When puns are made, and bumpers quaff'd And wild Wit shouts his roving shaft, And Mirth his jorial laugh has laughed, Then is our banquet crown'd, An gay, Then is our banquet crownes troll'd,

.ight and bold, When glees are sweer cold, And bashfulninger dull; And beam's are brief, and cocks do crow, As us it is time to go, A how to part we do not know, Then is our feast at full,

Ah gay, Then is our feast at full.

LAZY WIT.

A SHORT time since, a society was formed in a neighbouring town for the laudable purpose cf discountenancing those unnecessary exertions of body and mind which those who wish to be considered smarter than their neighbours are accustomed to undergo. It was named The Lazy and Idle Society, & amongst its regulations it was provided, that if any member rose before seven o'clock in the morning, he should be excluded. After a while it was more than insinuated that one of its most conspicuous members had been repeatedly seen in an arm chair in front of his house, as early as five o'clock in the morning .-These Yumours caused no little stir among the fraternity, who immediately called a special meeting, at which the accused was summoned to be dealt with according to his deserts. The evidence was clear, and there remained no doubt that he had been guilty of a flagrant breach of the rules of the society. When called upon for his defence, however, he repelled with indignation the aspersion against his character, and avowed himself a true convert to the principles he possessed. ''Tis true,' said he, '! have been found in the condition stated. but the reason is this: I am accustomed to take that position after supper, and when bed-time comes I feel too lazy to stir, and so remain through the night.' -Manufacturer.

THE HAUT TON.

Not a hundred years ago, a leader of as Goldsmith says, had made a great noise in the world-the first by beating the season as follows, viz: a drum, and the other by crying oysters, went to Washington to see the fashions, take the size of the rotunda, and taste Gadsby's canvas backs. He had, in early life, been quite a man of polish, at the taverns in a distant town, having been a boot black of great skill and genius; he was a man of polish still, and gave out the card of fashion for one of the most distinguished circles. One morning he wished to be introduced to the Senate of the United States. He wished to seethe place where Randolph had uttered his jokes and sprinkled his safcasm. He made his entrance at the side door of the Senate. At the very moment the full, rapid voice of the Vice President was heard-in other words, the question was taking-" The Senators in favour of the motion will please to rise." Half the Senate arose just as the 'fashionable' was entering. Ocudemen, soid our man of fashion, ' pray, don't rise : do be seated.' The voice of the Vice President was again heard putting the negative of the question, and the other portion of the Senate rose. This mark of condescension overwhelmed the 'leader of the ton.' 'Why really, gentlemen,'said he, 'you do me too much honor; let me beg you to be seated.' When our man of wealth and fashion returned to the banks of the Schuylkill, he told his gentlmen he had ever seen.

Why is my wise Aunt like a fashionable watering place? Because she's a Bright un. When is Alderman most like a ghost?-When he's a goblin (gobbling.)
