Novel Case-Refusal to Pay School Rates Assault on a Collector-Non-interference the Magistrates .- A Case somewhat novel in its character, and which has created quite sensation in town, occurred on Monday last. The collector appointed by the School Trustees applied to a Mr. McGrogan for the amount of his School Assessment. Mr. Mc-Grogan refused payment. The Trustees issued their warrant, and McDonald, the collectproceeded to levy on his goods. We are in possession of his time decountaines of the affair ; but it is admitted that McGrogan in 1824. so far opposed the collector in the discharge of his duty, as to lift an axe and threaten to break the head of McDonald, if he did not instantly retire! McDonald did retire, without making the seizure, and immediately applied for a Magistrate's warrant, in order

However, the result has been, that no conviction took place-McGrogan was dismissed with an admonition from the Magistrate, and a sort of understanding that the case would undergo a further hearing on Wednesday. Hearing this, we repaired to the Magistrates Office, where we found three of the Trustees, the Collector, and a witness in attendance. On inquiring, we ascertained that the Magistrates had doubts of the legality of the Trustees' proceedings, and of the thinking so little about them. The consciousness of a nation is most rivid and active in its gave-nument and its legiolature. When a people are really awake and progressive, we expect to find that activity in the rulers. A government less vigorous, less collected, less forward than the people, is on the ere of rejection. The living expels the dead .-When head and members suffer an equal stagenttion and collapse, it is to the centre of the eastern that the stimulos must be applied. Do we posses a leading and energetic Government, that will nitiate, direct, carry through and accomplish a course of domestin improvement? The country has misgivings on this point. With all our respect for the individual members of the Cabinet, we should speak to little purpose, and fail to persyade the bulk of our readers, if we were to demand entire confidence and repose in the Minister and his plans. Little is premised, but still less is done. Important measures are hung up -There is a want of momentum and a certain vacillation betrayed. Unfortunately, the illness of a Minister is apt to be infectious. Workmen a Idom do their duty when the eye of the moster is not on them. At any rate, what has been done? What is now doing? and what pledge have we of effective legislation !

Yet, since the first meeting of Parliament, we have had nearly three months' sitting. We shall not be misunderstood when we say, that while all our neighbors are having their revolutions, we must have a revolution of our own. one of the quiet and constitutional sort. All Europe is taking a start. Every country is contributing something to movement. France expects to gain something by her change. The British prople will be ashamed to be beaten in this respect. They must be able to compare notice with honor. Now, we are not going to vie with France in splendid ideas. She may enjoy the exclusive possession of her three political gliddeness, and much good may they do her. What will ratisfy the British people is practical improvement. O see prove to them that you have reserved an abuse, destroyed an injurious anonopoly, colorated the ad-ministration of justice, of consucree, of finance, or of public health, secured comployment for the pior, or done any good work, and they will be content to drop the ideal. We want, therefore practical men ; and a practical that is, an off sient Maniete is all the distance or expense. unbition of our maintait revolutionists We address these remarks to the Republishers of Paris because they seem anxious to get onefast whenever they can. Almost every day since the rentful Tuesday it has been reported in Paris that there was a revolution in London; and the Counoil of the Hotel de Ville is busy in replying to Chartist and Unionist deputations and letters in tone which, guarded as it is, sounds rather like ropagandism. New that the Irish repealers and hoplifters of Glasgow have had at least one manconful day's furay, and it has been found necessary to fire upon them, our Parisian friends will certainly think all the denastics of Europe are umbling down about one another's men. We their own held experiment. When all France is perfectly estisfice with its success, we may pussibly then begin to own the question. Then far it is not so clear that even the Provisional Committee is perfectly at same. M. do Lamartine himself, after glorifying his fellow citizens as between and examples to all mankind, is obliged to apologies fer their savage inhapitality in driving out the British laborer and artuan. Confidence revives if the shape are open, it is not to much purpose. There seems, in feet, a sort of universal strike for nore pay. This does not tell against the princiale of the Revolution, or its ne-casing; nor need t shake the courage of really great men.
