MR. STEPHEN OF THE COLONIAL OFFICE.

We have made to-day some extracts relative to this gentleman, which cannot fail to be read with deep interest by every reddent of the colonies. Mr. Stephen, it is we believe generally known, fills the post of Second Under-Secretary at the Colonial office, an appointment which is permanent -the incumbent not going out with any change of Ministers. This fact it is proper to hear in mind, as it shows by what circumstance Mr. Stephen has so long remained in his present position. Such a person being necessarily a fixture, gives the tone in a great degree to the acts of him department.

The attack made by Mr. Roebuck on Mr. Stephen, will not surprise any one conversant with Culonial matters, for it has been a matter of complaint, we do not say how truly, that he exercises on many opcasions a malign influence on the colonles. Undoubtedly he was a potent instrument in bringing about Negro emancipation; and although that might have been a just and necessary measure we have always thought it hasty and ill-timed; but the impationce of the abolition party would brook no delay, and the measure was precipitated without regard to consequences. The consequences are now apparent, in the depressed and impoverished condition of the West India Planters. Mr. Roebuck and others assume. that Mr. Stephen being under the influence of the Abolitionists, was impetled to hasten the consummation of an event, which if cautiously and judiciously menaged, might have been effected without very material injury to any party. But it must be borne in mind, that the talents, business habits, aptitude for official duties, and the high moral worth of Mr. Stephen have always been admitted ; and it will be seen from our extracts that lead. ing statesmen of different politics, concur in the same admission. If, then, be erre iff his public duties, he does so from the poculiar bent of his mind, or from the ista-ences that are said to prevail over film. " " If it be admitted that Mr. Stephen, fibid the position he holds, is indespensable to ter can do without him, it almost follows that he is, in effect, the Colonial minister. himself, and that the policy of this office, for the last fifteen or Wenty years, her been his policy, and not that of the thirt secretaries. This conclusion being admitted, the next step is to compiler whether, the policy of the Colonial office has been good or bad, Opinions will, we dern say, differ on this point; but our readers are agcompetent to form them as twe ere,

It will be recollected that Sir Franch to England has been signalized by an act Head, formerly Governor of Upper Canada. But be it so or not The hero of Waterloo took occasion to say it was contended by Sir Francis Head, that that Her Majesty had just advanced one a person entertaining such opinions was Marshal; the object of the offusion was Colonial Secretary. From our own obnot the right man to be an adviser of the soon understood, who immediately received servation we should certainly infer that such opinions do preveil at the Colonial. We have always thought there was a want of confidence in the loyalty of the, people of the provinces; that the Colonial sieges of Ciudad Rodrigo, and Badajoz, the Office was too ready to listen to groundless complaints, especially when ande against ethics, that the colonists were republican jesty was extra aido de-camp to the Duke in feeling and sentiment, and apxious to country. Hence those who have shown at the close of the action, having, also, been themselves in the estimation of their fellow subjects, not over loyal have been netted while men of sterling loyalty have been treated with coldness and neglect. "When could be a stronger proof of this fatel poliev, than for the Colunial Minister to listen!
