KINGSTON, FRIDAY EVENING, AUG. 14, 1835.

-From our items of English News received by the Packet of heath, we have selected the following: Lord Glenelg, Secretary of State for the Colonies, gave a farewell dinner last evening at his residence in Great George treet, to the Earl of Gosford, Sir Charles Grey and Sir George Gipps, His Majesty's Commissioners for the affairs of Canada.

-July 4.

There is an anecdote current, and it was published by an stening contemporary of last night, respecting an address of His Majesty to Sir Charles Grey, on occasion of the worthy Baronet being sworn in Commissioner to Canada. It is said that His Majesty, on Sir Charles Grey rising from his knee, warned him against softering Canada, through this means, to be "lost or given away." The sentiment was that of a sound and manly hearted Eriton. We trust there is no such fate in thre for Canada, but in all reverence and loyalty to our Sotereign, we are not sure that such extra-official and irregular warnings are the best or safest modes through which a King sommands to those by whom they are to be executed .- Times swine, are by no means uncommon.

PLYMOUTH, July 6.—The Pique, 36, Hon. Captain Rous, well sail on the 9th mst. with the newly appeared Commis-

Cobbett's place in Parliament is filled by a Tory, (Lees) who was elected by a majority of seven over John P. Cobbett.

We have seen a letter signed "H. Smith, Junr." in several of the Kingston papers. This letter is doubtless from the individual, who in addition to a true bill of indictment for an asmail and riot under colorable circumstances, was presented by the Grand Jury of the District, a body composed chiefly of his own townsmen, for the crime of perjury. This is the inditidual who has presumed to address the public. Let us see what the ill-advised young man has to say for himself. We that divide his letter into three parts.

"The Grand Jury having made a presentment against me at the late assizes, I deem it my duty to inform the public the realt of the same, and the reason why no further notice was taken thereof, nor a bill of indictment preferred." The writer takes care not to mention the name of the offence, nor does he allude to the bill for the riot, &c. or the other accusation for another offence, which the Grand Jury thought fivolous. His extreme modesty no doubt occasioned the

"Immediately on hearing that a presentment was made, I requested His Majesty's Attorney General, to frame an indictmest, that the matter might be brought before the public in its tee light. That gentleman informed me he would bring on the trial on the following morning, when I attended, and he then told me, that it was a matter entirely extra judicial, & having proceeded from the voluntary act of my own, from which I seed derive no benefit, no indictment could be proved, and when I was discharged from the complaint."

We should be loth to tell a gentleman we did not believe him: it is however a liberty we shall take with this young man-pay, we fear it is a liberty that many other people will the with him, until this imputation upon his character is remored. It was on Thursday that the presentment was made, and it was not until Saturday, that the Attorney General moved the discharge of the prisoner. What then becomes of the section, that the trial was to come on next day? Several gentlemen of the bar with whom we have conversed, have asserted in contradiction to the Attorney General, that an indictment could have been framed upon the presentment, for the elleged offence was not extra-judicial; and also, that Young Smith could have compelled the Crown Lawyer to afford him An apportunity to vindicate his name from so foul an aspersion as that of perjury. Allowing the accusation to be maliciously made, what a door would be opened to false swearing, could the prosecutor or Crown Lawyer quash presentments as soon as made, leaving the injured party to remain beneath the stigme for life. If this be the fact, what becomes of Young Smith's willingness to stand trial?

"It is not my present intention to make any reflections or the instigator of that measure, nor the motives from which he acted-but in conclusion I would remark, that this presentment American steamship, and very seriously suggested was made without first consulting the Crown Officer, a fact to the British Government, that a vessel of similar that plainly denotes that the object sought for by the prosecu-for was not justice, but revenge." The "instigutor of the measure" is no less a personage than the High Sheriff of the District, who was the principal wit-Dess before the Grand Jury. We are perfectly sure this gentleman wants no excuse for his "motives" from our pen. His other parts of Mississipi, which have recently given author whom you "know to be a man of honor and character stands ton high for honor and probity to be injured by such a shock to the feelings of the community. The a gentleman." If he has any pretensions to be conought that Young Smith can say against him. As for the She- following, from the Natchez Courier of the 10th sidered either the one or the other, and wrote what soings by Dr. Barker, Editor and Proprietor, at his Office in riff's not having spoken to the Attorney General previous to going before the Grand Jury, that vory rarely takes place in cases of presentment, and the allusion to the omission, coupled with other parts of the letter we have criticized, shews this young lawyer's acquaintance with criminal law not to be prodigious :- it is not however improbable but it may improve in that particular.

FACTS AND SCRAPS.

"Yesterday evening the Great Britain on her passage upwards touched at French Creek; having as passengers a Serjeant Major, Serjeant, Corporal and private, 66th Regiment. Whilst the boat was lying at the wharf, the Serjeant Major recognized a man he knew to be a deserter from that Regiment, who after some time went on board; where he was serzed by No letters taken in, except from Agents, unless POST | the Serjeant Major, with the intention of keeping him in custoof the boat. The deserter was however immediately rescued by the Americans; and had it not been for the prudent and conciliatory conduct of Capt. Whitney, which succeeded in alto be the pride of her waters." - Chronicle.
Some explanation appears in the Watertown Eagle, but it is written in a style so bombastic, and so characteristic of the American nation, that we know the exact credit to attach to it. The editor of the Eagle considers it as an act of brazery to full bove :upon and disarm four British soldiers, thereby preventing them from executing their duty. Had these soldiers gone to French Creek for the purpose of arresting this deserter, some excuse might be alleged for this act of violence, but as they were on their way to Kingston on especial business, and while so, fell in contact with a deserter from their regiment, they clearly had a right to detain him until the magistrates of the village were called, which it appears was all that was intended. The cow-THE subscriber continues to occupy this extensive tish soldiers, would run like hinds did they meet them on any and well known establishment as an HOTEL for grounds of equality. We know not on what pretence a nation pretending to justice and good government, can justify and defend the conduct of a deserter !

> have much pleasure in assuring our readers that the defection of Messrs. McKenzie & O'Grady from the Farmer's Joint Stock Banking Company, has not in the least injured that highly valuable institution. A Bank to be really useful, should have no political character, and as a suspicion was affoat among men of business in this province, that the bank was to be used as a political engine, that suspicion removed by the strange conduct of the leaders of the ultra-reform party, has been the means of inclining a great many respectable and wealthy men, not only to buy all stock that came into the market for sale, but to take new shares in their own name. This is as it should be. The run upon Messrs. Truscott & Green, in consequence of Mr. McKenzie's letter, was over in three days, for the holders of the notes became ashamed of presenting them for cash when they saw how well the Bank was able to meet them.

DREADPUL Accident .- Yesterday afternoon, between three and four o'clock, as a number of laborers were employed in undermining the ruins and carrying off the rubbish from the scene of the late fire in St. Paul Street, adjoining the premises of Meesrs. Peter M.Gill &Co., the gable wall next to Mr. Doyle's, beneath which they were at work, suddealy fell with a midst tremendous crash, bearing with it a back wall, with which it was connected by rafters. After the dust and confusion had a little subsided, two men were discovered almost dead. and were infinediately conveyed to the hospital, where they shortly afterwards expired. We could not ascertain their names. Four horses were next found, partly buried, two of which were alive, but being much bruised, they were immediately put to death. Three corpses were afterwards taken out of the ruins, most dreadfully mangled Their names were Francois Aumier, Michel Lavoye and Hypolite Senegal. Two men fortunately escaped by rushing under an arch, and another by clinging to an adjacent wall escaped with a contusion on the arm.
