PROSPECTUS OF A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,

ON A NEW AND OMPREHENSIVE PLAN TO BE CALLED THE

CANADIAN MONTHLY MAGAZINE:

IT is intended, in a short time, to submit to public approval or condemnation, a monthly Magazine of a haracter more extended than has hitherto been published in a British colony. Monthly and Quarterly periodicals have already been tried, but with one existing exception, without success; the projectors of the present work persuade impression they submit their plan. In an older society of a more artificial character,in a larger and more motley population, a magazine will find ample support, though confined to the advocacy of one class of principles, or the illustration These founts require a common pair of cases of one branch of science; England, France, Germagazines devoted to every possible modification of political and theological erced. Canada, if she desire to call into existence a periodical literature. must be content at first with one or two magazines > embracing all and every thing. With this view, it is proposed to admit articles on general politics of any creed, provided they discuss questions in candid, fair, and courteous language; avoiding every-the most distant affusion or expres- ed ;sion which may be deemed likely to create pain in any breast.

An honest and consistent Tory has pledged us an article now and then, and an unbending liberal is in The Farm is traversed in the centre by a run- tion. In this mode of discussing disputable points, the lover of truth must needs rejoice, though as it will make sad havoc with the trade of a political partizan chinery to any extent can be crected; and affords the projectors are induced to hope it will not be without enemics.

Having said thus much of the political characte of the Canadian Monthly Magazine, the public must not lose sight of the fact, that other subjects will occupy the larger portion of its pages. The improvement and developement of the resources of the Canadas, the promotion of education, sketches of society, literary essays and scientific disquisitions will all find their appropriate places. In short, every thing will be attended to calculated to render the work varied, instructive and entertaining.

In a country making use of two languages, the exclusion of either must destroy-or, at all events, interfere much with the usefulness of a work of the kind; to render it, therefore, more essentially com prehensive, the Canadian Monthly Magazine is proposed as the vehicle for articles in both French and D.
