REPORT

OF A SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL OF UPPER CANADA, UPON THE COM-PLAINTS CONTAINED IN AN ADDRESS TO THE KING, FROM THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, PASS-ED 15TH APRIL, 1935, OF THE REJECTION BY THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL OF BILLS SENT FROM THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY; AND THE ADDRESS OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL TO HIS MAJESTY ON THAT SUBJECT. [Continued from our last.]

Then as to the flour and other provisions carried through this Province or brought into it for exportation, if the Legislative Council had concurred with the Assembly in an enactment directly repugnant to the Imperial Statutes, regulating foreign and colonial trade, it is not easy to see what advantage the Province could have derived from such an act of legislation. It is besides not very reasonable to reckon it among the proofs of insensibility to the public welfare, on the part of the Legislative Council, that they declined to pass the Bill containing these provisions, when it is remembered that the Assembly has not merely for many years acquisced in the present system, without an attempt to alter it, but that when such attempts have been made (as they have been on former occasions in the Assembly) they have been negatived in that House, and what is more worthy of remark, the printed journals of the last Session shew that this most important principle of the Bill in question occasioned so much doubt and difficulty in the Assembly, that it was once rejected in that House; that in a very full House the decision was afterwards only reversed by casting vote, and that several divisions subsequently took place upon it in which the As sembly was almost equally divided.

With respect to the Bill No. 4-From the earliest time, a moderate fine or composition in lieu of the duty of attending Militia trainings and drills in time of peace, has been exacted of Quakers and other religious sects who decline to bear arms.

Until lately the sum was twenty shillings annually. A provision of this kind is not peculiar to this country, and it is unnecessary to say that the existing laws on the subject must have originated in the Assembly. In 1835, some one or more of these religious sects petitioned the Council and Assembly to reduce the fine to ten shillings, and to allow the money to be appropriated to the improvement of the Roads. The Assembly passed and sent up a Bill exactly conceding what the petitioners asked for, and in this Bill the Legislative Council concurred. It is now represented as injurious in the Legislative Council that they declined, in 1835, to repeal an Act which the Assembly had themselves sont up to them in 1834, in literal compliance with the prayer of the parties interested. The Committee need scarcely call to the recollection of the House that the reasonableness of this proposed repeal was fully discussed in the Legislative Council, and that the measure was disposed of after mature consideration.

In regard to the Bill No. 6, for making void the Charter granted by His Majesty to King's College, and making other provision for the establishment of the University.

A careful examination of the Bill will show how for its provisions are "in conformity with His Majesty's gracious Instructions," as the Address asserts, and how far also they are consistent with opinions formerly expressed by the House of Assembly. The 6th, 7th, 9th, 13th, 16th, 20th, 21es, 25th, 26th, 28th, and 29th clauses are to be referred to, and carefully considered by any one who desires to form an opinion upon the propriety of passing such a Bill. If there is in any country an University resting upon principles similar to those which this Bill would establish, it is not known to the Committee, and every one can decide for himself the speculative question how far it would tend to promote the interests of science, to advance religion, morality, and social order, and to maintain discipline within the University, and how far it would be likely to add to the harmony and good understanding between the government and the Legislature, to have an University of which the principal officers should be appointed and removof which the interests and affairs must, in consequence, become mixed up with party politics and dissensions-a University of which the Directors are to choose not only the President but the Visitor, that is, the Superior by whom they are to be themselves controlled, and in proposing amendment, and with which above all, as it is expressly declared, of caution and attention the day of performed, the printed Journal of the performed, the printed Journal of the performed. "Creed or Faith of any Christian Church."

With respect to the Bill No. 8, rejected by the Legislative Council-Its object was to substitute Vote by Ballot for the English manner of voting viva voce, in the election of Members of Parliament. The subject is one upon which any individuals, or any body of men may, without requiring a great measure of indulgence, be allowed to differ in opinion; and the Legislative Council, in rejecting the proposed innovation, were merely adhering upon a great Con- ments; measures which concern concern stitutional point, to the practice prevailing in large, and which must therefore have an inthe British Empire, and were adhering also to the opinions which the House of Assembly appears equally to have entertained until the year 1835.

In regard to the Bill No. 9, rejected by the Legislative Council-The Schools or Acadamies to which that Bill referred are incorporaturning to the Provincial Statutes of 1830, in their order of time, viz:-

chapter 13, and of 1834, chapter 33. It will be seen that these are schools subject to so public government or control, either as to the appointment of teachers, the subjects to be taught, or the books to be used; and there is no responsibility to any of the public boards or authorities connected with education.

The resources of the Crown, and of the Province have been appropriated with great liberality towards the supporting an Universia ty, a College, a Grammar School in each one of the twelve Districts, and numerous Common Schools in the several Townships-all these are amenable to public regulation.

If the Legislature could devote to education ten times the amount they now apply. It would be happy for the country, but it is to be presumed that they would always think it proper to dispense their aid through the regular changels, and that public superintendence and assistance would go together.

This Bill would have commenced a new system, of which the end could not be fore-

The exertion made to erect and maistain these two Schools or Academies, was creditable to the founders; but any number of persous making similar exertions would have the same right to expect similar grants. These would all diminish the ability of the Legislature to promote education systematically; and if any such applications should be refused. the rejection might be ascribed to religious prejudices or to local preferences, or to other causes tending to excite jealousies and suspicions; and cases might indeed arise when it would be proper to refuse a public grant, but when the refusal must nevertheless seem ungracious, and might give rise to mis-construction and ill-will. The Committee will offer no further observations respecting those rejected Bills, except the remark that the conduct of the Assembly in regard to the most important of them has been by no means uniform: and it is therefore not easy to account satisfactorily for the extreme impatience expressed in the Address, at the circumstance that the Legislative Council did not happen to take precisely that view of them, to which the Assembly had made up their minds in the year 1835.

As an illustration of this remark, the Committee reminds the House that the Bill for abolishing the right of Primogeniture, and making real estate partible equally among all the children of an intestate, has been several times rejected in the Assembly; and in 1834, (the very year before this bill was passed by them,) the Assembly concurred in the passing of a Bill sent from the Legislative Council for amending the law of real property, in which the principles of the English law of descent are recognised and confirmed, with such modifications as had recently been introduced in England, upon the suggestions of the "real property Commissioners." While this Bill was before the Assembly. it was proposed to engraft upon it the substance of their Bill [No. 2] for abolishing the right of Primogeniture; but the proposition was negatived. The Assembly had, however, in several preceding Sessions, of late years, passed such a bill-though when it was first moved in the year 1822, the Member moving it was even refused leave to bring it in. The complaint is that the same preference for the English law, which the Assembly avowed in so decided a manner in the year 1822, is still retained and cherished by the Legislative Council. The Committee baving thus stated what has occurred to them in relation to the complaint addressed to His Majesty by the Assembly; it may not be unacceptable to the House, and may perhaps be useful to offer some explanations in regard to the part which has in reality been borne by the Legislative Council in the duty of Legislation committed to them, in common with the Assembly.

adopted by the Upper House of Parliement in England, the Legislative Council does not assume the right of originating what are called money Bills. By far the greater number of Acts that are passed relate to objects which require a grant ed by the votes of Legislative Assemblies, and or loan of money, or which exact services which fees or other remotheration must be the

It will be found that within the last four years the Legislative Council has taken its part, and perhaps more than an equal part in framing measures of this description. Your Committee adverts to the following
