Any of our readers who have an idea of emigrating to the Western States would do well to read our morning despatches before purchasing their tickets. Never in the annals f this country has such severe weather been experienced, as has visited Iowa and Minnesota this winter. Men and cattle have frozen to death on the reads; one man at a railway station succumbed to the intense frost whi proceeding to the tank, which could not have been many yards distant from the station door; the railroads of Iowa are blockaded of in "frozen-up Canada," and to add to the horrors of the situation, the residents of the prairie country are running short of fuel. To probability is that matters are even worse than they are described in the associate press despatches, which, coming as they do from the Western States, are not likely to be exaggerated.
