DR. J. S. JONES,
Surg. Dentist.

BEGS respectfully to inform the Inhabitants of Kingston and its vicinity, that he may be consulted daily, at his residence in Front Street, next door to Mr. Goodwin's Hotel. From Dr. J. S. Jones's professional experience he flatters himself he will be enabled to afford every satisfaction to persons requiring his assistance. Dr. Jones would particularly call the attention of Parents to the formation and position of their children's teeth, (a consideration much neglected in this Colony,) these he undertakes, however defective, to make good in perfect regularity and beauty.

In cases of TOOTHACHE, it has always been Dr. J. S. Jones's study to avoid the excruciating operation of extractions usually resorted to, but unsuccessfully, and without pain, to relieve the sufferer by a simple application recently discovered, and having studied the decayed tooth, restores it to its former usefulness. For this important discovery, Dr. J. S. Jones has provided himself with various sets of Instruments upon the most modern and approved principles.

Dr. J. S. Jones is enabled to say, that owing to his possessing the secret of making the Incurable Prolapsed Teeth, he can supply any deficiency of the mouth and gums, so completely as to prevent the possibility of detection.

Dr. J. S. Jones also to assure the Public that his professional services shall be rendered to all upon the most reasonable terms.
