BRITISH WHIG.

"Ouster per Orban Dicitur."

SATURDAY MORNING, SEPT. 9.

MADAME BISHOP'S CONCERT.

This promised treat came off on Thursday night at the City Hall. For Kingston, there was an exceeding good and fashionable attendance. Madame Bishop was in superb voice, and sang most divinely. We shall not attempt to criticise her singing; to do so would surpass our feeble powers. Her voice is of most astonishing power and compass; her musical knowledge in equal proportion, and her "louis de France" of a kind to strike the listener with admiration of the most unbounded description; but magnificent as is her voice, and most ravishing as was her singing, she sang too genteel to express any very great gratification; they applauded it, but did not adore it. They probably thought it might be displeasing to the fair vocalist. The gods of an English shilling gallery would have shown more taste, and at the same time exhibited more true politeness. When we say the lady was not encored, we make no account of a little Irish ballad and a French Chansonette which she repeated; we mean she was not called to sing any of those most ravishing musical compositions, which have spread her fame all over Europe and America; compositions, to hear which would be almost worth a journey of a hundred miles. The City Hall, which destroyed Mr. Dempster, on account of its vastness, was just suited to the capacity of Madame Bishop's powerful organ; she filled it completely, and no one appeared to complain of the reverberation so obnoxious to inferior vocalists.

Mr. Bacha is unnecessary to say many words; his harp playing was, as might be expected from his reputation, of very extraordinary merit; but in our humble opinion, his Piano Forte accompaniments to Madame Bishop's singing were equally wonderful. They certainly were most effective. He was rapturously applauded.

ARRIVAL OF THE MAJOR GENERAL.

The Major General Rowan, who for some time has been expected to succeed Major General Sir Richard Armstrong, in the command of Western Canada, has arrived at Kingston. He is the same officer, well known, who so distinguished himself, both in a civil and military capacity, during the days of Lord Selkirk (Sir John Colborne), and to whom his Lordship is mainly indebted for the high reputation he acquired in Canada. His title, it has been too much the practice of the military authorities at the House of Commons to appoint to commands in the colonies, aged officers with one foot in the grave; we are happy to say, in the choice of Major General Rowan, a departure from the general rule has been made; for this gentleman apparently is in the full vigor of his age and manhood.

LIFE ASSURANCE.

On Wednesday evening last, according to notice, Mr. M. G. Baker delivered a lecture on Life Assurance in the Court House; in consequence of a meeting of the Life Assurance Society on the same evening in the Town Hall, the lecture was rather thinly attended. We regret that this was the case, as opportunities of this kind are rarely offered, and the subject is one which deserves the greatest attention. The lecturer, a lucid manner explained the origin and gradual progress of life assurance companies, and showed that by a small present sacrifice, a man may easily provide for his family a sufficiency to permit them in case of his death from any cause to live in ease and comfort. He pointed out that it was prudent for self and the imperative duty of most people to effect assurance in accordance with their respective means. Among his many arguments that are generally brought to bear against such situations such as these under consideration, he successfully combated the assertion "that they are guilty of presumption, and by means of life assurance, choose to depend upon mere human invention, for the support of the widow; and faithless rather than upon him who has promised to relieve the father, and widows' and in support of his view he adduced the opinion of various divines who were, on Christian principles, warm supporters of such societies. Towards the conclusion of the lecture, the lecturer alluded to the many advantages which the Canada Life Assurance Company held forth to intending assurers, and showed the benefit to be derived from retaining within the country, our present capital instead of remitting it in the shape of premiums to British Life Assurance Companies, as we are now doing to the amount of upwards of £12,000 per annum. We have not space to remark on the various arguments he brought forward in favor of the practice, but we can say that he concluded a very excellent lecture by reading a few extracts from the first annual report of the Canada Life Assurance Company, which showed that this company had done more business, in the first nine months of its existence than many now wealthy British Companies during the space of a year, and that they had succeeded in making a profit to the participating assurers from a seven months business a fact which was unexampled in the History of British Life Assurance Companies.

The lecturer gave great satisfaction to all present, and at the conclusion drew forth every token of appreciation from the audience.

THE WARDENSHIP OF THE PENITENTIARY.

So satisfied are the friends of the Administration that the present Warden of the Penitentiary is to be removed, that two of the Radicals are already by the ears respecting the choice of his successor. Hear the gentlemen:—

WARDENSHIP OF THE PENITENTIARY.

Augustus Tibbels, Esq. is admitted by all to stand the least chance of succeeding in the Wardenship; and the public now feel assured that he will receive the office. In addition to his deserts as a consistent and influential friend of the Ministry, Mr. Tibbels possesses qualifications of which few men can boast; he has followed a mechanical and mercantile career for many years; possesses an active energetic mind; and is well acquainted with almost all kinds of business commonly carried on in this country; in one word Mr. Tibbels is a practical man, and better fitted for the Wardenship, than any other man known in the Midland District. The Ministry may rest assured that if they appoint a stranger to the Wardenship, they will give general dissatisfaction to the friends of the Government. Hear the words of the Telegraph. "You rest your friend outside your direction altogether. We say nothing about your friend Tibbels' claims for or against, but this much we do say, you have preferred a little Mr. Tibbels, the Penitentiary is a man of no account, and which belongs to the whole Province, and not to the Midland District." "Secondly, a Reform Ministry receive no satisfaction from the fact that they have appointed a stranger to the office, who is not a member of the Ministry, and whose general disaffection to their administration, by any appointment they make in the future."

A queer idea strikes us, if it be determined that the Commissioners are to recommend the removal of Mr. Tibbels, as a matter of course, there will be the opinion given as to the necessity of appointing a fiscal agent to divide that gentleman's emoluments, for that would be cutting the throat of his radical successor; but on the contrary, should nothing affecting the tenure of his office be moved against him, then we may look for a strong expression of opinion as to the imperativeness of dividing his salary and duty.

Early on the morning of the day fixed for the celebration, the sky was overcast with floating clouds, which gave every indication of rain; but at ten o'clock the mists cleared away, and the sun beamed forth, so that the general opinion that it should become a glorious fine day, notwithstanding the gloomy appearance of the morning. The procession was to leave the Lodge House, according to the advertisement, at ten o'clock, and after parading the principal streets, to assemble at a beautiful and romantic spot in the vicinity of Laurier's Wharf, thence to celebrate the brotherhood of the Kingdom, Peace, and Justice, and to visit the various places of interest in the neighborhood. Long before the hour appointed for starting had arrived, the members had assembled in their Lodge Room, which by the bye is a magnificent, lofty, airy, and commodious room, measuring in length 100 feet, and in width 30 feet, and was furnished in the most costly manner. The band was in attendance and delighted us with a variety of national airs and marches, in keep us in good humor until the arrival of the boat, which, upon the approach of the boat, we began to feel uneasy in consequence of the appearance of the boat, when a member of the Lodge came into the room and informed us that he had just received a despatch, by which it was ascertained that the boat had not yet started, and that the members of the Lodge were to wait until the boat had started, and then to proceed to the wharf, where the boat was to be met. This sudden and unexpected news put the members of the Lodge in a great state of excitement, and they were all in a hurry to get ready to start. The boat, however, did not start until about half past ten, and the members of the Lodge were all in a hurry to get ready to start. The boat, however, did not start until about half past ten, and the members of the Lodge were all in a hurry to get ready to start.

latter, where, I assure you, they discussed the winds in glorious style. Mr. Tibbels, officiated in person, at the head of his waters, and displayed such activity in his anxiety to wait upon every body, that one might have imagined there could not have been less than twenty waiters at the table. When the wine was served out, bottles after bottles of wine were called for, the quality of which, I scarcely need say, was of the finest flavor. The health of the Chairman, Mr. Charles McMillan, was now proposed, and drank in a bumper, all started the ladies with their glasses, as usual, as the applause had subsided, the Chairman stood and responded to the toast in a very appropriate manner; the Chairman took his seat amidst considerable applause, and the Company on rising from the table, dispersed all over the grounds. Some gentlemen among the trees, others made up a sort of Quadrille, others again, disposed themselves at full length, at the foot of some tree, and smoked away in the arms of Morpheus. Mr. Tibbels, who had, as we mentioned, the Postoffice dinner, then, dispersed in different parts of the grounds, about twenty; a group of four or five persons enjoying their own little Pic Nic by themselves. Every thing appeared to go off very pleasantly, and about half past one, the whole party got up to go to the ball in the evening.

About nine o'clock, fifty couple had assembled in the long room of Mr. Rathbush's Hotel, which was being put up with the band, and the ladies with their glasses, as usual, as the applause had subsided, the Chairman stood and responded to the toast in a very appropriate manner; the Chairman took his seat amidst considerable applause, and the Company on rising from the table, dispersed all over the grounds. Some gentlemen among the trees, others made up a sort of Quadrille, others again, disposed themselves at full length, at the foot of some tree, and smoked away in the arms of Morpheus. Every thing appeared to go off very pleasantly, and about half past one, the whole party got up to go to the ball in the evening.

That ended this gay and brilliant Pic Nic, and I have no doubt it would have been a glorious success, had not the weather been so unfavorable. It is to be hoped another attempt will be made very shortly, by those indefatigable members of Victoria Lodge, and with much better success.

THE PHYSIOGNOMY SOCIETY.—Last night this Society again turned out in numbers for the purpose of accompanying to mother earth the remains of a Brother who had offended the Society. We shall give the particulars of this Grand Burial on Wednesday next.

THE PENITENTIARY COMMISSION.—These former brecheed gentlemen have had one brood of chicks and have taken a holiday of three weeks, preparatory to hatching another. In other words, the Board has adjourned for a few weeks. The charges against the Warden are completed, and he has again in his hands a copy for rebutment. When the Commissioners sit again, the charges against the other officers are to be equaled into.
