SANDS'S SASSAPARILLA.

FOR THE REMOVAL AND PERMANENT CURE OF ALL DISEASES ARISING FROM AN IMPURE STATE OF THE BLOOD, OR HABIT OF THE SYSTEM.

If there be a pleaser on earth which superior to all others, and one which they might also envy me, the possession of it is the power of relieving pain. How consulting, then, is the consciousness of having been the instrument of restoring thousands from misery to those who possess it? What an amount of suffering can be prevented, by the use of Sands' Sarsaparilla! The unfortunate victim of hereditary disease, of swollen glands, contracted sinews and bones, of various other complaints, and the circulation, have been restored to health and vigor. The scrupulous patient, covered with ulcers, is ashamed to himself and to his attendants, has been made whole. Hundreds of persons, who had grown hopeless for years under the use of various remedies, chronic rheumatism, and many other complaints, springing from a derangement of the secretory organs, and the circulation, have been raised as it were from the rack of disease, slowly tested to the efficacy of this medicinal preparation.

The following certificate, recently received, was addressed to my agent in Madison, Ga. The patient was greatly afflicted with Scrophulous Mercurial sores, and had tried various remedies without any benefit, and the afflicted are now invited to read what he says in reference to Sands' Sarsaparilla:

MADISON, Ga., August 5, 1844.

C. F. HOFFMAN, Esq.—Dear Sir: As I have derived so much benefit from the use of Sands' Sarsaparilla, I feel it my duty that I owe to the community to make the facts in my case public. I was afflicted for four years with running sores and fetid ulcers on my lower extremities, and also suffered severely from mercurial sores on other parts of my body. The effect of blue pill and other mercurials. I tried remedy after remedy, but they all availed nothing, until I obtained a bottle of Sands' Sarsaparilla, which I found benefited me very much. I continued its use until I had taken eight bottles, when I was perfectly cured. I judge from my own case, I have reason to believe Sands' Sarsaparilla is the very best remedy for scrophulous and mercurial sores there is; it entirely eradicates the poison from the system. After four years of almost continual suffering, I now find myself as well as—entirely recovered.

Yours respectfully,
WILLIAM BANKS.

PROSPECTUS OF A NEW TOPOGRAPHICAL AND PICTORIAL OF THE CITY OF MONTREAL.

The Subscriber begs respectfully to inform the Public that he has made arrangements with Mr. CASE to become the Publisher of this Topographical and Pictorial Plan of the City and Liberties of Montreal.

For the satisfaction of those who are desirous that so useful and creditable a publication should arrive at maturity, he begs to submit a detail of what it will comprehend:

1stly.—The survey is constructed upon Trigonometrical principles, the same as adopted by the Corps of Royal Engineers upon the present survey of the British Isles.

2ndly.—That the details of each Block have been accurately filled in from actual measurements, so that the Plan has been rendered a complete ground model of every building, &c. that exists in the city.

3rdly.—That all projected divisions and subdivisions of property, and the new Streets and Avenues which have been, or about to be laid out on the same, have been carefully obtained from the Proprietors, and will be represented on the Plan.

4thly.—That the proper Topographical Characteristics of each division and subdivision will be carefully delineated, such as Ornamental Grounds, Orchards, Gardens, Plantations &c. &c.

5thly.—That the measurement of all properties are so carefully plotted and described, that they can be made available for the sale or transfer of property, and will therefore be of great utility to both disposers and purchasers of the same.

6thly.—That the plan will be beautifully ornamented with a Panoramic View of the City, extending nearly its whole length, and the sides of it will be enriched by a Splendid Border, interspersed with Vignettes, which will embrace the principal Buildings in the City, and therefore render it not alone a useful, but also, an Ornamental Publication.

7thly.—The size of the plan will be Three Feet Six Inches, by Four Feet Three Inches. And the price, handsomely Mounted and Varished, will be the very moderate sum of six dollars, payable on delivery.

It was in contemplation to give the names of every owner of property in the City upon that which belonged to each, but it was found on calculation that so doing would augment the cost of publication to such a degree as to render it impracticable. Those gentlemen, however, who desire to have their names appear in the plan, upon the property which they own, can have them inserted by paying in advance 5s. for each plot upon which the name has to be engraved. Your patronage and support is most respectfully solicited.

Orders and communications addressed to the undersigned will be promptly attended to.

MRS. CAUDLE'S CURTAIN LECTURES.

MRS. CAUDLE, RESPECTING THAT MR. CAUDLE HAS MADE HIS WILL, IS "ONLY ANXIOUS AS A WIFE" TO KNOW THE PROVISIONS THEREOF.

"There, I always said you'd a strong mind when you liked, Caudle, and what you're just been doing proves it. Some people won't make a will, because they think they must die directly afterwards. Now, you're above that, ain't you? Nonsense; you know very well what I mean, I know your will's made; for Scraggler told me so. What? You don't believe it? Well, I'm sure! That's a pretty thing for a man to say to his wife. I know he's too much a man of business to talk; but I suppose there's a way of telling things without speaking them. And when I put the question to him, lawyer as he is, he hadn't the face to deny it."

"To be sure, it can be of no consequence to me whether your will is made or not. I shall not be alive, Mr. Caudle, to want any thing I shall be provided for a long time before your will's of any use. No, Mr. Caudle; I shan't survive you; and—though a woman's wrong isn't a crime for a man he knows, for then she's always taking advantage of—though I know it's foolish and weak to say—I don't want to survive you. How should I? No, no; don't say that; I am not good for a hundred—I shan't see you out, and another husband too! What a gross idea, Caudle!—To imagine I'd ever think of marrying again. No—never. What? That's what we all say? Not at all; quite the reverse. To me the very act of such a thing is horrible, and always was. Yes, I know very well, that some do marry again—but what they're made of, I'm sure I can't tell I! "

"There are men, I know, who leave their property in such a way that their widows, to hold it, must keep widows. Now if there is anything in the world that is mean and small, it is that. Don't you think so, too, Caudle? Why don't you speak, love? That's so like you! I never want a little quiet rational talk, but you want to go to sleep. But you never were like any other man! What? How do I know? There now—that's so like you. I never open my lips upon the subject, but you try to put me off! I'm no doubt with Miss Prettyman speaks, you can answer her properly enough. There you are again! Upon my life, it is odd; but I never can in the most innocent way mention that person's name, that—Why can't I leave her alone? I'm sure—with all my heart! Who wants to talk about her? I don't; only you always will say something that's certain to bring up her name."

"What was I saying, Caudle? Oh, about the way some men bind their widows. To my mind, there is nothing so little. When a man forbids his wife to marry again without losing what he has, it's a cruel and selfishness after death. Mean to a degree! It's like taking his wife into the grave with him. Eh? You never want to do that? No, I'm sure of that, love; you're not the man to tie a woman up in that mean manner. A man who'd do that would have his widow burst with him, if he could—just as those monsters, that call themselves men, do in the Indies."

"However, it's no matter to me how you've made your will; but it may be of your second wife—What? I shall never give you a chance? Ha! you don't know my constitution after all, Caudle. I'm not at all the woman I was, I say nothing about her, but very often you don't know my feelings. And as we're on the subject, dearest, I have only one favor to ask. When you marry again, now it's no use your saying that. After the comforts you've known of marriage, what are you sighing at, dear?—After the comforts, you must marry again—now don't focusure yourself in that violent way, taking an oath that you know you must break—you couldn't help it, I'm sure of it; and I know better than you know yourself. Well, all I ask is love, because it's only for your sake, and it would make no difference to me if you should marry it. Oh, but she's not, I don't marry her, it's not the way I do, I shan't marry her, I shan't. I won't say another word about it, but all I ask is love. After the way you've been thought of, and after the comforts you've been used to, Caudle, she wouldn't be the wife of you. Of course, I could then have no interest in the matter—you might marry the Queen of England, for what it would be to me then—I'm not anxious about you. Mind, Caudle, I'm not saying anything against her; but not at all; but there's a frightened in her manner—I don't say, now this, she means no harm, and it may be the best thing I should do for her after all—still there is a frightened about her that, after what you've been used to, would make you very wretched. No, for if I may boast of anything, Caudle, it has been my property of manner all my life. I know that wives who're very particular, ain't thought as well of as those who're not—still, it is very little to be virtuous, if people don't seem so. And yours, Caudle—no, I'm not going to preach about virtue, for I never do. No; and I don't go about with my virtue like a child with a drum, making all sorts of noises with it. But I know your principles. I shall never forget what I once heard you say to Prettyman, and it's no excuse that you'd taken so much wine you didn't know what you were saying at the time; for wine brings out men's wickedness just as fire brings out spots of grease. What did you say? Why you said—'Virtue is a beautiful thing in women, when it's not paid for, and it's not worth anything; but there's some women who think virtue was given 'em as claws were given to cats'—yes, that was the word—to do nothing but scratch with. That's what you said. You don't recollect a syllable of it? No, that's when you're in that dreadful state, you recollect nothing, but it's a good thing I do."

"But we won't talk of that, love—that's all over; I dare say you mean nothing. But I'm glad you agree with me, that the man who'd tie up his widow not to marry again, is a mean man. It makes me happy to think that you've that confidence in me to say that. You never said it if I was a man; but with it—you're just as good as said it. No; when a man leaves all his property to his wife without binding her hands from marrying again, he shows what a dependence he has upon her love. He promises to all the world what a wife she's been to him; and how, after his death, he knows she'll grieve for him. And then, of course, a second marriage never enters her head; but when she only keeps his money to long in that keeps a widow, who's she's aggrieved to take another husband. I'm sure of it, many a poor woman is driven into wedlock again, only because she was tied up to her husband's will. It's only natural to suppose it. If I thought, Caudle, you could do such a thing, though it would break my heart to do it—yes, though you were dead and gone, I'd show you that I'd spirit, and marry again directly. Not but what it's ridiculous my talking in such a way, as I shall go long before you; still, mark my words, and don't provoke me with any will of that sort, or I'd do it—as I'm a living woman in this bed I'd do it."

"I didn't contradict her," says Caudle, "but suffered her to sleep in such assurance."

PROFESSOR OF MEDICAL PRACTICE.

It is said in an English medical periodical work, that a lecturer on anatomy in London, who has a class of 800 pupils, receives 2500 guineas annually for delivering a lecture, which occupies one hour daily, for half a year, the expenses of which to him, for discarding bodies, &c., does not exceed 240. For the dissecting room he also receives six guineas for the season from each student, making 150, making 260 guineas. He receives five guineas for two courses of surgical lectures, about 150 pupils, making 750 guineas. His share of the receipts from pupils for attending the hospitals is about £1500, making, in the whole, not quite £2000 per annum.
