The London, and the St. Lawrence of Kingston came off on the Cricket Ground in presence of about 300 spectators yesterday. The Londoners had been playing well on their downward trip, and on Saturday had defeated the Travellers of Cobourg by a score of 38 to 8. They therefore expected to justify the bunkum of the London papers by winning here easily, but in this they were greviously disappointed, as the score will show. The Tecumsello of the St. Lawrence fielding' was good; but we thought that Southam on the second base showed about the best of the nine. In the St. Lawrence fielding, where all was so good, we cannot very well particularize, but the fielding of Mattoon, Dinnin and Nutt was very good. Rafferty's pointed, as the score will show.
