PEDNESSAY, DECEMBER 9, 1835.

Mr. With. Mitchell, Writing Master, who for time back has been teaching in Kingston, has stant us a very creditable specimen of his penmakin, together with several copy books belongto be pupils. We were much delighted at witthe rapid progress, which the copy books manifested, they had made from a very miserable arrawl to that of a very beautiful business hand, and which that been accomplished in twelve lessons on-The progress which his female pupils seem to have made is equally creditable to Mr. Mitchell. We understand Mr. M. intends visiting Belleville where he will remain for some weeks in the exercise of his profession.

We are glad to be informed that Mr. McDonald the leased the premises well known as the Kingston Hetel.. This house has had another story added to it during the summer, and is now undergoing many other improvements, which, when completed, will genderit decidedly one of the best Hotels in Upper Canada. We are glad, we say, that this house has | the corner. Dr. Sampson's conduct was cod been taken by Mr. McDonald. He has been a resident of this town for a number of years; but has been better known of late as the keeper of the Commescial Hotel, so that we shall say not one word more in his praise.

Shall I not take mine case in mine Inn.

In passing Belonge's Saloon the other day, and a cold day it was, we were tempted to step in, just for the purpose of enjoying the pleasurable sensations attendant on exchanging our then position, exposed to a bitter frosty wind (glass 10 degrees below zero) for one within the influence of the genial heat, which we felt convinced would be found in the Satoon. In this expectation we were by no means disappointed. Comfortable in every respect it was, and on casting our eyes around we could plainty perceive that warmth was not the only good thing to be had in Belonge's Saloon .-The Proprietor received us with much politearsa, and invited us to be an eye witness of all the luxuries, comforts and accommodations contained within his domicile. On signifying our readiness to take advantage of his kindness, he conducted us into a very magnificent conservatory, heated by a stove, the pipes of which run transversely through the room, and containing an infinite number of rare and beautiful work he was doing, and that if he would come an uncontradicted testimony. plants, all seemingly healthy, and some in blosheat seen and felt in this delightful spot, formed a strong contrast, with the cold snowy appearance of every thing without doors, produc-Our host after having shown us another room fitted up and furnished in a similar manner, but of smaller dimensions, led us up stairs to his Billiard Room, a very handsome apartment, containing every thing necessary for the comfort and convenience of the Players. The Table is a superb article, and one of the largest we have ever seen. In short, the entire establishment up stairs and down stairs appears admirably adapted for the purposes of refreshing, regaling, amusing and lodging the public, and that in a manner which combines both elegance and comfort.

For the Chronicle and Gazette. Mr. Editor, Sir, -"It has long been acknowledged that vice to be hated requires only to be seen." "On this principle allow me to point out in your columns. at the spirit of injustice manifested for a long time back" in the Kingston Market by the town's people refusing to buy various articles by weight, although the scales for that purpose are in a snug little corner of the market. "They do not even deny their object?-that it is to obtain an article at a less price than they could conscientiously ask by a specified weight; "how cunning those worthies would look." about those days (Christmas and New Year) were our farmers to agree as one, and refuse to let them have any more of our delicious Turkies, Ducks, Goest, Fowls, &c. &c. except by weight. I was at Kingston Market the other day with a considerable cargo of the above named poultry, and would you believe me, when I tell you that the "vicious" and "unjust" Kingstonians refused to buy my Geese, Ganders, Pullets, Roosters, &c. whether old or young, big or little, at weight, at the usual price of other meats, such as Mutton, Pork, &c. selling in the Market-and you know Mr. Editor, that poultry meat is by far the most palatable, and the most costly to raise. Notwithstanding all my appeals to their honesty, generosity, &c. and once in a while I would get a little out of humor you may be sure, and swore and stamped a little when they would offer me 6d for an old crower that would weigh 5 or 6 lbs.

—about 1d per lb.—and 1s. 6d. for an old gander that would give 13 lbs. a hard pull, it was all of no use. If I had stood there till I froze and starved it would have signified nothing, for the more I jawed and swore the worse matters grew, and as I wanted to sell, "I was obliged to comply." They jeeringly told me that I might sell or not sell, just "as I pleased"-that ganders were geese, and that a goose was a goose all over-in Kingston, says I, interrupting them, and he who makes the greatest fuss about " fair dealing" is the greatest goose of all. A FOWL DEALER.

drunk, and recommended Mr. Rogers to #8 street to and fro, to see if Mr. Rogers would put his threat in practice. The witness theff stated that he had seen Mr. Rogers, on several occasions intoxicated, and upon a recent of: casion on which he had to do business with the witness, as chairman of the committee for levelling the bank, he was so drunk as to Be unintelligible.

Antoine, the Canadian, was with him, and after continuing his abuse for a considerable time he then went off.

Dr. Robinson deposed to the material facts as stated by Dr. Sampson, and added that he had himself seen Mr. Rogers very often doing the duties of his office. Upon cross examination he stated, that he could not distinguish the occasions on which he saw Mf. Rogers drunk; but he saw him so very often: Mr. Rogers was about abreast of them when until he heard from him. Upon passing by the conversation and abuse took place, is sure that Mr. Rogers was not halfway between opposite the door where they were standing and and patient; he did not use one provoking work to Mr. Rogers during the whole time.

H. Smith, Jun. Esq. deposed-That he say Mr. Rogers sometimes tipsy, that upon one occasion some short time ago, he saw him supported by a woman, he thinks Mrs. Rogers on the one side, and some man on the other side, taken home drunk-he was then on the vacant lots opposite to Mr. Molson's, and his more of them, and represented the matstate was particularly noticed at the time, by ter to the Chairman, who reprobated the a lady who sat in a gig with the witness. conduct of Mr. R. for doing so without any On cross examination he denies being drunk sanction-he thought that in this instance himself at the time, and perseveres in saving more especially, he acted without authority, that Mr. Rogers was very drunk, and carried home by the man and woman, and this was himself (the witness) and the Chairman .before dusk, jut before the close of the afternoon. Witness says Mr. Rogers need make no remark for he often saw him so before.

George McMahon, William Derry, and William Rice, the sexton of St. George's Church, were called, and deposed to hearing that there was a want of taste in cutting them the abuse given by Mr. Rogers to Dr. Sampson, and repeated the words as complainant used them, but they did not hear the commencement of the affair, and they were too far away to know whether Mr. Rogers was drunk | diately said, damn you, sir, I have as good a or not, but some of the witnesses deposed to right to use my taste and judgment as you have often seen him muddled, but never very have-and looked so defyingly as to intimidrunk. All concurred in stating that Dr. S. seemed very calm on the occasion.

Antoine, the Canadian Mason, deposed-That he met Mr. Rogers on the Friday or the Saturday, he does not know which, and Mr. Rogers had something to explain to him about offence as there was no person present to give up to his Mr. Rogers' house in the evening, he was not drunk at the time, nor had he any appearance of it; he might have been taking a glass, but no person could notice it on him .-He says positively he was not under the in-Dr. Robinson, were standing on the flag stepand when they passed about nine or ten feet, as an architect under whom they worked. or near halfway from the door to the corner, Dr. Sampson called out and said, Mr. Rogers not seem to be angry at all. Witness upon being confronted with Dr. Robinson, stated that he is certain that Rogers had passed the door; and he further stated, in which he was contradicted by Dr. Robison, and Dr. Sampson-that Mr. Rogers said, if he was a gentleman, although he was a Magistrate, he would not insult a man as he did Mr. Rogers. On further examination he heard Rogers challenge Dr. Sampson to come out to fight, and that he would blacken his eye-and of himself he added, if a similar affront was offered to the witness himself, by Dr. Sampson, he would do so too-he did not wish to interfere, and altho' he did wink and blink at Dr. Sampson at the time very often, they did not signify that he was displeased at Mr. Rogers' conduct. He has known Mr. Rogers for several years, and never saw him drunk-never knew him to take more than a glass of beer or so-never positively saw him unfit for, or unable to give orders about any work he had to do. Saw Mr. Rogers afterwards the same day, at the o'clock.) corner of William Street with the men-he was not then drunk or had no appearance of

THOMAS KIRKPATRIER, Esquire, deposed that some time last fall, in the afternoon, he saw Mr. Rogers pass by on the opposite side of the street to his house and he appeared to be drunk, at which the witness was somewhat surprised, never before hearing that he was in the habit of being so. He was so drunk in the opinion of the witness, as to be unable to walk home without staggering very much, only that Mr. Meagher, who was with him, held him by the suspend any further prosecution of a work unarm. He has since heard that he drank-and der such order, ifhe thinks he has good reason he supposes he was drunk when he insulted

Doctor Sampson-he heard he was so. JOHN S. CARTWRIGHT, Esquire, deposed that he saw Mr. Rogers drunk one day passing by his house, it was between one and four o'clock veyor in suspending the work; but on any in the afternoon, and he was accompanied by (if any) occasion where a Magistrate should some person, he thinks Mr. Meagher-he was wantonly interfere with him in the discharge At an adjourned Sessions of the Peace for surprised to see him so, and so were the other of his public duties, he must not use violent the Midland District, held at the Court House persons in the house who noticed the circum- or unbecoming language, but complain to the in the Town of Kingston, on Monday 30th stance-he did not see him drunk on any other Sessions of such interference. occasion but this, and he did not before consider him at all addicted to drinking, therefore his surprise was the greater. The witness | casion, only because there was no third perwith his hande in his pockets, crossed over the son present, and he chose rather to pass over this insolence then, than to risk a decision where one man's word was posed to another's. He then stated that on returning one day from the Penitentiary, he saw a man cutting down the row of trees in the road just on the outside into consideration the best mode of proceeding of the Town near to Mr. Dupuy's-that he was vexed to see them cut down, as he always deemed them ornamental, and especially as it had been so arranged between himself and the honorable Chairman that he, as a Magistrate should be authorised so to dispose of the road here as not to interfere with the trees-under these feelings he inquired from the man engaged in cutting them down by whose authorshamefully tipsy, and as he thought unfit for ity he acted-he replied that Mr. Rogers engaged him to cut them all down. By this time he had felled one, and the other was nearly felled. The witness then ordered him, as the principal feature of which (after the Land a magistrate, to desist, and not to cut another

Mr. Rogers' place he saw Mr. Rogers in the garden, and he went in and accosted him civilly, asking him by what authority he ordered the trees to be cut down?-and he thought that perhaps Mr. Rogers acted without authority, of the Town-and especially, as on a former occasion he had found Mr. Rogers' son in the act of cutting three of the beautiful Oak trees forming part of the same row, and carrying the timber to his father's house, against which he, Dr. Sampson ordered him to cut down no bearing in mind the arrangement between Mr. Rogers replied that he did so by order of Sessions-the witness related the understanding with the Chairman, and Rogers said, doubtingly, that might be, but that he acted according to orders. The witness observed down, or that it was bad taste to do so-when Mr. Rogers came up to the witness in a very bullying manner with a spade in his hand and sticking the spade deep into the earth, immedate the witness, who retorted and said he was an impudent rascal. Upon this, Rogers called him all manner of scurrilous names and threatened him with violence if he did not quit his premises-he did so, and put up with this

Here the Chairman stated, that the conversom. The verdure, fragrance, and summer would give him the plan and explanation-that sation about the former cutting of the oak this witness said very well, and having to go timber, and the arrangement alluded to by to Captain Earl's for something, he walked up | Doctor Sampson, had taken place; and that with Mr. Rogers who was then going home- arrangement had entirely, up to that moment, this was in the afternoon, about half-past two escaped his memory, for which he expressed men almost regretful feeling when leaving it. or a little before three o'clock. Mr. Rogers much regret, as it in a degree led to the dispute between the parties.

Several respectable mechanics of Kingston were then called by Mr. Rogers, who testified as to their knowledge of his character. None fluence of liquor at the time they passed by of them, and they were numerous, ever knew Dr. Sampson's door, where Dr. Sampson, and him to be a drunkard, or to be so drunk as to disqualify him from attending to his business

Dr. Sampson did but never any thing to unfit him for attending to business. Mr. Rutherford never saw him in the least the worse of drinking.

Mr. James Meagher was called, and stated, friends. that he long knew Mr. Rogers, and he always found him to be a just honest man; he would sometimes take his glass, but nothing to hurt; so were we all accustomed to do, even the Doctor himself. On the day alluded to by Mr. Kirkpatrick and Mr. Cartwright, the witness minds it well, it was the day of the arbitration about the building of Chambers' house opposite the barracks. The witness urged the parties to settle he matter amicably by arbitration. They cid so, and in fact he was the cause of making them all, himself too, drink a little too mucl. He went home with Mr. Rogers, not but he thought that Mr. Rogers was able to go home by himself.

Here the evidence closed, and to clear the Court, and allow the Magistrates to decide upon the question, the Court was further adjourned for half in hour, (until half past two

Upon the Court being opened again, the Chairman stated that the second charge was not proven, but that they found the first charge of insolence to hoctor Sampson, while under the influence of louor, proven against Mr. Rogers, and ordered him to be reprimanded for his conduct on that occasion. In stating this finding to Mr. Rigers, the Chairman cautioned him as to his future conduct, when interfered with by any Magistrate. It is competent to a Magistrate not knowing the orders of Sessions, to tesire the Street Surveyor to an order repealed, or until he makes himself acquainted with the merits of the order issued.
