KINGSTON, FRIDAY EVENING, JUNE 26, 1835.

----The Montreal Herald has honored us with a long notice. We shall return the compliment as concisely as we can. We nserted the remarks of our "great" friend, simply because we vished our country readers, who are anxiously anticipating the benefits of the Provincial Loan Company, to know that To render the whole more attractive, the propri- something could be said against its usefulness. We did not readers to believe us prejudiced against the new Institution. We have not written in its defence, because in the first place, argument is not our forte; and secondly, we have not had an opportunity of examining the bill in its details. Our opinion is simply this-this country is perishing for want of proper capital, and every institution that has for its object the increase of such a vital necessary-must be beneficial in the main, however numerous its minor evils may be. We trust our "great" friend will take himself off our back, as he is likely to find a much more willing and able antag mist, in our now no lorger Yankee contemporary.
