

repeat, of their evil deeds, within the walls of a prison.

"It is thus that the Organs of the Faction, whilst Justice is supposed to hold the scales in the Court of Queen's Bench, exhibit their friends malignity.

"In a very different spirit does the Organ of the Presbyterians abide to the subject. The Banner of Ulster in its last number, says—

"We have heard a very confident statement that Sir Robert Peel has been overruled in the cabinet, and that Mr. O'Connell and his companions in adversity will be successful, if the law permits. The rumor will, however, erroneous. We have already stated our opinion that in the confidentially quiet condition of this country, much merit is lost, and very little could be gained, by extreme measures; and we confess, that the disposition exhibited by some of the persons on this subject is not pacific and conciliatory."

"This is the question. What is to be gained by the incarceration of Mr. O'Connell? And, also, what might be lost, if the Government, having the power under the subdane of law, is sent to a prison the Great Leader of the Catholic Millions, and the man whose influence also could save the country from the horrors of convulsion—should rush into that dreadful extremity.

"But, we do believe that no such calamity is impending. We have reason to know that the Crown will not even seek the enforcement of any sentence—in case sentence should ever be passed—the argument of a Writ of Error to the House of Lords. There is no precedent existing for a proceeding so utterly opposed to every notion of justice and common sense.

"In all cases of Writs of Error, it has been the invariable practice to suspend the execution of sentence until the highest Court of Appeal shall have pronounced its judgment. It is a personified with felony sentenced to transportation, and that he obtains a Writ of Error, the enforcement of the sentence is as a matter of course, delayed until the decision of the judgment is determined. Why, in this case of St. Patrick's, of such predominant importance to a whole nation, the ordinary course of justice should be reversed, we cannot imagine, unless it were to parallel to the blind and foolish malignity of the Orangemen and their Friends."

"But, as we have said, we have reason to believe that the Attorney-General, as a master of ordinary routine, in case judgment should be pronounced, would require only the usual security for the speedy prosecution of the Writ of Error, and that the Travellers should be forthcoming to undergo the sentence, in case the final judgment of the House of Lords should be against them."

"We have already stated the grounds of our conviction that the House of Lords must decide in their favour, and thus quash the verdict."

Considerable interest exists just now in London upon the subject of the Commercial Convention just signed between the Customs Union of Germany and the United States; and just previously to the sailing of the Hibernia, a meeting was held by the Board of Trade—at which, (it is rumored) the British Minister came to the determination of reducing the import duty upon American Tobacco. It is also stated that France intended to follow the same course.

I am dear Sir, yours, &c.

The following is a trifling but hearty tribute of gratitude on the part of the Inhabitants of Barriefield to Dr. Taylor, Assistant Surgeon of the 93rd Regiment, who having taken up his quarters in the village, rendered himself extremely useful, during the short stay the Highlanders made in Kingston:

Copy of an address presented to Assistant Surgeon Taylor, by the undivided Inhabitants of Barriefield.

To Assistant Surgeon Taylor, 93rd Highlanders.

We cannot allow you to quit your residence at Barriefield in order to accompany your gallant Regiment, without expressing to you our heartfelt gratitude, for the many kindnesses, we and our families have received at your hands since first you came to live among us. The greater portion of the Inhabitants of Barriefield are poor—composed of fishermen, and labourers, and unable to pay for Medical aid. Upon all occasions, you have visited our families and administered Medical assistance to us without fee or hope of reward, and this you have done spontaneously from your kind disposition, dispensing health and comfort wherever you went. In whichever part of the world it may please Providence to take you, you will always be followed by the prayers and good wishes of the Inhabitants of Barriefield, to whom your memory and that of your amiable Lady, will ever be held most dear.

Wishing you both health and prosperity,

We remain your obliged,

And grateful servants,

James Windsor, Mr. Burke,

Barriefield, May 8, 1844.

Assistant Surgeon Taylor's reply to the address of the inhabitants of Barriefield.

GENTLEMEN:

Your address just now received on the eve of my departure, is no less gratifying than it has been unexpected. During my short residence among you it has afforded me sincere pleasure to visit the indigent sick in this vicinity, and I am happy that my humble services to relieve the afflicted, have been so kindly appreciated. Accept my cordial thanks for your good wishes towards myself and family, and be assured your many acts of kindness and attention will be long remembered by us both. Wishing you all health and happiness,

I am your obedient Servant,

GEORGE TAYLOR,

Ass't Surgeon 93rd Highlanders.

To Messrs. Forbes and McCrea, and other gentle men who signed the address.

Barriefield, 8th May, 1844.

To the Editor of the British Eng.

Sir:

I beg to call your attention to a serious inconvenience occasioned to travellers by the delay of boats waiting for the Mail. A few days ago, I took my passage downwards, and hastened on board at an early hour, as the boat was to start precisely at 7 o'clock—but we were detained about an hour and a half to receive the mail. In talking over the matter with other passengers, I found that much dissatisfaction prevailed about the tardiness of the Post-Office. If the delay is unavoidable caused by the overhauling at the office, that department is of course blameless, and the public should be so informed; but if greater dispatch be possible, I trust the complaint will be removed: as things are carried on at present, the new Post office arrangements are far from fulfilling public expectation.

A TRAVELLER.

May 10th, 1844.

THE CHANCE OF GARRISON.—The Head Quarters of the 82nd Regt., arrived in Town yesterday from Quebec, and proceeded on their way to Toronto the same day. The Left Wing of the 93rd Highlanders left Kingston yesterday for Montreal, but the Left Wing of the 82nd Regt., to replace them at Kingston has not yet come up.

THE STEAMER FRONTENAC.—This fine vessel will leave Kingston for Toronto and Hamilton, on Monday evening next, at 4 o'clock, touching at all the intermediate ports on the route.

During the contention which has been carried on in this Province for place, power and patronage, and in which the whole country has suffered so much, Quebec has been stripped of every thing connected with the Government. The General Post Office was the last of the public departments to be removed, and we see it to be established in St. James' street, Montreal.

The legislative buildings erected or purchased out of the Provincial funds, have been completely gutted of their furniture and every thing portable, to decorate St. Ann's Market House, at Montreal, during the three years lease.

We are happy, however, to find that the Scientific and Literary Society of Quebec have been allowed to replenish the building in part. The Quebec Library, by the exertions of the Commercial Library Association, has been transferred to the House of Assembly, and a reading-room established there; and for the specification of the leaders of the "collective wisdom" of the Province, we shall occasionally have public lectures.

Quebec has had very little share in producing the dissensions which have affected the Province, and from the effects of which this city has suffered so much. There are, however, some things of which we cannot be deprived—the general good, peaceful and loyal conduct of its inhabitants, its local position on the great channel of commercial communications of Canada; and, it is to be hoped, the increasing exertions, honest industry, and intelligence of its inhabitants.—Quebec Gazette.
