WISTARS-BALSAM

OF WILD CHERRY
A COMPOUND BALSAMIC Preparation from Wild Cherry Bark and Tar.

The best remedy known to the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Croup, Bleeding of the Lungs, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Influenza, Shortness of Breath, Pain and Weakness in the Breast or Side, Liver Complaint, and the first stages of CONSUMPTION.

A THOUSAND CURES in cases deemed utterly hopeless have firmly established its vast superiority over every former medical discovery. It is a simple, safe, and efficacious remedy, being formed from the chemical extracts from Wild Cherry Bark and Tar—two trees that are thickly scattered wherever diseases of the lungs prevail. We give a few instances of its extraordinary power, from a catalogue without end.

A lady (address will be given at the New-York Agency) who was given up by all her physicians to die of consumption, had a hard tumor for months on the side—raised among large quantities of matter a sort of bony substance—had taken no medicine for two months, being past all hope—entirely cured by a few bottles of this Balsam in September and October, 1844.

A. Williams, Esq., Attorney, Sec., New-York, cured of spasmodic asthma of 25 years' standing, certified to by Recorder Tallmadge and J. Power, D. D.

A. Carman, New-York city, who had not slept, lying down, for 7 years, (being obliged to keep in a sitting posture), so far cured as to attend to his business in the most stormy weather.

Thomas Bradley, Esq., J. P., Jamaica, L. I., cured of asthma of 40 years' standing.

Mrs. Anna D. Hopkins, of Knowlesville, N. Y., entirely cured of liver complaint and general debility of eighteen months' standing.

Jacob Hoffman, M. D., Huntington, cured a child of P. Schroeder, of spasmodic disease of the lungs after he had tried all the usual remedies in vain.

"There is no such thing as a fall" in the history of this wonderful BALSAM. Evidence the most convincing—evidence that no one can doubt—fully establishes this fact.

Such is the unprecedented success of this BALSAM, "NATURE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION," a prescription congenial to our wants, as it is prepared from the Chemical extracts from substances which the Author of nature has placed in our own land for wise purposes, that many who know nothing of the mode of its preparation are endeavoring to reap pecuniary benefits by selling an article similar in name, or in appearance, or by representing their own trash as superior to this BALSAM, or by putting up a mixture and solemnly asserting that it is imported from a foreign country, which is not the case. All these deceptive arts go to show that WISTARS-BALSAM is known to the world to be "THE GREAT REMEDY," and that to sell any mixture it must be like this in name, or purport, or be like it in substance.

Believe not the cunningly wrought fabrications and lies of the original and genuine WISTARS-BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY.

No other can be like it.

A New and Excellent Preparation.

HALSEY'S SUGAR COATED VEGETABLE PILLS.

IN point of medicinal virtues these Pills will be found vastly superior to the most genuine of the old and boasted remedies—while a snow-white covering of candied sugar with which they are elegantly coated renders them pleasant to be taken, their medicinal properties are thereby retained to an indefinite period. As a general family medicine they are unequalled. Their action on the bowels is of the mildest character—they never gripe or cause inconvenience, and may be taken at any time without dereliction from business or abstinence from the regular course of diet.

For the cure of those complaints originating from sedentary habits or confined occupations, such as Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Debility, Lassitude, Low Spirits, &c., they are a remedy.

All can confidently rely upon.

In diseases arising from bilious and foul state of the stomach, and impurity of the blood, their effects are most wonderful. Maladies caused by this state of the system comprise most of the various forms of disease to which the human frame is heir. By the healthful action of these Pills on those organs which are diseased by nature to secrete the bile and separate from the blood its impurities, they cure use of them, will at once realize the striking difference between this efficacious and gentle remedy, and the incongruous and prostrating effects of severe drastic purgatives. Violent and hasty purgatives debilitate the frame and leave the bowels in a constipated state. Purgatives which leave the bowels active, even should they be popular remedies, should be avoided, for such are prejudicial to health.

Halsey's Sugar coated Pills are unlike all others. They are food for the body. Their virtues incorporate with the blood and harmonize with the order of nature. The miserable invalid after having taken a few successful doses of them, finds his health rapidly improving, and without having experienced any bodily weakness from their effects. He soon regains vigorous health and strength, and so little inconvenience has he experienced from their operation that he is ready to ascribe the restoration of his health to chance rather than the continual effects of their fine medicinal virtues.

A trial of a single box according to the directions which accompany them will be a convincing evidence of their great superiority, and show the admirable contrast between this new and excellent preparation, and the extensive advertised remedies of the day.

In order to make sure of the true and genuine article, observe the signature, G. W. HALSEY, on the engraved label of each box.

Price 25 cents per box.

LIFE'S SUNNY SPOTS.

BY WILLIAM LEGGOTT.

Though Life's a dark and thorny path,
Its goal the silent tomb,
It yet some spots of sunshine hath,
That smile amid the gloom;
The friend who weal and woe partakes,
Unchanged, whatever his lot,
Who kindly soothes the heart that aches,
Is sure of a sunny spot.

The wife who half our burden bears,
And utters not a moan,
Whose ready hand wipes off our tears,
Unheeded all her own;
Who treasures every kindly word,
Each harsher one forgot,
And carols blithely as a bird—
She's too, a sunny spot.

The child who lifts at morn and eve,
In prayer its tiny voice;
Who grieves when e'er its parents grieve,
And joys when they rejoice;
In whose bright eye young genius glows,
Whose heart without a blot,
Is fresh and pure as summer's rose,
That child's a sunny spot.

There's yet upon life's weedy road
One spot of brighter glow,
Where sorrow half forgets its load,
And tears no longer flow;
Friendship may wither, love decline,
Our child his honor blot;
But still undimmed that spot will shine—
Religion lights that spot.

MRS. CAUDLE'S CURTAIN LECTURES.

MRS. CAUDLE, SUSPECTING THAT MR. CAUDLE HAS MADE HIS WILL, IS "ONLY ANXIOUS AS A WIFE" TO KNOW ITS PROVISIONS.

"There, I always said you'd a strong mind when you liked, Caudle; and what you've just been doing proves it. Some people mustn't make a will, because they think they must die directly afterwards. Now, you're above that, love, aren't you? Nonsense; you know very well what I mean. I know your will's made, for Scratcherly told me so. What? You don't believe it? Well, I'm sure! That's a pretty thing for a man to say to his wife. I know he's too much of a man of business to talk; but I suppose there's a way of telling things without speaking them. And when I put the question to him, lawyer as he is, he hadn't the face to deny it.

"To be sure, it can be of no consequence to me whether your will is made or not. I shall not be alive, Mr. Caudle, to want anything; it shall be provided for a long time after your will's of any use. No, Mr. Caudle, I shan't survive you; and—though a woman's wrong to let her affections for a man be known, for then she's always taken advantage of—though I know it's foolish and weak to say so, still I don't want to survive you. How should I? No; don't say that; I'm not good for a hundred—I shan't see you out, and another husband too! What a gross idea, Caudle! To imagine I'd ever think of marrying again. No—never! What? That's what we all say? Not at all; quite the reverse. To me the very idea of such a thing is horrible, and always was. Yes, I know very well, that some do marry again—but what they're made of, I'm sure I can't tell! Ugh!

"There are men, I know, who leave their property in such a way that their widows, to hold it, must keep widows. Now, if there is anything in the world that is mean and small, it is that. Don't you think so too, Caudle? Why don't you speak, love? That's so like you! I never want a little quiet, rational talk, but you want to go to sleep. But you never were like any other man! What? How do I know? There now—that's so like you aggravating way. I never open my lips upon a subject, but you try to put me off. I've no doubt when Mrs. Prettyman speaks, you can answer her properly enough. But you are again upon my life, it is odd; but I never can in the most innocent way mention that person's name—that—Why can't I leave her alone? I'm sure—with all my heart! Who wants to talk about her! I don't; only you always will say something that's certain to bring up her name.

"What was I saying, Caudle? Oh, about the way some men bind their widows. To my mind, there is nothing so little. When a man forbids his wife to marry again without losing what he leaves—it's what I call selfishness after death. Mean to a degree! It's like taking his wife into the grave with him. Eh? You never want to do that? No, I'm sure of that, love; you're not the man to tie a woman up in that mean manner. A man who'd do that, would have his widow burnt with him, if he could—just as those monsters, that call themselves men, do in the Indies.

"However, it's no matter to me how you've made your will; but it may be to your second wife. What;—I shall never give you a chance? Ha! you don't know your constitution after all, Caudle. I'm not at all the woman I was. I say nothing about 'em, but very often you don't know my feelings. And as we're on the subject, dearest, I have only one favour to ask. When you marry again—now it's no use your saying that. After the comfort you've known of marriage—what are you sighing at, dear?—after the comforts you must marry again—now don't forswear yourself in that violent way, taking an oath that you know you must break—you
