CAREY'S LIBRARY

Choice Literature. O say that this is a rending age, implies a desire for instruction, and the means to gratify that desire. On the first point, all are agreed; on the second, there is diversity both of opinion and of practice. We have newspapers, magazines, reviews, in fine pamphlets of all sizes, on nearly all subjects, which have severally their classes of readers and supporting the subjects, which have severally their classes of readers and supporting the supporting ers. And yet, copious as are these means of intellectual supply, more are still needed. In addition to the reviews of the day, and passing noare still needed. In addition to the reviews of the day, and passing notices of books, the people, in large numbers, in all parts of our great republic, crave the possession of the books themselves, and details, beyond mere passing allusion, of the progress of discovery in art and science.—
But though it be easy to ascertain and express their wants, it is not so easy to greatly them. Expense, distance from the emporium of literature engages are required as which prevent personal application of every particular expense. easy to greatly them. Expense, distince from the emportant of therefore engressing occupations which prevent personal application or even messages to tibraries and booksellers, are so many causes to keep people away from the feast of reason, and the enjoyment of the coveted literary aliment. It is the aim of the publishers of the Library to obviate these difficulties, and to enable every individual, at a small cost and without any personal effect to obtain for his own that and that of his favored. Givenly personal effort, to obtain for his own use and that of his favored friends or family, vakuable works, complete, on all the branches of useful and popular literature, and that in a form well adapted to the comfort of the

The charm of variety, as far as it is compatible with morality and good taste, will be held constantly in view in conducting the Library, to fill the pages of which the current literature of Great Britain, in all it vairous departments of Biography, History, Travels, Novels and Poetry, shall be freely put under contribution. With, perchance, octasional exceptions, it is intended to give entire the work which shall be selected for publication. When circumstances authorize the measure, recourse will be had to the literary stores of Continental Europe, and translations made from French, Italian, or German, as the case may be.

French, Italian, or German, as the case may be.

Whilst the body of the work will be a reprint, or at times a translation of entire volumes, the cover will exhibit the miscellaneous character of a Magazine, and consist of sketchs of men and things, and notices of novelies in literature and the arts, throughout the civilized world. A fell and ties in literature and the arts, throughout the civilized world. A full and regular supply of the literary monthly and hebdomadal journals of Great Britain and Ireland, in addition to home periodicals of similar character, cannot fail to provide ample materials for this part of our work.

The resources and extensive correspondence of the publishers, are the best guarantee for the continuance of the enterprise in which they are now about to embark, as well as for the abandance of the materials to give it value in the eyes of the public. As far as judicious selection and arrangement are concerned, renders will, it is hoped, have reason to be fully ratisfied, as the editor of the Library is not a stranger to them, but has more than once obtained their favorable suffrages for his past literary

The work will be published in weekly numbers, in stitched covers, each number containing twenty imperial octavo pages, with double columes, making two volumes annually, of more than 520 crtavo pages, each volume; and at the expiration of every six months, subscribers will be furnished with a handsome title page and table of contents. The whole amount of matter furnished in a single year will be equal to more than forty volumes of the common sized English duodecimo books, the cost of which will be at least ten times the price of a year's subscription to the "Library." The paper open which the Library will be printed, will be of the finest quality used for book-work, and of a size admirably adapted for binding. As the type will be entirely new, and of a neat appearance, each volume, when bound, will furnish a hundsome, as well as valuable and not cumbrous addition to the libraries of those who patrouize the
