This is a new development of the current system of adulteration which extends from what we eat and drink to what we grieve and sentimentalize over. There is a comical ghastliness in the notion that a man wearing a reliquary locket which he constantly associates with a parent, a wife, relative, or friend, is carefully and pathetically preserving and cherishing a tul from the skull of the inmate of a penitentiary or a workhouse, while the token which he intended to carry with him lies amongst other samples to be distributed in due course to customers who will weep over it in complete ignorance of its origin.
