The non-intrusion principle of the Free Protesting Church of Scotland, has always been, and still con-tinues to be in full force in the Persbyterian Church in Canada; and, although the title assumed by the church here, has put it nominally "in Connexion with the Established Church of Scotland," it has been repeatedly shown in letters and other documents published by some of our most eminent dirines, that the connexion was merely nominal, and that its adoption, or the adoption of the title, was the consequence of the gratitude and veneration which a favored offspring ought always to feel for an indulgent but dutiful parent.

The Free Protesting Church of Scotland is now which the Presbyterians of Canada now enjoy, and ardeally desire its uninterrupted continuance. That the members of the Presbyterian Church of Canada had feel the Comparative proportions of these by the order in which they are mentioned.

The Intermittent Caledonia Spring is, it will be wondered at,-for, the latter is merely contending for principles which the former already enjoy. It would be absurd in us here to bear testimony against our own principles, but it would be equally njurious to de any thing that could be construed into an admission or proof, that the practical application of those principles is unsafe or unwholesome, in our civil relations with the State.

We feel satisfied that the greatest friends of the Free Protesting Church of Scotland, when they bring themselves to weigh properly the position of the Church in Canada, would deprecate a division or disrurtion here. In our view, a division would sage through the immense extent of Ice in our har-rather militate against than in favor of the interests bar, for the purpose of getting the Steamer Britanrather militale against than in favor of the interests of the Free Protesting Church at home; for this reason, that, when it is admitted that we already are in the full enjoyment here, of all that is now contended for in Scotland, we ought to show the State, by the proper use of our privileges, and the due dispatch on the charge of our duties that we appeared our advanged on the dispatch on beard the collect funds for the proper use of our privileges, and the due dispatch on beard the collect funds for the proper use of our privileges, and the due dispatch on beard the Caledonia at eight o'clock, r. m. He left Bosshayer of our duties that we appeared our advanged to collect funds for the fund. of our ancestors.

We wish to disabuse the public mind in this respect. From some things we have heard, we cannot but think, that several persons here conceive, that, an open declaration against the Established Church wharf Corporations, of Scotland, is necessary to serve the Church here as well as the Free Protesting Church of Scotland. Nothing in our view can be more erroncous.

The Free Protesting Church of Scutland is non contending for the recognition of the very principles upon which the Presbyterian Church of Canada has acted; and in order to assist our transatlantic friends, we must by our conduct, show that the operation of the principle is safe here, and that its extension to Scotland would be equally so.

Were the Church in Canada, at present to rebel, it would be the best argument that men opposed to liberal principles could use, to provent the extension of free reclesiastical privileges to Scotland; for, instead of an outbreak or disruption here, operating favorably for the Free Church, its weight would be da the Free Church principle had been applied and tried, and found wanting; that the Presbyterians in Canada were not content with the enjoyment of situated; and it behaves all who value just privi-leges, to weigh well the part they are about to see. One false step may ruin the whole. The Churc here has it in its power to prove to the world, the well-working of the system which the Free Protesting Churchmen of Scotland are contending for ; but, if it appears from what takes place here, that the Apoleia, is uncode or environing by them. If one to be object, -at least so far as the influence of the favor-

It must always be kept in mind, that the Pree of Establishments, and that, the present difficulties sea on the day and hour appointed. removed, the members would all in a body return to the Church from which they have, we trust, but temporarily second. Unity and peace are what we advecate, not disruption nor discontent; but at the same time that union must be in strict accordance with defined principles. The Synod of Canada has a weighty duty to discharge when it meets; and we have no doub!, from the piety, intelligence, and discretion of its members, that that duty will be performed in strict accordance with what might be expected from such an august tribunal. We have the recorded testimony of the Convener of the committee of the Free Protesting Church of Scotland, that that Church regards "the notion the Committee. tually discreteing the authority of Christ, and re-pudiating the name of Christian." This shows very distinctly that, it is a question of principle, not Gentlemen,—The enterprise which was so promp eed the empluments of the Scottish Establishment, expenses incurred. because the grand bulwark of an establishment was tablishments, and of Christians of all denomina- with which it was accompanied; and, in tenderin

DESCRIPTION OF THE INTERMITTENT To Hon. M. BRIMMER,

SPRING AT CALEDONIA. This truly remarkable Spring has been known to the Inhabitants of Caledonia for many years, but twing to its almost inaccessible position, being separated from the other Springs by an impassable marsh of about two miles, has only within the last four years been made available. A board walk having been laid down which enabled visitors to indulge their curiosity by a trip to this delightful retreat in the wilderness, and hundreds can bear testimony to its extraordinary proprties ; a straight railroad will shortly be laid down on the principle of the circular one already so well known—so that pleasure will be combined with a healthy exercise in visiting " The Refreat." A Swies C-Hage will also grace this faweed spot, which, together with a "Shower Bath House" will be put up the coming season, when Pic Nic parties will, we have no doubt, often be the order of the day. The Wild Deer will be disturbed from his favorite haunt, and civilization once more be the innocent cause of driving that graceful creabure to a greater depth in his native forest. This Spring has been named the "Intermittent," in consequence of its overflowing the case which encloses ", at intervals of about four minutes, from the rush of Gas, which can be heard rumbling for some time before the explosion; it is perfectly inflammable, and will readily blaze up by applying a lighted

T has always been our auxious desire to remain perfectly neutral on all subjects concerning political disputations or predilections. Yet it cannot be considered that, although our pens were silent our hearts do not accord with one or the other of the two great parties of the day-We have watched with intense interest the movement on both sides of the checquer-board, and have felt the same glowing sentiments, the same heart-stirring effects, with the depressing influence and the melancholy forebod-ings, which the triumph or defeat of favorite principles naturally creates in the minds of all having a due and proper love of country.

Such being the considerations existing in our mind, and watching with more than ordinary excitement the proceedings of the Beltimore Covention, which meet in the month of May, we have determined to be satisfied, in advance of the meeting, on this important event, and to address the people themselves and endeavor to form their own deductions as to the and endeavor to form their own deductions as to the dispose of property with as much dispatch, next.
