, It had been appointed for a specific purpose, presented more than 100 years ago to the the election for the County of Count circumstance that preceded and to the land, without some test has been carried on-circumstances to- Navy, of certain ranks, from the oaths for- ject for which it was appointed had ceased ation to Episcopacy in that country. This election, of a gentleman who went at the things existing in Ireland, without some test has been carried on-circumstances to- Navy, of certain ranks, from the oaths for- ject for which it was appointed had ceased ation to Episcopacy in that country. This election, of a gentieman was a gentieman who have the North of Ire- further measure to be adopted? But, my tally different from those which existed at merly prescribed, has not done away with to exist. On another subject, my Lords, I petition is almost word for word a copy of head of a body of men to the North of Ire- further measure to be adopted? But, my tally different from those which existed at merly prescribed, has not done away with the exist. On another subject, my Lords, I petition is almost word for word a copy of the done away with the exist. nead of a body of men to the transfer of va- Lords, it is said, if that will not do, let us land; in the simultaneous proceedings of va- Lords, it is said, if that will not do, let us land; in the simultaneous proceedings of va- Lords, it is said, if that will not do, let us land the period I before alluded to. But is it pos- the clause in chapter 8? If, therefore, the wish to say a few words. Many in this House, many that have been presented to this land; in the simultaneous proceedings of va- Lords, it is said, if that will not do, let us land the believe that Davidson that Davidson the land to the land the land to the l rious bodies of men in the South of Ireland, proceed to blows. What is meant by prorious poules of men in the country of the contest to go on? Is it possible were found not to be permanent, and if no confess I was of that opinion myself—have phesied nothing but ruin to the Kirk of Scotin Templemore, Killenaule, Cahir, Clonnel, ceeding to blows is coming to civil war.— low such a contest to go on? Is it possible were found not to be permanent, and if no confess I was of that opinion myself—have phesied nothing but ruin to the Kirk of Scotin Templemore, Killeliaus, Call, Contended that the State ought to have some land and the Constitution of that country; and other places; in the proceedings of anoth- Now I believe that every government must to believe that parliament, having this state | Acts were passed, either at the Union with contended that the State ought to have some land and the Constitution of that country; and other places, in the proceedings of the Protestant Church against and I have little doubt that, when this bill er gentleman, of another county; and in the be prepared to carry into execution the laws of things before them—that this House, see. Scotland or Ireland, to prevent further chaner gentleman, of another county; and in the recal of this gentleman from the North of the country by the force placed at its disting what the opinion of the other House of the country by the force placed at its disting what the opinion of the other House of the country by the force placed at its disting what the opinion of the other House of the country by the force placed at its disting what the opinion of the other House of the country by the force placed at its disting what the opinion of the other House of the country by the force placed at its disting what the opinion of the other House of the country by the force placed at its disting what the opinion of the other House of the country by the force placed at its disting what the opinion of the other House of the country by the force placed at its disting what the opinion of the other House of the country by the force placed at its disting what the opinion of the other House o In all these circumstances it is quite obvious should be necessary; and above all things, the large number of Protestants in Ireland can be raised to the measure proposed? But the foundation on which the security of the tioners prayed that Parliament would not to me that, there was an organization and to oppose resistance to the law, in case the direction of some superior authority. This disaffected or the ill-disposed are inclined to Statesman, for the last forty years, has been that no alteration in the laws had taken Church and State rests, I could find no secu- grant toleration to Episcopacy in Scotland, organization has certainly produced a state resist the authority or sentence of the law; on this question—would continue to oppose place, are we not at liberty, on the ground rity which would be satisfactory. The Bill, in the then state of that church. Such a of society in Ireland which we have not but, as I have already stated to your Lord- itself to measures brought forward for its of expediency, to repeal these laws altoge- I think, my Lords, as it stands, affords more toleration would be unavailing and ruinous: heretofore witnessed, and an aggravation of ships, there was no resistance of the law- settlement? It appears to me absolutely imall the evils which before afflicted that un- hear, hear)—nay, more, I will go further, possible that we could have gone on longer the inconvenience under which it has so ceived either from the Catholic Clergy or a and constitution; it would overwhelm the fortunate country. My Lords, late in the and will say that I am positively certain that without increasing difficulties being brought long laboured? Are we not at liberty to re- foreign Potentate. In order to explain this, laws established in the country, and needyear a considerable town was attacked this state of things existing in Ireland for on the country. But it is very desirable vise the state of the representation in Ireyear a considerance town was attention to that the nation. It would alienate from his Main the middle of the night by a body of peo- the last year and a half, bordering upon civ- that we should look a little to what benefit land, as soon as it is perceived that the peo- and I beg your Lordships' attention to that the nation. It would alienate from his Maple who came from the neighbouring moun- il war, being attended by nearly all the e- is to be derived to any one class in the State ple, at the elections, are entirely under the subject for a few moments. The King of jesty the hearts of his best subjects, weaken tains—the town of Orl. They attacked it vils of civil war,) might have continued a by continuing the disabilities, and only takwith arms, and were driven from it with arms considerable time longer, to the great injury ing those coercive measures which will have ment which had been made in former years Catholics in his dominion, under different Prelacy and Popery, and bring the nation by the inhabitants of the town. This is a & disgrace of the country, & these who mana- all the evils I have stated. We are told is found totally insufficient for the due adstate of things which I feel your Lordships ged the state, if they would have taken care that the benefit will be to preserve the prin- ministration of the State? The House of Austria exercises a similar from which it had so lately emerged. The will admit ought not to exist in a civilized to prevent that resistance which might have civiles of the constitution of 1688—that the country. Later in the year still, a similar ended in that state of things being put down. Acts of 1688 permanently excluded Roman whether some law existed, prohibiting all ritories on the left bank of the Rhine are liament to uphold the laws then existing; event occurred in Charleville; and in the They know as well as I do they are not Catholics from Parliament—and that, they alteration, but whether they should, as the likewise bound by a Concordat with the refuse all legal toleration, because they course of last autumn the Roman Catholic strong enough to wrestle with the King's being permanently excluded from Parlia-Association deliberated upon the propriety government, backed by the law; they know ment, it is necessary to have recourse to all country from the improper influence exer- and those of the right bank by Concordats granted, it would lead to the establishment of adopting, and the means of adopting, the perfectly well they would have been the those evils, in order to keep up that permameasure of ceasing all dealings between Ro- first victims of that resistance, but knowing nent exclusion. - Now, I wish very much subjects by the Catholic Priesthood? I have But, in the event of a Concordat being en- effects on the institutions of the Church and man Catholic and Protestants. Is it possi- that, and knowing, as I do, that they are sen- that Noble Lords would take upon them- already, my Lords, stated how this excluble to believe that supposing these dealings sible able men, and perfectly aware of the selves the trouble I have taken to see how sive system tended to embarrass the mea- and the Pope, that would be admitting the continued the Noble Duke, that as the prohad ceased, that supposing this measure had materials upon which they have to work, I the matter stands as to the permanent exclubeen carried into execution—as I firmly be- have not the smallest doubt that the state of sion of Roman Catholics from Parliament. or disturbances in every part of the country, and that, I say, is a point which we never country has not been fulfitted, the prophesy lieve it was in the power of those who deli- things which I have stated to your Lordships My Lords in the Bill of Rights, there are and, indeed, in every family; but I have not will yield.—(Hear.) No foreign, be he contained in some of the petitions against berated upon it to carry it into execution—is would have continued, and that you would some things permanently enacted, which I yet called your Lordships' attention to the who he may—no Prince or Potentate—has a concessions to Catholics will in the result, it possible to believe that those who could never have had an opportunity of putting it sincerely hope will be permanent;—those dangers to which the Church itself is expos- right to interfere between His Majesty and be found equally incorrect, and without ceased to carry into execution the contracts agined. But, my Lords, even if I had been the security for the Protestantism of the perinto which they had entered? Will any man | certain of such means of putting it down, I son on the throne of these kingdoms, and | The Clergy of the Established Church there | will steer clear (Hear, hear.) Even the | co ld be no doubt that after the Roman Casay that people in this situation are not verg- should have considered it my duty to avoid that he shall not be married to a Paptist.— have but the mir ority under their charge; Veto I should not consider any security; and thousand been put on the same footing say that people in the same time I must say that a more ex- that could not be assumed by the Sovereign with their Protestant fellow subjects—fier ing towards that state, in which it would be those means. I am one of those who have impossible to expect from them that they probably passed a longer period of my life premacy to be taken by all those of whom lemplary, a more pious, and learned set of without, in some way or other, impairing the candid and liberal measure proposed for would be able to perform the duties of Jury- engaged in war than most men, and princi- that outh of allegiance is required, which is men do not exist. (Hear, hear, hear would be able to perform the difference of the Pope to have some right to interfere in ests, and could, therefore, have no grounds men, or to administer justice between man pally, I may say, in civil war; and I must say also permanent; but there is no declaration the control of the Pope to have some right to interfere in ests, and could, therefore, have no grounds the control of the Pope to have some right to interfere in ests, and could, therefore, have no grounds the control of the Pope to have some right to interfere in ests, and could, therefore, have no grounds the control of the Pope to have some right to interfere in ests, and could, therefore, have no grounds the control of the Pope to have some right to interfere in ests, and could, therefore, have no grounds the control of the Pope to have some right to interfere in ests, and could, therefore, have no grounds the control of the Pope to have some right to interfere in ests, and could, therefore, have no grounds the control of the population of th men, or to administer justice of the State. Suppose for confirming the suspicions which were enand mon for the protection of the Bishproperties of his Majesty's subjects? My whatever, even one month of civil war in oath of allegiance different from that which the King to have the nomination of the Bishtertained against them. They could execute wisned to draw your attention, and divided it is necessary that Parliament should provide I say that there is nothing which destroys though this oath of allegiance was declared in defence of the Church. What part of Ireland such a divided in defence of the doctrines of the Church. What part of Ireland such a divided in defence of the doctrines of the Church. But if the control of the Church is not in the control of the Church. The church is not in the control of the church in the church is not in the control of the church. a remedy: but, before I proceed to consider property and prosperity, and demoralizes permanent, it was altered in the reign of the same eye with which it has watched but in a second but, before I proceed to consider property and prosperity, and demoralizes permanent, it was altered in the reign of the same eye with which it has watched but in a second but that in a second but the same eye with which it has watched but the same eye with which it has watched but the same eye with which it has watched but the same eye with which it has watched but the same eye with which it has watched but the same eye with which it has watched but the same eye with which it has watched but the same eye with which it has watched but the same eye with which it has watched a remark that the same eye with which it has watched but the same eye with which it has watched but the same eye with which it has a same eye with which it has been even at the same eye with which it has been eye with the same eye with which it has been eye with the same eye with the what those remedies would be, I wish just character, to the degree that civil war does; William and Mary. This shows what that were obliged to have recourse to violence, reign on a Catholic Bishop, consistent with short time the same and kindly feeling what those remembers would be, I wish Jack by it, the hand of man is raised against his permanent Act was. Then, with respect to to show you what the effect of this state of by it, the hand of man is raised against his permanent Act was. Then, with respect to the Church's the C to snow you what the encet of this state of the Protestant Church, the Bishops and Chr- be disappointed of the hopes of tranquility, society was upon the King's prerogative.— neighbour, against his brother, and against the oaths to be taken by Members of Parlia- the Protestant Church, the Bishops and Chr- be disappointed of the hopes of tranquility, society was upon the King's prerogative.—
My Lords, his Majesty could not create a his father; servant betrays master, and the ment, I beg your Lordships to observe that ment and the ment, I beg your Lordships to observe that ment and the ment, I beg your Lordships to observe that ment and the ment, I beg your Lordships to observe that ment and the ment and t peer; and the reason he could not create a whole scene ends in confusion and disorder. The reason he could not create a whole scene ends in confusion and disorder. The reason he could not create a whole scene ends in confusion and disorder. The reason he could not create a whole scene ends in confusion and disorder. peer; and the teason he could not create a Vet, my Lords, this is the resource to which stantistion, and the imprecation of the Mass, ment, an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he to lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he to lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he to lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he to lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he to lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he to lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he to lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese? And if he lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese of the lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese of the lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese of the lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese of the lay the lay the state of affairs before Parliament, and an united op without giving him a diocese of the lay the

NO.XLVII.