PROSPECTUS

OF A WORK TO BE PUBLISHED BY

J. MCKINTOSH.

In compliance with the request of numerous friends throughout Lower and Upper Canada, as also in the States, I have now finished my work, to be entitled "THE ANTIQUITY OF THE GAEL OF ALBION AND ERIN: A VINDICATION OF THE NATIONAL CHARACTER OF THE GAEL," AND A GRAMMAR OF THE GAELIC LANGUAGE," which will be sent to the press as soon as a sufficient number of subscribers can be procured.

ART. I.

In compiling this brief sketch of the antiquity of the Gael, I have collected my materials from the most esteemed antiquaries that have discussed the subject. A few preceding writers are the only historians who have questioned the high antiquity, learning and early civilization of the Gael, while both Greeks and Romans leave but ample testimony behind them which sufficiently support the pretensions of the Gael.

The ignorance of such however, it must be remarked, was owing to their unskillfulness in the language, in which the traditions of the nation were annually recorded, or their foreign intermarriage. Whilst perambulating through a labyrinth of antiquity and antiquity, I have not referred to any tradition nor to the mere relation of the Bardic and Seneschal, nor to witness, integral in maintaining the pretensions of this nation. On the contrary, my witness is as the most unimpeachable characters, while Greece and Rome, so diligent antiquary Edmund Spenser, the luminous Campanus, the venerable Bede, and several other authentic historians stand favorable to my position.

ART. II.

The second part consists of an indication of the national character of the Gael of Erin, Albion and Wales from the time and prejudiced charges of Pinkerton and others, who have many discourses to reiterate their sentiments. The Celts, they assert, were of all savages the most deficient in understanding, and totally unable to raise themselves in the scale of society. To the first I reply in the affirmative, if learning, bravery and hospitality; if loyalty to their lawful sovereign, and fidelity to their friend be the constituent parts of humanity. To the second I likewise reply in the affirmative, if "to be bold, raise themselves in the scale of society" consist in alarming the sons or shining at the bar; or in decking their brows in the field of war with never failing laurels. The lofty notions of honor which imbue the mind of the ancient Celts and urged them to deeds of admirable heroism and striking generosity is a proof of elevation of mind and refinement of sentiment.

ART. III.

The third part consists of a facile grammar, in framing which, I have spared no pains, with intent that it might tend in some measure to preserve this ancient language from perishing in the revolutions of novelty and fashion. To prove the antiquity of this language, and to show how highly indebted the languages of Cicero and Demosthenes are to the Gaelic, for copiousness, majesty and melody, I have diligently collated the Gaelic with the Latin, Greek, and several other ancient and modern languages spoken in the East and West. Being influenced purely by a love of the task without reference to pecuniary considerations, it is to be hoped, that the Gaels will be gratified in maintaining the pretensions of this nation.

The following papers are most respectfully requested to copy the above Prospectus, and by so doing shall receive a copy of the work with the thanks of the author:

Mercury and Gazette Quebec, Viscount, Gazette and Herald, Montreal; Patriot and Correspondent, Toronto; Cornwall Observer; Brockville Constitution; Cobourg Star; The Truth Teller, Old Countryman, and Emigrant, New York; The Literary and Catholic Sentinel, Boston.

PROSPECTUS

OF A WORK TO BE ENTITLED

THE MILESIAKS,

Or an Inquiry into the Origin and History of the Irish.

BY ROBERT JEFFERS.

TO THE PUBLIC.

SOME of the Greatest and most Important Discoveries had their rise from (apparently) trivial or incidental circumstances.

One of the most distinguished Members of the Highland Society of Kingston, in a company where the author of this "Inquiry" was present, asserted that "the Irish had their origin from the Highland, or (what he called) Celtic Scots; and that the Progenitors of both the one, and the other, had come across the Strait of Dover, from the continent of Europe."

This simple occurrence determined the Author to institute this inquiry.

He hopes to prove beyond possibility of successful contradiction—

I. That the Irish are Progenitors, in this case, and not Descendants.

II. That all who have right claim to the Gaelic and Irish as their native Language had ONE common origin.

III. That their First-Fathers did NOT come across the Strait of Dover, nor from the Continent of Europe.

IV. That although Geographical and Provincial circumstances cause the Highlanders to be considered as part and parcel of the Scottish Nation, their natural connection is with Ireland. And that as to Origin and Language, they have no more connection with the Lowland Scots, than they have with the population of Sweden or Russia.

In the prosecution of this "Inquiry," a Summary of the State of Erin, as well as a kindly feeling between them and all other Nations.

It is also hoped to remove the great of gross of misrepresentations which the National Character: and by way of embellishment of just misrepresentation—to exhibit the pure, ETERNAL in all its native lustre; so that it shall be proved at once (and not disprove) to be connected with Ireland.

In fine, the Author is confident he can prove that the IRISH is the most peculiar and interesting nation (the Jews excepted) that exists, or has existed on the face of the Earth.

CONDITIONS.

The work shall come out in numbers, prior one quarter Dollar each. And as the Author does not expect to gain, (except in his National gratification,) so he cannot afford to lose—the therefore expected that each subscriber will pay for one month in advance, on putting down his name, to the Author, or to Mr. David, Esq., of Kingston, with whom the amount will be deposited, until the number are given into his hands for delivery.

Public spirited and influential Trichotom in Montreal, Quebec, Toronto, New-York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. &c. are requested to aid in the subscription for, and sale of the work.

Was any amount worth its saving is subscribed, they will please enclose their money directed to—Colonel Mc Donnell, Esq. (and Mr. Donald Hurst Bank, Kingston), who will retain, until the numbers are delivered, and then the number are given into his hands for delivery.

As there is a Fellow Citizen (of Cork) with the Author, who sits a high situation in Charleston, S. C. He is hereby most respectfully solicited to assist in the furtherance, and sale of this IRISH Work.

All Editors in Canada and the United States, who feel friendly to the Irish, will please to insert this Prospectus, and those who continue to do so, shall be entitled to a copy of the Work.

N. B.—Those who wish to act as Agents for this work, on their forwarding the price of 8 numbers, they shall have forwarded to them 10. For 16, they shall have 18; for 22, they shall have 32, for the price of 54, they shall have forwarded 63.
