THE events of the present day are replete with interest of no ordinary nature; and we have, therefore, in our preceding columns, given the most copious extracts that the latest dates could furnish. Holland has caught the revolutionary infection, and, without any ostensible or real cause, dismissed their King. Spain, long before this, has found some other occupation for the beloved Ferdinand, than the embroidering of petticoates for the Virgin; and Portugal may be readily expected to ease itself of that abominable incubus, Don Miguel, by an equally unceremonious manuævre. Where this mania will end, Time alone can develope; and we shall see, at no distant period, the whole continent of Europe convulsed, by the arbitrary and unwise example of the French Bourbon, whose obstinacy has terminated in his own ruin, and likely to make others feel the effects of what a people oppressed and insulted will do, when goaded by a natural interest in the prosperity of their country.

THE MONTREAL OFFICIAL GAZETTE .-- We take this opportunity of expressing our acknowledgments to the spirited Editor of this excellent Journal, for his unwearied exertions in conveying the earliest intelligence of passing events.

As an official paper, the Montreal Gazette is necessarily entitled to consideration; but we feel it due to the Editor and Proprietor to say, that we do not know of any paper that is so little indebted to extrinsic circumstances for its high standing, as a periodical.

The present is but one, of several occasions, on which we have received earlier intelligence by the Gazette, than across the lines at this place.

THE Court of General Quarter Sessions, in and for the Midland District, commenced its sittings and honourable to the agricultural reputaon Tuesday last. H. C. Thomson, Esq. was chosen Chairman, in the absence of John Macaulay, Esquire. We should be wanting in candour, not to state that Mr. Thomson discharged the duty with credit to himself and advantage to the Public.

The District Court was also opened on the same day, by Jonas Jones, Esq.

Fire.-On Wednesday morning, between two and three o'clock, the house of Mr. Gamble, situnted above the Scotch Church, was discovered to be on fire. By the very prompt attendance of the inhabitants, the progress of the destructive element was arrested without doing much injury. As there are some strong suspicions that this was the work of an incendiary, we hope the Magistrates will enquire into the matter. Indeed, we are informed that this is the second attempt made to set the same house on fire.

COLONEL BY, accompanied by Col. BOETLER, CAPT. MELLISH, and some other officers of the Royal Engineers, arrived here on Wednesday evening, from Bytown, by the route of the Rideau

It gives us great pleasure to learn, that Col. By | pose :fully expects that the canal will be open this season from Bytown to Merrick's Mills; and there is now no doubt but this great work will be finally completed in the course of next season.

THEATRICALS.—The Company now performing in the large room under the Patriot Office, exhibit very respectable talents. They seem all to be very perfect in their parts, and their acting is chaste, and pretty much to nature. Their selections of pieces for representation are very judicious, being such as compert with their motto, "to refine the genius, and to mend the heart." Last night they performed the "SOLDIER's DAUGHTER," and the "WAGS OF WINDSOR" to a tolerable audience, considering it was their first representation. The parts were, generally, well sustained, and those of the females particu-Jarly well. The Theatre is comfortably arranged, and has a pretty appearance, the scenery very far beyond what is generally seen with travelling companies.

CASUALTIES .- A poor lame man, of the name of John Stage, was found dead on the street, early on the morning of the 8th instant. The unfortunate man fell a victim to habitual drunkenness.

On Friday, the 8th instant, a fine boy, belonging to Charles Brawley, of this place, about three years old, was run over by a wagon, and killed

His Excellency Sir John Colborne is expected in Town, on Tuesday evening next, from the Seat o Government.

We regret to perceive by a paragraph subjoined, which is taken from the Herald, that the Earl of Dalhousie has been attacked with palsy. From the manner in which reference is made to the circumstance in the letter, we are inclined to hope that it was not a severe stroke, especially as it added that he recovered in a few weeks .---Mont. Gazette.

"We have seen a letter dated Berham- W. S. Myers, Haldimand, for the best pore, 12th May, from which we make the following extract :--- 'I do not know if I mentioned in my last letter, that Lord Dalhousie had an attack of palsy. COUNTY OF NORTHUMBERLAND AGRI CULTURAL SOCIETY.

THE second annual Cattle Show, &c. o this Society, was held in the public square of the Village of Colborne, on Wednesday the 6th instant. The day being very propitious and fine, a great number of persons, not only from various and distant parts of the County of Northumberland, but also many gentlemen from the neighboring County of Durham were enabled to attend the rather novel and interesting exhibition. Several enclosures and penns were previously prepared for the reception of the different animals entered for premiums, many of which were the finest and best that the country could produce.

A great many candidates entered for the numerous premiums offered by the Society this year. There were some very choice samples of Butter and Cheese produced. The specimens of home manufactured Liand Woolen cloths were also very good, more particularly the Linen cloth.

The Ploughing matches excited universal interest, which took place in one of the fields belonging to the farm of Joseph A. Kecler, Esq. There were 18 Ploughs started, five of which were drawn by horses, and thirteen by oxen. This was an animating and sheering spectacle-many of the candidates performed their work in November, from such persons as may a manner highly creditable to themselves, tion of the farmers in this portion of the Province. Such a spirited and well contested Ploughing match has seldom, or ever been before witnessed in the county there were several hundred spectators viewing this interesting and meritorious trial of skill; and it was truly gratifying to observe the keen ardour, bustling activity, and consummate skill with which many of the candidates entered upon and finished their various honourable tasks assigned to each by the judges.

After the Ploughing matches had terminated to the satisfaction of the great concourse of people assembled, they retired from the victorious field of agricultural triumph, to the village square, where they were highly entertained with hearing four able essays on the rearing and managing of live stock read. In addition to these essays an interesting report of the Judges appointed to view the different farms in the County, that had been entered for premiums, for good management, was also

The grape vine is propagated either from a slip, taken from the stem of health y vines, of at least four or five years' growth or by trasplanting the roots themselves. By the first mode, it requires seven or eight years before the vine comes to its full bearing : and for the two first years, these plants which fail must be replaced ;-about THE subscriber, having engaged an one-third of the whole plantation. The second mode is the best; for, if you are binder, informs the Public, that all kinds supplied with good plants, well rooted. there is no danger of loosing any; and the second year from the time of transplanting, they yield fruit.

In climates where the winters are severe, the season for transplanting the vine is the latter part of March, or the begining quantity-a small advance will be made of April; but in more temperate latitudes, the end of October is to be preferred. Drills, or furrows, of eighteen inches wide and eighteen deep, must first be prepared; and if they be made in the course of the preceding summer or autumn, would be still better; for the earth thus having remained exposed to the air, would be more favourable to the plant. The most economical and expeditious way of performing this operation is by using a plough; and cosame furrow; after which the ground may be dug out with a spade, to the depth required. If the plantation is but small, or the expense no consideration, the best method is to dig the ground deep with the spade, and turn it up in all directions. In lands which are very sandy and light, the drills must be made to the depth of sixteen or eighteen inches, and the drier the soil, the deeper they ought to be. In rich soils, fifteen inches is sufficient. Let the drills be run in a direct straight line from north to south, that the plants may receive the rays of the sun on all sides. Plant the roots from four to six feet apart, according to the quality of the soil, The richer it is. the farther apart the plants should be. If you use horses for ploughing, the roots ought to be at least six or seven feet distant from one another, and eight or nine if oxes are used, so that your ground may be used without injuring any of the plants. Finally, if the spade only is to be used, the plants may be placed five or six feet apart every way; care must be taken, likewise, not to place the plants of one row immediately opposite those of the next row; that they may not be in the way of one another. In planting the vine, lay down six inches of the plant flat, at the bottom of the drill. leaning the upper part of it against the side. in this position, placing one foot on the roots to press them flat with the bottom of the trench, you cover them with three or four inches of good earth, well pulverised, or two or three handfulls of moistened ashes: you then press the clay or ashes closely with your feet, and fill up the drill so as only to leave two eyes of the plant uncovered. The drills when planting must he free from water; if any from preceding rains remain in them, it is better to wait a day or two, until they ecome dry.
