A linve the bonner to be, Sir, Your most chedient servant, D. D.M.Y. Secretary. 70 For the British Whig. ARMUERANCE. the marine of the 15th July, in this year of grace 1847, dawned brightly on this lower world. The sun rose in unclouded splendor, and shed his burning beams aslant the dewmoistened earth, decking each fragrant flower and verdant glade in a garb of vermillion line. And now be ascended high on his imperial throne, welcomed in his ascent by the tuneful lays of myriads of feathered sompters; but as he approached his meridian altitude, the effulgence of his glory was so bright and overpowering, that they, sweet vocalists, had knowledge the greatness of the king of day. I too, like them, was well inclined to retire to some cool retreat, and indulge an hour or two in pondering over the ample pages of the ever-welcome Whig. But this was a day of business-a gala day. The long-talked-of, much-wished-for day had arrived when the Fruits of Temperance were to be exhibited by a public demonstration. Every species of vehicle, from the commodious covered carriage, to the easy light wagon, and from the light and graceful bucey, to the homely wagon-all were in requisition. Hay fields for miles around were deserted; farming operations stood still; the busy housewife left her choese and chickcas, donned her holiday attire, and joined the gathering.

But why all this bustle? why this mighty preparation? Take a short walk with me to vonder shady grotto, and behold for yourself, A short walk brings us in view of a flag gayly flaunting in the breeze; a little closer. we find our bump of loyalty extend beyond its usual proportions, for we are standing under the waving folds of the "meteor flag " Braved a thousand years.

The battle and the breeze."

Loval fellows, those, thought we : none enter here except they walk under the red cross of St. George. Another short walk by the side of a luxuriant beech grove, brings us in full view of the encompment; and here is a scene for the painter's skill or poet's fancy.

larf, well shaded by forest trees, was selected by the Committee of Management for the place of meeting. We are now facing the speakers' stand, a rustic platform shaded by evergreens, and furnished with a table and half a dozen chairs, and occupied by as many speakers; two Temperance banners, bearing appropriate mottoes, waving their silken folds, free as the winds of beaven-fit emblems of the principles of Temperance; rustic benches occupied by near one thousand listeners, of whom the tender sex formed no inconsiderable part; with the genial warmth of the sun. shorn of his beams by the intervening foliage, render the scene before us highly picturesque. A gentle breeze is sighing through the trees, now and then ruffling the white and varied colored dresses of the females, and disarranghandle related backler authorized youths, glowing in health and vigor, free from the contaminating effects of spirituous liquors, occupy the foreground; and certainly is not the least interesting portion of the assemblage. At the termination of the slope is a table, 70 or 80 feet in length, covered with snowwhite cloths, and redolent of the richness of all the choice viamls of the confectioner: boquets of sweet smelling roses are here and there strewn over the social cheer, whose fragrance uniting with the rich things prowided, is sufficient to excite and gratify the appetite of the most fastidious epicure. Upon ell this the Orb of Day now and then casts a giance, when the bending of some leafy branch will allow him, while on the table his beams are gaily flitting and dancing, like smiles from his Imperial Majesty, or golden winged attendants from his regal court. In fine it is a coup d'ail, beautiful and interest But enough of the description-now to

The Chair was taken at one o'clock, and the meeting called to order; when after a few preparatory remarks, the Chairman introduced Sergeant Brownden, 46th Regiment, who delivered a feeling address on the subject of Temperance; he said, that for eleven years he had not lasted spiritons liquors, though during that period he had been in some of the most sickly climates in the world. He conchided a stirring address by asserting his firm belief that total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors was compatible with perfect health. Mr. Timmerman was next introduced, and contributed to give an amusing turn to the subject, which we would rather not have heard; jocularity upon a cause so seriors and absorbing, was to our idea, quite out of place.
After this gentleman concluded, the chairman requested all, without any exception, to re-pair to the table and partake of the n fresh-ments. At this stage of the proceedings, we noticed half-a-dozen young gentlemen, head-ed by the Chairman of the Committee of Management, step over to the ladies' benches. take each a young lady, and repair to the table; this was done without the slightest confusion. When we renaised to the table. the cloths which covered the viands were removed, and the Committee waiting to render their assistance. The delicious flavor of the repast could not be surpassed; it was every thing that could be desired; and notwithstanding the large number that partook, there was more than sufficient. It was a rare and rich treat, which reflects the highest credit upon the Chairman and his Committee. I may safely say that this part of the country never before saw such a choice meeting. After an hour spent in the interchange of friendly feelings; the assemblage repaired to the speaker's stand. The Rev. Mr. Irvine was introduced, and delivered an address replete with sound sense and interesting detail. The Rev. Mr. Ellison was next introduced. and in an impressive and elegant address, showed the paramount claims the cause of Temperance had upon the consideration of the wrld-refuted the idea that it was not consonant with scripture—combated the assertion of those who call inebriating draughts " good creatures of God;" and he sat down amidst general applause.

We should have remarked, that ofter the meeting coming from the refreshment board, the Chairman called the Chairman of the Committee of Management, Mr. De l'Armitage, on the platform, who very reluctantly

Two resolutions were now moved and seconded, the first expressing the thanks of the meeting for the attendance of the speakers, the second, the thanks of the meeting to the Committee of Management, and especially the Chaleman, for the able and satisfactory manner they performed their duty. The Chairman of the Committee came forward and said, that if he were to confine himself to the thanks for the manner in which it was tendered, but finding himself on a Temperance platform, he could not sit down without saying a in behalf of the cause. He addressed singelf to three description of persons partlenlarly : Tayers become, drunkards, and maderate drinkers. He spoke warmly and fluent-ly 1 indeed. I funcied rather for much so, if he desired to gain the friendship of the first class of individuals. Hit short speech seemed to have created quite a sensation. He concluded by cardially thanking the meeting for its vote of thunks, and likewise for its attendance, and gently hinted that he trusted the propose a vote of thanks, for a similar favor. from other societies. The meeting was closed with a benediction from the Rev. Mr. Ellism who, it ought to have been remarked, opened by singing and prayer. And so closed a day which was every thing that could be desired by the most ardent lovers of Temperance, and we Smilly trust it will be the harbinger of that other day which must shortly prrive, when Intemperance, that curse, and bane, and scoutgr of nations, shall be swept from our land, and the broad beam; of the sun of Temperance shall immodate the world with its rays. DISTRESSED EMIGRANTS. From the Hamilton Spectator.

Numerous reports have been circulated this country respecting the inhuman manner in which the Irish landlords shipped their poor te ants for America, and it rould appear by the following letter that there is good reason to believe that in more than one instance, the irrational enimals than human beings. Worn out with distress in Ireland, and reduced to the lawest extremity, by famine and disease, we have no doubt that they hailed with joy the offered opportunity of exchanging a land misery for a home with pence and plenty in Canada. But if the state of those to whom the following letter refers may be taken as a fair sample of the liberality of the Lish landlords, it were better that the unfortunate emigrants had been allowed to remain in the land of their nativity, and to have endured its povto seek the shady arbor, and in silence ac- erty and privations, than that they should be east upon the shores of a strange country in a state of atter destitation, and having the germs of a malignant disease talent in their emaciated bodies.

The heartless conduct of Lord Damley agent will admit of no palliation, and the deention which he practised upon the poor guerant tenantry of his employer must render im obnovious to every lover of humanity. The wretched victims of his deceit were first induced to give up to their landlord the few acres upon which they had toiled for years, and from which, after paying their annual rack-rent, they could scarcely obtain sufficient food to keep them from actual starvation. They were cajoled into the belief that their passage across the Atlantic would not exceed twenty-three days, and that forty-two pounds of oatmeal was sufficient for their sustenance during that period. Instead of twenty-three, however, they were forty-eight days at sea, and their scanty stock of provisions having b en exhausted, they suffered all the pange of hunger, and most of them were prostrated by disease. Lord Darnley and his agent may have been anxious to get rid of a number of noor families, who, owing to the very small quantity of land held by each, were coasidered an encumberance, or an obstacle in the way of the improvement of his Lordship's Estate, but the means which they have adopted for that purpose are sufficient to make the rending occurrences. Apart from the inhumanity and deception practiced in the matter. The side of a sloping declivity of a velvet it is really too had that Canada should be renpopulation of Ireland, and that its inhabitants should have a malignant disease smead among them by the conduct of such men as Lord Damley. The following letter written by the captain of the vessel in which these unfortunate emigrants were brought to Canada, and addressed to a friend in Montreal, is a sample of the evils to which those who have been sent to Canada by their landlords this season, have been subjected, and we hope will not escape the notice of the Legislature. memorial should immediately be forwarded to the Home Government on the subject

He, Mr. Disney, sent his under Badid, to parchase their sea supplies, and he told them that three stone of meal was quite sufficient for each adult, as the passage would not exceed 23 days at most.

The sugar was the worst that could be, and for which they paid 6J. also 6J. for curon shells which, I assure you, they could not use. This letter was operaid on hoard the teamer which took them from Grosse Isle, and which turned out to be nothing but a deire that Mr. Buchanan would give them s no! the only case in which these poor ignorant people have been deceived. IMPRODEST BENEVOLENCE .- Some time ago we mentioned, with approbation, the fact that more than eighty Irish orphans had been received into Canadian families. To-day, a new fact has come to our knowledge, which | knew him - Twente Herald. imposes upon us the duty of putting the publie on its guard against the first movements of a compassion, which may lead to such painful

A poor woman of the Fanbourg St. Valier, the mother of eight children, led by a sentiment on compassion, which it is impossible to Irish orphan girl, whom she treated as one of place of the Virginian, recently withdrawn, her own children. At the end of some days the emigrant fell sick of typhus fever, and received from her adopted mother the most touching attentions. Thanks to these, the orphan recovered; but at the moment she regained her health, the unfortunate mother, who had introduced the contagion to her own home, without being aware of it, fell sick and died. She was yesterday interred at St. reriest tyrint blush, and something should be Rochs, leaving behind her as one may say, nine orphans. Here is a truly painful fact, which we report without comment. We limit ourselves to the remark, that orphan emigrants ought to be placed in some country cuse, from whence they may be removed by the citizens at the end of a year, and taught a trade without any fear of the consequences. In another family, of the St. Valier Sah nrb, two orphan emigrants fell sick at the end of a few days, and communicated typhus to some Canadian children, who have since been in the greatest danger.—Le Canadien, July 17.

UNIVERSITY BILLS .- A public meeting was held at the Court House on Wednesday luge Canada with their pauper tenantry, they | last, to take into consideration the propriety of petitioning the Logislature against the new University Bills. The meeting was thinly attended pecause the meeting was then measure. knowing the Bills were abandoned by the Ministry, thought it worse than useless to attend. The opponents to the Bills therefore had it all their own way; passed their own resolutions without opposition, and drafted their petitions thereon. There was a great deal of apathy exhibited on both sides, and hardly one person in the hundred knew or cared anything about the matter.

Tine Post Orrice.-When any thing goes wrong with the Mails, then the public are sure to hear of it through the Press ; but when the Post Office duty is quietly and quickly performed, it is too often passed over without notice. Some months ago, in consequence of the tardiness of the English Mail, ria Montreal, we gave directions to our Lonadvice, &c. This is the plain statement of don Correspondent, to pre-pay his letters and facts, but which Mr. Douglas informs me this send them vio the United States; but as yet, we have gained nothing by the change of route : for on the three last occasions, we have received our London Letter, on the very same day that the English Mail arrived. This is great feather in the cap of the Canadian Post Office Authorities, considering the much greater distance the Muil has to travel; but it shows very clearly, that when they like to bestir themselves, they can be as active as Brother Jonathan.

HEALTH OF THE CITY .- Some little alarm still edutiones to exist touching the general health of Kingston; but with very little reason. At this season of the year there is always more or less sickness about Kingston and its suburbs; and we question greatly whependant of the Emigratits, this summer as duting any preceding summer, for many years past. Among the emigrants, whether in the Hospitals or at the Streds, there is still much sickness and many deaths, but not more than might be expected, taking into consideration the constant infinx of emigrants from Montreal.

THE PROSPECTS OF THE WHEAT HARVEST .- From the very best reports made to us, we are compelled to acknowledge, that Wheat, both Spring and Fall, in the Midland District will prove but a very indifferent crop. In many parts it has been winter killed; in others, the fly has got into the fields, and in others the weevil has done much damage .-The reports from other Districts are equally discouraging.
