I acted entirely in the interest of the Canadian people in suggesting to the gentleman referred to that the parties who had brought the scheme before the Government had not the standing that it was desirable they should have. I was on my way to New Brunswick and Nova Scotia when the conversations in New York McMullen's took place, and I certainly never gave any address to Sir Hugh Allan. On my return I gave him a list of names, and he remarked that he knew all or most of them by reputation, The next reference to me in Mr Mc-Mullen's letter is to the meeting of Council The Grits Barking up the ou the 5th of October, 1871, when Mr Mc-Mullen says :-- "It was at once apparent that they were not fully in accord among themselves." How this was apparent it would be difficult for Mr McMullen to show, inasmuch as to the best of my recollectien no member of the Government said a word except Sir John. Sir John asked Sir Hugh Allan whether he had any proposition to submit, to which Sir Hugh replied by enquiring whether, if he made a proposition, the Government would be prepared to consider it, or enter into negotiations; to which Sir John replied that they were not prepared to do so, and Sir Hugh rejoined that in that case he did not think it advisable to make any suggestion. I have no recollection whatever of holding any private conversation with Mr McMullen, and I cannot believe it possible that I could have discussed with him the views of Sir George Cartier. It must be borne in mind that all this time, and for many months afterwards, indeed till after the session of Parliament of 1872, the objects Montceal, July 18.—The following letter of the promoters of the Pacific scheme and of McMullen and his followers, both before and after their assciation with Sir Hugh Allan, were trying in every possible way, and for this expressed and never medified, which was that too burdensome to the country.
