Ottawa, April 17 .- The state ball at Rideau Hall last night was the magnificent success which those who know Lord Dufferin's style of doing things predicted it would be, and was one of the most splendid as it was one of the most enjoyable ever given in Canada. He fully understands the duties of his exalted but very delicate position, and is happily equally au fait at addressing himself to the matter in hands, whether it be but an address to a few Sunday-school children or the giving of a state ball, or the shaping of a state policy. In the public accounts committee this morning Mr Brydges continued his statement explanation of the proceedings of the commissioners in regard to the erection of the Intercolonial Railway. A discussion ensued, and the committee then adjourned till Saturday.

The special committee appointed on the motion of Sir John A. Macdonald, to inquire into the charges made by Mr Huntington against the Government with reference to the Pacific failway met this morning, but it is understood no evidence was taken. The proceed-
