A STRANGE STORY.

A young woman was murdered in a house of ill-fame in Gre Coram street, London, and suspicion fell on an unknown German who had visited it. Information was obtained that this man was on board a German emigrant vessel named the Wangerland, then at Ramsgate, and a respectable emigrant named Wehlebe was arrested agreeing with the description. When the witnesses came from London to identify the murdered, a number of the emigrants were dressed alike, and their paster, named Dr. Hessell, believing Wohlebe innocent, put on the same dress and stood with them. The witnesses singled out, MENDERS, addressed to the Minister of was arrested, confined all night, and sent to dorsed "Tender for Rescue," will be received.
