CARNEY'S LIBRARY

It is now a reading age, and a desire for the "Vade Mecum" is felt by every individual. On the first point, all agree; and the second, there is diversity of opinion and practice. We have new-papers, magazines, reviews, in the pamphlets of all sizes, on nearly all subjects, and have every class of readers and supporters. And yet, copious as are these means of intellectual supply, none are well needed. In addition to the reviews of the day, and passing notices of books, the people, in large numbers, in all parts of our great republic, crave the possession of the books themselves, and desire, beyond mere passing allusion, the progress of discovery in art and science. But though it be easy to ascertain and express their wants, it is not so easy to gratify them. Expense, distance from the centers of literature, and the want of means to procure them, are so many causes to keep people away from the feast of reason, and the enjoyment of the coveted literary treat, as to make the publishers of the books themselves, to obviate these difficulties, and to enable every individual, at a small cost and without any personal effort, to obtain for his own use and that of his favored friends or family, valuable works, complete, on all the branches of useful and popular literature, and that in a form well adapted to the comfort of the reader.

The form of article, as far as it is compatible with morality and good taste, will be held constantly in view in conducting the Library, to fill the pages of which the current literature of Great Britain, in all its various departments of Biography, History, Travels, Novels and Poetry, shall be freely put under contribution. Expense, distance from the centers of literature, and the want of means to procure them, are so many causes to keep people away from the feast of reason, and the enjoyment of the coveted literary treat, as to make the publishers of the books themselves, to obviate these difficulties, and to enable every individual, at a small cost and without any personal effort, to obtain for his own use and that of his favored friends or family, valuable works, complete, on all the branches of useful and popular literature, and that in a form well adapted to the comfort of the reader.

TERMS. The work will be published in weekly numbers, in stitched covers, each number containing twenty-four pages, with double columns, making two volumes annually, of more than 200 octavo pages, each volume; and at the expiration of every six months, subscribers will be furnished with a handsome bound volume, containing the whole of the matter furnished in a single year will be equal to more than forty volumes of the common sized English duodecimo books, the cost of which would be more than twice as much. The price of a year's subscription to the "Library," as the type will be entirely new, and of a neat appearance, each volume when published will be a handsome and valuable, and not cumbersome addition to the libraries of those who patronize the work. The price of the Library will be five dollars per annum, payable in advance.

A commission of 20 per cent. will be allowed to agents; and any agent or postmaster, furnishing five subscribers and retaining the amount of subscription, shall be entitled to the commission of 20 per cent. or a copy of the work for one year. A specimen of the work, or any information respecting it may be obtained by addressing the publishers, post paid, to the Editor of the "Vade Mecum," to whom the prospectus is forwarded, will please insert the above as often as convenient, send a copy of their paper containing the advertisement marked, and enclose themselves to a free exchange for one year. Address: E. L. CARNEY & A. HART, Philadelphia, Philadelphia, July 17th, 1835.

THE GENTLEMAN'S VADE MECUM;

OR THE Sporting and Dramatic Companion, INTERSPERSED WITH A MULTITUDE OF ENGRAVINGS,

INCLUDING Portraits of Celebrated Winning HORSES, Philosophical and Natural Phenomena, Legerdemain, &c.

It is now six months since this publication was commenced in Philadelphia, and although the publishers have used no extraneous means to circulate a knowledge of its merits, yet such is the satisfaction manifested by that portion of the public who have been made acquainted with its character and contents, that its list of patrons continues constantly and rapidly to increase. The paper is now published regularly every week, over a wide portion of the Union, and the most satisfactory assurances are received that it will eventually become one of the most popular among the numerous excellent periodicals now published in this country. No exertions will be spared to establish its permanent reputation, and, as the liberal sanction of those for whom it is especially designed shall warrant, its future improvement—both as regards typographical neatness and embellishment—will be constantly advanced.

The different Plays and Farces that will appear in the course of a year, of themselves, will be worth more than FOUR times the amount of subscription. The following is a list of those which have already appeared:—
