The Daily Acws. TUESDAY EVENING, DEC. 9.

(Died Nov. 16th, 1873.) IN MEMORIAM "BILLY," A WELL-KNOWN AND RESPECTED SKYE-TERRIER. Dreary and cold and dull and grey Darkened the dim November day On which forever passed away *

A friend in deed as well as name, Who'er might alter, still the same, And staunch and true though praise or blame.

MYRTLE NAVY SHAW & MINNES'. What little power thou dids't possess. by To show thy boundless kindliness By bark and jumps and kind caress Was used, poor Billy A noisy dog at times wert thou,

What times thy resonant bow-wow Demanded entrance, silent now For aye! poor Billy! Though "whiles in battle thou woulds't meet |-A fellow-dog upon the street, Or chase a cat to its retreat.

Aloft, poor Billy! Or woulds't pursue. with threatening roar. A stranger from thy master's door, From sense of duty—nothing more Twas done, poor Billy!

Though rough thy shaggy coat of grey, Thine aspect grim—there never lay A gentler heart 'neath silk array. Than thine, poor Billy !

No more on the familiar street Thy well-known form and pattering feet Shall take their old accustomed beat

Thy friends shall look regretfully. But never more again shall see Our faithful Billy ! Ah, well! thy span was lived, though brief, "Into the sear and yellow leaf," Thy days had passed, and death's relief

Was best, poor Billy! STOVES Better that thou sleep peacefully
Beneath the sod than live to see Sad days, while thou in pain must dree Old age, poor Billy!

Farewell! may greenest turf o'erspread, Nor foot profane e'er roughly tread The grave where rests thy faithful head In peace, poor Billy
