> GEORGE BROWN. Oct. 23, 1872.

By the kindness of an unknown friend, we received through the pest a few days age, a mest interesting relic of times beyond the memory of the eldest living man, being no less than a small beok entitled Astrological Judgments for the year 1693. The information contained therein goes far beyond the puny efforts of our 18. | modern Meteerelogical probabilities, for it deals with the whole year, and by means of asters, jeys and serrows of many kinds. The author Matthew Hobbes, Student in Physic and Astrology was a sincere admirer of William III. and portends woes to his enemies the French, in a style that must have earned him great praise from the advocates of the Ravelutien. Matthew epens his famous little work with, "O Happy England, be Thankful for thy Plenty, for thy Peace, for all the Mercies ef a gracieus God bestewed upen thee; Pray for his Majesty's long Life and Reign; few or not many of our Animadversions belong unto thee this Year, and so we would be generally understood ." He then proceeds to explain by means of a diagram the positions which will ensure this happy fate, and by planetary signs de-OUR STOCK IS VERY LARGE FOR THE PRESENT SEASON, and must be clares that this means for the first quarter : reduced before the New Year. All Goods will be marked at a very slight advance on That the People of England shall be in a very prespersous condition and they shall forced from these Controversies Seditions and Troubles which have latel disordered them, and lastly that some Grumbletenians will now at last learn to be Faithful, Just, and Houest to Him whom Heaven has made the Happy Instrument of our Preservation," and with an eye to the Student of Physick part of his title he de TWEEDS (ALL WOOL) from 40 cents, clares that a certain conjunction of the planets portends "a sukly time among the -tchildren," and for men and women alike there are to be "Swoonings, Inflammat. of the Eyes, Palpitations of the Heart, and many Pains and Wringings in the Stemach and other things se plainly stated that the refined ideas of mederations would be shocked by finding them mentioned in a book of physic.

The second quarter, things went hard for France. The Planets seem bent on payinoff Louis XIV. for many a slight, and Matthew revels in the idea that things are new coming to the werst for the "Pyrant of France." Hear him :-- 'France ! hast thou a mind to set to Sea this Year? 'Twill 'be upen last Year's Errant. Lego tuta parva cymba (for he is a terrible fellow at quoting Latin.) Thou art a continent, use Carts and Waggons Merchandice, then needest no Shipping; the Royal Sun is Set, thy Lightning is Quenched, thy Thunderer's noise is Drowned, thy Victory is Overcome, thy Triumphant Captivated; in fine, thy Invincible Armada is eighty eighted." Nor is this the wor France had been preparing to annihil F GOOds England, and all her preparations are to rest sult in sound and fury. Matthew gets ox. cited, and exclaims. "How pot-valianty France? How merrily was that blood thirsty Gang going to carouse in our blood Then, in that critical time, did it please Ch to send in KING WILLIAM to be our D liverer. He speiled their Mirth, broke p their Company, made them leave their L quor behind them, and Three Kingdoms to pay the reckoning." So is to be in the second Quarter of 1693. We have then usual malatheis ferecast, and a hint through out that there is to be a "Rot among smaller sert of Cattle particularly Sh James Moore.

unless "great care is taken beforehand the Owners." Things are no better in the third Quarter for France, In fact the hests of Heaven are evidently against the "Naughty Tyrant," He is to feel the evils he has caused other to suffer, and that "Persecutor of Religion," that Ravisher of Liberty, that Scourge of the Ages, after being a Plague to all his neighbours" is now to pay the shet he se wantenly incurred. Meanwhile William je to be great and glerious, he is to beat down all Atheistical and Irreligious Hu mours and severely punish those that Scott at all this Sacred in Religion."

The Fourth Quarter combines Fate and Physick to an awful degree, and accord: ly France is to have "a Dose of Improsp ous Turns to humble and soften it inte Repentance" and as the combined Influer of Jupiter and Venus is to destroy the Man lign power of Saturn, the health of the world will be better. The astrologist the informs his readers that he will take leave of them, but thinks it best to do so in verse and so flings into it at such a rate as would make New Year's addresses very peer work indeed compared to the volumes of Kasta lian numbers that well in liquid music from Matthew Hobbes' Parnassus.
