

THE VOICE OF SUMMER.

I shall come, I shall come, when the storm has passed by; I shall come, when there's warmth in the brilliant blue sky; I shall come, when the ice in the streams is all gone; I shall come, when the robin sings gaily at dawn; I shall come, when the fields are all covered with green; When the swallow abroad on her pinions is seen; I shall come, when the roads are all level and dry; I shall come, when is whizzing the sun-loving fly; I shall come, I shall come, though I tarry so long; I shall come with a swell of melodious song; I shall come with the blossom, the tulip and rose, When the zephyr, perfumed, along the earth blows.

I shall come, I shall come, over valley and hill; I shall show my green robes by river and rill; To meet me with gladness I charge you prepare; Awake! for behold—I shall quickly be there!

LIFE OF FREDERICK THE GREAT.

A well digested and impartial biography of such a hero as Frederick the Great of Prussia, was so desirable an accession to our literature, that we cannot too earnestly applaud the spirit which has induced Lord Dover to endeavour to supply it; although the nature of the subject forbids us to expect any novelty or increase of interest in the performance. Frederick, indeed, was too much favoured by circumstances, to admit of the slightest hazard that any event of his extraordinary career, or any trait of his singular character, should not be faithfully preserved, for the contemplation of future ages. He took care to be surrounded, during his life, by successive circles of men, the most remarkable of their era, for learning, for genius, for the influence which they exercised, through their writings, over the feelings and understandings of their contemporaries. In becoming the host, and sometimes the task-master of Voltaire, and of some of the principal philosophers of his day; and, in either flattering their vanity, or thwarting their favorite purposes, Frederick knew that he drew upon him the direct attention of the existing guardians and distributors of historical renown. Either the gratitude, he concluded, of such men, for the favours he had bestowed on them, or their indignation on account of his ill treatment, would equally operate as a security, that his name and actions would occupy the most distinguished station in the annals of his time. If such, indeed, be the true description of the policy of Frederick, the expectations by which he was actuated, were literally fulfilled, at least by Voltaire; for it is not so much to the partiality of the latter, as it is to his resentment, that the King is in a great measure indebted for that universal interest regarding him, which, to this hour, has experienced no material abatement. Frederick himself was no mean contributor to the literature of his age. The spectacle of a King, at the date to which we refer, renouncing all the delusive distinctions of a crown, and satisfied to contend in the common arena for intellectual honours, was such a striking innovation as to make the deepest impression throughout the civilized world. And Frederick himself has enjoyed all the benefit of the curiosity which his novel example had excited; for many who would have been indifferent to his actions and his character, were still solicitous to read the writings of a Prussian monarch. From such felicitous accidents and coincidences, it has happened, that not one of all the heroes, whom it is the business of modern history to commemorate, stands more clearly defined, or more faithfully portrayed to our eyes than Frederick the Great.

In searching, as men are naturally inclined to do, for some reasons that will serve to explain the causes of that comparative superiority of mind, which this monarch exhibited over his immediate ancestors, and, indeed, the whole of his successors, we are led, principally, to consider the nature of his early education. He was the great grandson of Frederick William, a man, who, from his wisdom, conduct, and prudence, acquired the title of the "Great Elector." If we can suppose, that peculiar mental faculties obey the same law of hereditary descent, as that which regulates the transmission of family diseases, and that the genius of the great grandfather can be passed secretly through two generations, and shine with all its original brightness in a third, then we have an intelligible clue to account for the splendid qualities of Frederick the Great. His grandfather was a vain and contemptible creature of pageants and court forms. His father, however, was worse, for all the energy that he possessed, was employed in the service of the basest of passions. It is only amongst the lives of the Roman emperors, that we can find any parallel to the character of the latter King. The least revolting portion of his acts, consist of the various manifestations which he gave during life, of the greatest eccentricity. Some of his excesses are too curious to be omitted. His partiality to giants was a principal passion, as we learn from the following anecdotes:— "His fondness for his tall regiment of guards is well known; every country bordering upon his own territories was ransacked in search of giants, and, upon more than one occasion, he was near going to war, rather than be compelled to give up his acquisitions of this kind. Nor was any class of men, or any profession, sacred from the violence of the Prussian press-gangs. Even priests were actually torn from the altars, as was the case, among others, with the Abbe Bastiani, who was carried off while celebrating mass in a village church in the north of Italy. He subsequently settled at Berlin, and was admitted into the intimate society of Frederick the Great. The extraordinary desire of Frederick William to recruit this regiment, seems even to have got the better of the passion of avarice, which on all other occasions, reigned paramount in his breast; for we find instances recorded, in which he gave great sums for single recruits of a gigantic stature. To one called "the great Joseph," who apparently was a monk, he gave 5000 florins for enlisting, and paid 1500 rix dollars to the monastery he belonged to. In the procuring of an Italian, named Andrea Capra, the charge was as follows:—1500 rix dollars as bounty money to the recruit himself, and 2000 rix dollars to the persons who discovered and watched him, and to those who carried him off by force from his own country. But the most expensive recruit of all appears to have been an Irishman, named James Kirkland, for the procuring of whom the following curious bill was brought in to the King:—

It is no wonder that Frederick William should wish to gratify his taste upon a more economical scale than he seems to have been compelled to adopt. He accordingly set his heart upon a project, for the regular cultivation of a race of giants in his own dominions. Every woman of unusual stature, whom he even casually saw, he compelled to intermarry with one of his guards, quite indifferent whether she was pleased or not with the alliance. He very soon found out, however, by one very curious incident, that kidnapping women require somewhat of a more dexterous sportsman than was sufficient for the capture of the men.

LANDS FOR SALE, IN UPPER CANADA. THE CANADA COMPANY have for sale 2,233,000 acres of LAND of the following description:— 1st. CROWN RESERVES. These are Farms generally of 200 acres, which were reserved when the land was originally surveyed, and have been sold by the Crown to the Canada Company, who are now selling them out to individuals wishing to settle on them: they are scattered in almost every township throughout the province, which gives emigrants who have friends or relations already settled in the Colony the means of choosing a situation in their vicinity. For the benefit of emigrants who cannot afford to purchase a whole lot, the Company divide their 200 acre lots into two, and sell a half lot, that is a farm of about 100 acres, to suit the convenience of purchasers. 2nd. BLOCKS OF LAND. When the Colony was first settled, several Townships were surveyed without reserving one-seventh for the Crown; but when that arrangement was determined on, the Crown's proportion of land was reserved in Blocks, in the unsurveyed or partially surveyed townships; these blocks are situated chiefly in the Gore and Western Districts—the principal of these is Guelph, situated about 21 miles from the head of the Lake Ontario; it consists of about 42,000 acres, of which about 15,000 are still for sale; it contains nearly 1,200 inhabitants, and a village, in which are a good grist and saw mill, stores, taverns, a school, all kinds of mechanics & tradesmen; a Presbyterian and Episcopal Church are in progress, and a Catholic Church has been built; a minister of the Kirk of Scotland resides there, & a Catholic Priest & Church of England Clergyman occasionally visit. From the class of emigrants that have lately gone there, & from the convenience afforded in a settlement of some standing, it will be found a desirable residence for persons of moderate capital. Persons desirous of purchasing partially cleared farms, can generally procure them in the township. The other blocks are all excellent land, and would be desirable purchases for communities of settlers. 3rd. THE HURON TRACT. After the experience of five years, and after every part of it having been thoroughly explored, the Commissioners can with confidence recommend the land of this tract as superior to any body of land of equal magnitude, either in the province of Upper Canada or the states of New-York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, or the territory of Michigan. The soil is a rich loam; the trees, the sugar maple, basswood, elm, beech, and cherry—timber, which is known in this country to indicate the very best land. It is a table land, being from 150 to 250 feet above the level of Lake Huron, but its summit is diversified and rolling; it is watered by numerous streams, and possesses every quality which ensures a good settlement. The town of Goderich is the capital of the Tract; it is situated at the mouth of the river Mainland, the basin of which forms an excellent harbor; it contains several stores, and there is a good grist & saw mill, in its immediate vicinity. Another saw mill, on a large scale, is erecting on the river Sable, and three grist and as many saw mills will be commenced in the course of this season. One great advantage which the Huron tract possesses over other wild lands, is its roads; these have been cut, at an immense expense, in the very best manner that roads are constructed in this country. The harbor at Goderich gives a facility of shipping produce at the one end of the tract, while the Grand River Ouse will this summer be rendered navigable to Brantford; and it is then proposed to render the North also navigable, thus giving a water communication to each end of the tract. Depots of provisions and tools are forming along the main road, and taverns are established at convenient distances from each other. To encourage the settlement of their lands, the Canada Company have, for the present season, resolved to give settlers who purchase from them in the scattered Crown Reserves, not less than 200 acres, or in the township of Guelph and the Huron tract, 100 acres, a passage free of expense to the head of Lake Ontario, in the following manner: the Emigrant deposits with the Company's Agent at Quebec a sum of money equal to the price of his conveyance to the head of the Lake, and takes a receipt for it, getting at the same time a pass ticket to the Company's forwarders on the route; when he has fixed upon his Land, he shows this receipt to the agent, or presents it at the Company's office in York, and it is taken in part payment of his second instalment. The instructions of the Court of Directors to the Commissioners of the Canada Company being to sell their lands as quickly as possible, the prices are moderate and the terms advantageous—the purchaser is allowed to pay for his lot by six instalments, in five years; on paying the first of which, one-fifth, he receives a letter acknowledging the receipt of the money paid, and giving him a right to occupy the lot. And, on the whole, the Commissioners have used every means in their power to give the settler the best information, the cheapest modes of conveyance, and done every thing they possibly could to assist and facilitate all his undertakings to render himself comfortable and independent. Offices of the Canada Company—York, Guelph, and Goderich.

SALT RHEUM. THIS inveterate disease which has long baffled the art of the most experienced physicians, has, at length, found a sovereign remedy in Dr. La Grange's genuine ointment. Few cutaneous diseases are met with more reluctance by the physician, and none in which he is so universally successful. This ointment has stood the test of experience, and justly obtained an unparalleled celebrity. It immediately removes the scabs, gives a healthy action to the vessels of the skin, and its original colour and smoothness. Numerous recommendations might be numbered of its superior efficacy, but the proprietor chose that a fair trial should be its only commentator. It has in three or four weeks cured cases of fifteen and twenty years' standing, that had resisted the power of every remedy that was tried. It not only at once gives immediate relief in Salt Rheum, but cures Tinea Capitis, commonly called Scald Head, and all scabby eruptions peculiar to unhealthy children. There is nothing of a mercurial nature contained in it, and it may be used on infants or others under any circumstance whatever. PRICE, One Dollar per Bottle. For sale by Wm. Binley, Kingston, John Musson, Quebec, and George Bent, Montreal, Sole Agents for the Canadas. Kingston, 11th July, 1828. MRS.
