THE CITY BREWERY COMPAGNY

Selected Poem.

THE PRINTERY'S MISSION.

BY FREDERICK WINN COLE.

To hold and turn the teeth of Truth,
And wave it o'er the darkened earth;
To sway the yearning heart of youth,
And give the earnest thought its birth;
Abroad upon thy way to flow,
From off thy never-resting wing,
Upon the crowds that blindly grope
In blank despair, a ray of hope—
This is thy mission to thy kind,
Thou mighty Mercury of Mind.

What though thy torch be often fuel,
From fane where falsehood sits enthroned,
And poison mingles with the bread

Thou givest to the languid mind;

What though the Press public teems
With idle trash and skeptical dreams;

Give open field, and humbly wait

Till thou shalt see their final fate.

Truth needs, to aid her giant bane,
No vantage ground above her feet

The patient serjeant struck long ago

Upon his slowly yielding race,

And iron custom felt the blow;

And after years its mark could trace.

Think not that thou shalt leave behind,

Upon the Protean public mind,

The image that the classic could make:

A shape unknown to thee 'twil take—

But strike! thy arm shall help to mould

This mortal mass no longer cold.

Then sent she forth? Then herald ray

Of dawning brightness, which so soon

Has taught us that was far from day

Which boasting Athens thought was now!

Was it from Faustus' brain alone?

Thou hast thy being? Hast thou grown

In skill so wise, in strength so great,

To sport with foils, or sway the state?

I see thy brightening path, it treads
