

UNITED STATES.

THE RELIGIOUS FRENZY CASE.

The Stanford Sentinel of Monday brings us a report of the trial of Miller, who killed his two children a short time since. The prisoner's counsel admitted that his client had done the deed of blood, but pleaded that it was committed under the influence of religious frenzy.

Witness called at the jail for the purpose of conversing with Miller: not as counsel, but as a private citizen—found the window of his room darkened by a curtain—knocked, the prisoner enquired who was there—witness gave him his name, prisoner then removed the curtain, and at request of witness, gave witness his name, the names of his parents, also his master with whom he served an apprenticeship at the shoemaking business, told of his marrying, of his uniting himself with the church, and many other incidents of his life, as also of the cause which had transpired to bring him into the condition in which witness then saw him.

THE co-partnership between the undersigned, under the firm of John McPherson & Co., is this day, by mutual consent, dissolved; the subscribers are severally authorised to settle the affairs of the late co-partnership, all persons having demands are requested to present them at their office at Prescott.

Signed, JOHN McPHERSON, ALEX. McMILLAN, SAMUEL CRANE. Prescott, 12th January, 1831.

for the condition his family must continue in until the expiration of the five months. On all other subjects he reasoned well, appeared perfectly rational and pure-minded, and with readiness would turn to texts of Scripture in a Bible he had to prove the doctrine he advocated.

Other witnesses stated, that immediately after the fatal deed, they found Miller sitting at the window of the cellar in which the body of the eldest child was found, having in his hand a stick, on the end of which an old hoe was attached, and swinging it to and fro—he was very raving, and crying out "O God! O Christ! help! blood for blood! blood for blood!" &c. would occasionally smite his club against the cellar window, and strike with his hands which were much lacerated and bloody, against the glass—he had no clothing on except his shirt, which was wet, torn and bloody—he handed his club to one of the witnesses, and desired he would assist in fighting the devils in the cellar—he called witnesses by their proper names, and after a little conversation became more quiet—conversed rationally on any subject but what related to the death of his children.

THE case was submitted to the Jury with very little comment, and they returned a verdict of not guilty, on the ground of insanity. The prisoner's friends have taken such measures as will protect society from him.

SALT RHEUM.—This inveterate disease, which has long baffled the art of the most experienced physicians, has, at length, found a sovereign remedy in Dr. La Grange's genuine ointment. Few cutaneous diseases are met with more untowardly by the physician, & none in which he is so universally unsuccessful. This ointment has stood the test of experience, and justly obtained an unparalleled celebrity. It immediately removes the scabs, gives a healthy action to the vessel so the skin, and its original colour and smoothness. Numerous recommendations might be obtained of its superior efficacy, but the proprietor chose that a fair trial should be its only commentator.

It has in three or four weeks cured cases of fifteen and twenty years' standing, that had resisted the power of every remedy that was tried. It not only at once gives immediate relief in Salt Rheum, but cures Tinea Capitis, commonly called Scald Head, and all scabby eruptions peculiar to uncathly children.

There is nothing of a mercurial nature contained in it, and it may be used on infants or others under any circumstances whatever.
