See how the day beameth brightly before us! Blue is the firmament-green is the earth-Grief hath no voice in the universe chorus-Nature is ringing with music and mirth. Lift up the looks that are sinking in sadness-Guze! and if beauty can rapture thy soul, Virtue herself shall allure thee to gladness-Gladness! philosophy's guerdon and goal.

Enter the treasuries pleasure uncloses-List! how she thrills in the nightingale's lay? Breathe! she is wasting the sweets from the roses Feel! she is cool in the rivulet's play; Taste! from the grape and the nectarize gushing, Flows the red rill in the beams of thesun-Green in the hills, the flower-groves bleshing, Look ! she is always and every where one.

Banish then, mourner, the tears that are trickling Over the checks that should rosily bloom; Why should a man like a girl or a sickling, Suffer his lamp to be quenched in the tomb? Still may we battle for goodness and beauty; Still have philanthropy much to essay; Glory rewards the fulfilment of duty; Rest will pavilion the end of our way.

What, though corroding and multiplied sorrows, Legion-like darken this planet of ours, Hope is a balsam the wounded heart borrows Even when anguish hath palsied its powers; Wherefore, though fate play the part of a traitor, Soar o'er the stars on the pinions of hope, Fearlessly certain that sooner or later, Over the stars thy desires shall have scope.

Look round about on the face of creation ! Still is God's earth undistorted and tright; Comfort the captive's too long tribulatun, Thus shalt thou reap thy more perfect delight, Love! but if love be a hallowed emetion, Purity only its rapture should share: Love, then, with willing and deathless levetion, All that is just and exalted and fair.

In the House of Commons, on the 14th July, the report of the Committee to which was referred the Bill for regulating the salaries of the clergy, was taken up and debated at some length. Its provisions were opposed by Mr. Home and Mr. Baston, and supported by Sir Robert Peel, and Lord John Russell. Mr. C. Buller moved, as an amendment,, to allow the Archbishop of Canterbury £8000) per annum, the Archbishop of York £7000, the Bishop of London 4500, and the other Bishops 4000 each, in lieu of their present empluments .-The amendment was rejected. 82 to 44, and the report agreed to. On the 119th, it was again taken up for a third reading, and was vehemently opposed by Mr. Huime, Sir Robert Inglis, Mr. Fowell Buxton, sand Mr. Buller. Their opposition was so streeauous, that the debate was adjourned to the 222od. The Bill for the reduction of stamp duties on newspapers, was again undler discussion on the 15th, in Committee. A clinuse allowing 25 per cent discount on the menny stamp, to the Irish newspapers, was agreed to. The size of the sheet, liable to the prenny stamp, was fixed at fifteen hundred and thirty superficial inches. The Chancellor of the Exchequer stated that he had under considerration a plan for securing the copyrights of origginal articles published in newspapers.

It pains us much to learn that. His Majesty is indisposed, but we trust not serriously. All that has reached us on this interesting subject is contained in the following communication, forwarded, apparently by a priwate party, to the London Standard:-" We exceedingly regree to hear that the King has theen slightly indisposed for the last few days, but are happy to add that His Majesty is now better, an intends leaving St. James's palacre for Windsor Castle to-day."-July 21.

The following General Order has been issued from the Horse Guards, dated June 20 :-"Lord Hill finds it expedient to revise and extend the benefits of the regulation, under which the soldier of good character is indulged with permission to purchase his discharge upon the recommendation of his Commanding Officer. "His Lordship is convinced that the popularity of the military service generally, and the success of the recruiting service, cannot fail to be greatly increased by granting that indulgence to as liberal an extent as may be consistent with the maintenance of the efficiency of the Army. "With that conviction on his mind, Lord Hill earnestly recommends to Commanding Officers of Regiments and depots not to refuse their support to any case of application for dis-

"The want of a moderate number of men to complete the rank and file of a Regiment ought not, of itself, to be the means of disappointing a deserving soldier of his discharge, there heing no difficulty of obtaining recruits at the present low rate of bounty. "Lord Hill will accordingly watch the future operation of the admirable system of discharge for compensation, and give his decision in favour of every case in which the Commanding Officer shall not submit circumstancial proof of the unworthiness of the applicant it being always understood that exigencies may arise to render the total suspension of the grant of discharges absolutely necessary such as the embarkation of a Regiment for active service. " His Lordship will, on these occasions, ascertain the number of men wanting to complete by reference to the last returns of the Regiment to which the applicant belongs. Although the regulation in question was framed to reward the good and efficient soldier only, yet experience has proved that the army derives great advantage from the occasional discharge for the regulated compensation, of men of indifferent character, and whose habits may have rendered them permanently inefficient, as well as men who have been 100 long in a state of desertion to be again fit for the ranks. "All cases of the above nature are to be specially submitted by Commanding Officers, for Lord Hill's decision; and his Lordship expects he shall have it in his power to disencumber Regiments, of men of this description, without predjudice to the discipline of the service .- By Command of the Right Honoura-
