There are prople in this country calling themselves loy-lists, and it a man had his barn burnt during the rebellion, or his cattle killed, the first question put on demanding compensation, was "What are his politics." If a loy-list, by which they me int a supporter of the Government, then he was recompanied. [No No.] How rould the bon, member for Huion say so; he was in Himon at that time. and yet undertook to speak most co-fi ently of the office of Lower Canala. Now he [Mr. Aylwin] so far from laterfering thus i Upper Canada affairs, he would not undertake to settle any topographical question touching Haron. No: he would not even say which was more westerly or northerly, Galt or Goderich, and those, he understool, were the two largest places in Huron. If the leser were supporter of the Government, he then was paid his loss s, and got some thing into the bar ga-n. But if he were a man who, for his sins, differed with them in politics, although he dinot raise his hand against the Government, he did not get one farthing. Col. Prince, in the Upper Canada Parliament, introduced a bill to pay the £40,000, and he told him, and believed it, that £40,000 would not near pay those loss es; that £500,000 would not pay it. The Government stated that they had no means to pay them, and he hoped that declaration would be heard in all parts of the country, and that when this road or that mad, this bridge or that tridge, was made by the Government, he would then ask how was it that that part of the country was so much favored. It should be well known, that popule coming to the Government with clares, cannot have them satisfied at once, perhaps for eight or ten years, and that there are reaso s of state which cannot be never seen any practical good result from the made public, but which make such a course necessary.

TO THE PRINTER OF THE BRITISH WING. MONTREAL, January 20, 1845.

Although I have been in Muntreal since Thursday last, yet my time has been so entirely taken up with private business, that I have not readers I have been but twice in the Reporters' tricols are greatly on the decline, and few can Box, (House of Assembly,) and then only for a be found speculative enough to embark their cafew minutes each time. The Parliamentary news pital so riskily. But if the drama declines, opera you must continue to glean from the Montreal is on the advance, and the day is not far distant subject we expected to see a large meeting, but abusive, one to another, yet manage to report upon the stony hearts of the Montrealers. As it very satisfactorily, at least to their partizans .- is, musical pieces are the only ones that do go dozen persons were in the room, and at no stage praying that the risplication of the Church Society its friends, and either passes over, sub silentia, by good to attract a fashionable audience, or exert What surprised us still more was to find nearly of the Diocese of Toronto, relative to a portion. That job alore ought to be worth the best gift in the hands States of all the money expended on public works. of the Government, and in this age of bribery and corruption, I heartsly hope he may live to get it. Why not he, as well as another? By the way, Mr. Murney is to get the vacant Judgeship. The most truly honest and independent man in > that House is the Member for Carleton; but for his honesty and independence he gets more kicks than corpers. As he votes with the Ministers upon all measures of importance, he thinks him-Shipowaers, complaining of the injury inflicted on self at liberty to bully them when they attempt to home. he extravagant, or refuse consent to what he thinks they should support. He is, therefore, a thorn in their side, and is treated very shabbily in consequence. The House and the Press make a butt of Mr. Johnston upon all occasions, but if Montreal, was I enabled to sit any time in the the Members or Reporters know what honesty means, as well as the Member for Carleton, they certainly do not exhibit so much of that scarce emmondity as does the subject of their ridicule. Mr. Johnston wants nothing of the Government, and the Government know it. His sets, extravagant as they sometimes appear, are nevertheless conscientious, and should be respected. His constituents know his value, and duly esteem it What is the result? When hardly ten men in that House would venture to throw themselves spon their electors, Mr. Johnston might do it with: impunity to morrow. In a county filled with old. country gentlemen of talent and large property, he, a man of neither birth nor education, holds his seat like a freehold. "Charity covereth a multitude of sins," so says the copy book; so does political integrity hide an infinity of blemishes. I certain lands which are not returned for assess. am happy to see that one county in the Province respects it " So much for Buckingham !"

Montreal has become a very gay city-the streets crowded with carrioles and sleighs of all general Bill, brought in by Mr. Sherwood, making denominations, some of them rich and extravagant to a degree hardly thought of among us of relates to our particular locality is as follows, viz. : the West, and the horses-they seem to have ramacked the Continent to procure the best money can afford. converted all his enemics into friends.

The "gallant and fighting Major" is here, large as life, und twice as natural-moustachies, dogs and all. Since he bullied Mr. Aylwin into making him an upology, he treads the streets of Montreal, and turns out his toes (for which his luck to receive in Montreal an apology. The "gullant and fighting Major" did "extort" the thousand dollars from Parliament, to perform a specific duty, and so far as the world is hitherto informed, has done nothing to redeem the pledge implied But why should I waste words with the animal? He has his day, and so has every dog. There being no House last night, I went to the new Olympic Theatre, of which the clever Mrs. George Jones is the Lessee. This Theatre is neither a handsome edifice, nor is it well situated, but then rose-and so did I. it will answer the purpose well enough, until some person of spirit or enterprize gets up a building had leisure even to think of the duty I owe my worthy of this really great metropolis. But Thea repers, which, although sadly scurrilous and when music may extend its softening influence its proper influence.

Mrs. George Jones' Company is large and well done the other night : In alluding to the Rebellion | tre was first opened its novelty drew for a few General Sherwood made some strong allusions to came thin, a few gentlemen amateurs resolved to sat down Mr. Lefontaine rose to reply, and chose themselves. The audience thoroughdently strives to obtain the good will of the Fran. ly annoyed at being thus cheated out of their dolco.Canadians. For instance, when Mr. Sher- lars, d-d the Theatre and all belonging to it wood left the House on Mr. Lafontaine's rising. They reasoned thus, if " the Lions" play so vilely Mr. Smith appeared to listen very attentively, and how wretched must be the acting of the Stock Company? The house became deserted. The Mr. Gowan is the Great Gun of the House. I fair Lessee had an up-hill game to play, but did know not what to think of this man. He writes not despair. She brought out good pieces, and the worst newspaper in the Province, without played them well; by degrees the impression of style, thought, language, or sentiment; and yet the amateurs vile acting wore off, and the Comhe makes the very best speeches in the House, and pany began to be appreciated. Such a piece would soit a Kingston nudience much better than the miserable murderings of Shukspeare so common amongst us. In Mrs. George Jones' Company is little Miss Fitzjames, who has grown both pretty and interesting, and what is better, is becoming a favorite. I presume you will see the fair Lessee and her Company in the Spring.

Reporters' Gallery. Mr. Lawrason, the M. P. for London, has accepted the Chiltern Hundreds, and Mr. Draper is to succeed him-this is positive. Mr. Malcolm Cameron loses his scat for Lanark, but goes back to his constituents-he is sure of a return; for whatever may be his shade of politics, he is unquestionably admitted to be the most hard working man in the House. The offices of Surveyor General and Commissioner of Crown Lands are to be consolidated, Mr. Hale to be the Commissioner, Mr. Papineau going to the Presidency of the Council, and Mr. Parke is to be appointed Collector of Customs, Port Colborne, Mr. Viger retires.
