there can be no part of the British Empire in which a public provision for the maintenance of religion stands on plainer ground than in the Provinces of Canada.

"It was not until after this provision had existed without complaint, or remonstrance for more than thirty years that any Painchaud, 25 do. from Liverpool, to G. attempt was made to excite a feeling of dissatisfaction in respect to it.

"Among the objections which have been urged against it since that period it has been stated that the Reserves by remaining waste obstruct the settlement of the Province, and that the quantity of land reserved is excessive in proportion to the ob-

MR. CHRONICLE,-Since the Editor of the Christian Sentinel, a paper published in Lower Canada, has advanced his, to my mind, unanswerable arguments in favor of religion being supported and protected by the civil state, I have been led into a train of reflections on the rise and progress of certain political factions, and I think I can clearly trace them to sectarianism in religion. These political factious are composed for the most part of sectarians, whose religious notions are as democratic as their politicks, and as contrary to the Scriptures as their politics are contrary to the principles of the British Constitution, which we deem as the standard of perlection in civil freedom. They are furious against the abominable sacrilege there is in the state providing for the de- through his collegiate studies at Edinburgh. Afcent maintenance of the Clergy, and the ter completing his University course, he became For every Horse, . protection it extends to them against the a Theological student at the Divinity Hall in For every Ox or Cow, intrigues of self-made preachers, which they are constantly practising to induce the people to desert the real Clergy, and lavish on these impostors the means of support which ought to go to them alone; and they form political combinations for these for a short time in England, and came to New purposes under the hypocritical assump- York with the late Dr. Mason, and from thence tion that it is unlawful to mingle religion to this city, where he received a call from the with politicks. So it comes to pass, that congregation of St. Peter's Street Church, over EGERTON'S religious " Christian" paper is the organ and mouth-piece of a political faction organized out of the remnants of the late most infamous and wicked "Central Committee," and other kindred ingredients, which, but for this new guardianship of democracy and faction, would | quaintance. In the numerous labours and trials hardly have exhibited themselves before which so long a ministration in the service of his the public. As I am a matter of fact map, and fond of tracing effects to their causes, and down from their causes into their present standing. I propose to show how democracy in religion produces democracy in politics, and how they both tend to the destruction of human society; a thing well worthy the attention of all soher men particularly those in public life. In doing this I may have occasion to refer both to the Christian Guardian and the Christian Servinel, on account of the one being the to the Premises belonging to Thomas furious calumniator of these doctrines as recognized in the British Constitution, and so ingeniously maintained by the other. I shall also have occasion to refer to things as they are and have been in the land of Jonathan, where theological democracy has so vast an influence on politicks, and where the principle of mingling religion with politics is cordially cursed by nearly at the residence of Lieut. Since mentioning the Christian Sentinel, I beg leave to drop a word of advice to its Editor, who, I trust, is not too wise to receive instruction, and whom I wish all to be fully aware of his measure of ability: not that a man who defends principles Rugs, Bureaus, Mirrors-A Piano should lack a reasonable confidence in doing so-but that he should not make a needless display, especially if he be a Clergyman. If he cannot reply in such manner as to retain the esteem of the discreet and judicious of his own friends, and to give no occasion to his enemies to take advantage of him in this way, which they never BOARDING SCHOOL FOR the Public of Kingston and Vicinity, fail to do, he had better maintain a dignified silence. Nothing would please them better than to be able to provoke him to assume the attitude of a Street-Boxer, that they might bring their mud engines to bear upon him, and defile him from head to foot, so that his own friends would viz :-- GRAMMAR, GEOGRAPHY, HISTORY, doathe him. MR: EDITOR,-It must be the diffidence of the author of the beautiful verses on the last page of the Chronicle of the 7th, that prevented him from inserting his name in full, instead of the initials only, H. G. F. We presume from this alone, however, that he wished his name to be known, and we therefore think there can be no harm to make a plain matter of fact explanation. We would say

H. means Hunter, G. means his game, F. is surely Fowler, And one must be his name. " Fowler."
