We have already expressed the opinion not the letter of the scoundrel McMullen, tawa Times assumes, but the telegrams, orders, drafts and receipts signed by Minister and others, and the letter of Senator Foster, make out such a case as to put the Government fairly upon their defence, and to require such prompt investigation of the whole subject as will clear the atmosphere of this element of scandal. The inference which has been drawn from the papers now published, is that JUST RECEIVED ment is built, it displaces the mud, and settles promised, it is well that we should remember that there is strong direct, as well as circumstantial, evidence to negative this view. We have first the direct sworn evidence of Sir flugh Allan, in terms which are certainly of any kind or description, with the Government or any of its memoers as to the payment receiving the contract for the Camadian Pacific." That statement has been by some of our contemporaries held to be variance with the papers published last week; but except upon the hypothesis-that the letter of Sir George Cartier of the 30th July contained an express bargain for money in consideration of granting the Pacific Railway contract, there is no contradiction involved. Sir Hugh Allan has never denied that he subscribed money for the elections. In the came affidavit he says, "I subscribed some money to assist in the election of such persons as were my friends and in whom I was intercrested, but without any understanding or condition with them or any of them as to 'arliamentary support or assistance in the event of their election." - As we have said becontractors are pushing on the work with fore, the practice of spending money at elections is one which cannot be defended, and which all men are interested in putting down; but it is not one which either of the great political parties are in a position to charge as an offence belonging exclusively to the other. But these extracts from Sir Hugh Allan's attidavit, seem to us to justify the belief, that the letter of Sir George Cartier, upon the that the documents published last week, terms of which so much depends in this controversy, had no relation whatever to the Paas our drivelling contemporary of the Ot- cific Railway. And that is further sustained by the assurance of the members of the Government, in the authorised statement published by us on Monday. Whatever it was, the emphatic declaration that the existence even f the letter was unknown to other members of the Government until the publication of the letter of the 24th August last, in which reference is made to it, seems to us to justify the opinion that it was not such a letter as it has, views, which we have reason to believe are for the purposes of the accusers in this case,

That is the direct evidence on the subject. doubt, is that Sir George Cartier did write a letter on the 30th July, in which he proposed certain terms upon which the contract for the building of the Pacific Railway could be given to a Company under the Presidency of Sir bodied in that letter, which had special referreferring to the same thing, written on the same day, instead of one including all the conditions or considerations?
