that it is all talk. In the first place, because such a Hotel could not pay its expenses; secondly, because Mr, Counter can invest inous fabric, Mr. Counter will not be in a monstrous hurry to build at all. Depend upon it, Mr. Counter's new Hotel all bosh ! In this state of affairs, would i not be as well, or rather better, if the Capitalists of Kingston would join purses, and build an Hotel of their own. Not a monster house that would break the back of its keeper, but an Hotel, costing with its scite, about £5,000. There are several good Hotel Keepers who would gladly take such cious mansion, but to which he is adding a place, pay a remunerating rent for it, and keep it as it should be kept. Mr. Perkins, for instance, or even Mr. Kent himself; for no one better knows the misery be daily Hotel line from Cape Vincent tion. An Hotel of this kind and size would pay well, and Stock taken in it must soon be at a premium. A good Hotel is imperative in a growing city, and it is a

Although his new hotel, (to be called the "Iron House,") will be a large, well built, and handsomely furnished building, yet as stire dinner hour will continue to be one o'clock, it cannot be called a First Class Hotel; that is to say, it cannot attract, with the exception of Americans, First Class Travellers. But it will be well patronized mevertheless. Canadian gentlemen, like to dine late in the day, and they won't willingly go to early dining hou es, when others snore accommoda ing are open. This fact Mr. Counter knows and takes advantage of: for while the dinner hour at the British American remains at five o'clock, let his tenant, Mr. Kent, grumble as much as he chooses, his grumbling won't amount to much; for First Class Travellers will still flock to the British American, as they have done for the past forty years, for the sake of a good and late dinner. Now, if a Joint? Stock Company were to build a new Hotel, or even take steps to subscribe the neces eary Stock, it would have the good effect of Aringing Mr. Counter to his senses immediately, and make him do at once, what may otherwise take him ten years to accomplish. Kingston must have a good Hotel, and no mistake. This is a fact.
